Centre, Assam move SC for sample re-verification of NRC

Seek 20% recount in border districts, extension of July 31 deadline for final list

KRISHNADAS RAJAGOPAL

NEW DELHI

The Centre and the State of Assam on Tuesday made an urgent mention before the Chief Justice of India for an extension of the deadline for the final publication of the National Register of Citizens (NRC) from July 31, 2019, to a "future date".

In identical but separate applications, they urged the Supreme Court for more time to conduct a "sample re-verification process" of the names included in the draft NRC published on July 30, 2018.

Relief for airlines as Pakistan opens its airspace after 6 months

JAGRITI CHANDRA

NEW DELHI

In a massive relief for air travellers and airlines, Pakistan reopened its airspace for all flights early on Tuesday after a gap of six months since the IAF launched strikes in Balakot. Hours after the announcement, an Air India flight from San Francisco to Delhi became the first Indian aircraft to fly over the neighbouring country and reach the destination 90 minutes early.

The curb meant airlines had to take a longer route to their destinations and burn more fuel, stop midway for refuelling and roster more pilots and cabin crew as their duty hours are regulated.

An increase in fuel expenses, which constitute 40% of an airline's operational costs, resulted in an increase in fares and, in some cases, cancellation of flights.

"Pakistan has cancelled the NOTAM [notice to airmen] for its airspace with effect from 0038 IST, the consequential NOTAMS by India also cancelled. Airlines likely to resume normal routes through Pakistan airspace," an official of the Ministry of Civil Aviation said.

The move will benefit Indian carriers as well as the airlines that enter or exit Pakistan from its eastern border with India, such as South East Asian airlines, as Pakistan had lifted its curbs on most other airlines.

Schools turn nutrition gardens in Mizoram district

Self-sufficiency in fruits, vegetables helps them nourish children when the villages remain cut off in monsoon

GUWAHATI

It takes a powerful SUV almost nine hours on non-rainy days to cover 296 km from Mizoram capital Aizawl southward to Lawngtlai, headquarters of the State's remotest district Lawngtlai bordering Bangladesh and Myanmar.

Loaded commercial vehicles take much longer, and those carrying perishables mainly from Assam's Silchar, 180 km north of Aizawl, take ages. By the time the pick-up or mini-trucks reach Lawngtlai, the fruits and

New idea: The first phase of the programme to create edible gardens has been launched in 213 schools and anganwadis.

Lawngtlai has 35.3% stunted, 21.3% underweight and 5.9% severely wasted (low weight-for-height) children under 5 – highest on all counts in Mizoram. Ms. Ala and her team designed a remedy: Kan Sikul, Kan Huan. In the Mizo language, it means 'My School, My Farm'.

"Vegetables and fruits available in Lawngtlai town are costly. But the townspeople at least get them unlike the villages where transporting perishables is unthinkable. So we thought of involving school children, their parents and teachers to create a nutrition garden in each school," Ms. Ala told The Hindu.

The first phase of the programme covering 213 schools, Anganwadi centres and childcare institutes was launched a few days ago. Another 188 would be added in the second phase while the third phase focussing on livestock and poultry farming would cover all 776 schools and centres to benefit 15,042 children.

"The aim is to make every school, Anganwadi, child care institution and hostel in Lawngtlai self-sufficient in the local variety of fruits and vegetables by March 2020. This is to reduce malnutrition and stunting among children," Ms. Ala said.

The latest incident occurred in Rajsamand district on July 13, when a police head constable investigating a land dispute case in Padmela village was allegedly beaten to death by a mob.

Recently, the Uttar Pradesh Law Commission framed a draft legislation to combat mob lynching. The Congress-led Madhya Pradesh government is also planning a similar law.

In July last year, the Supreme Court had urged Parliament to consider enacting a new law to tackle incidents of lynching.

4 gangsters killed in separate U.P. encounters

One of them had escaped from police custody in Muzaffarnagar on July 2

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

GAZIABAD

In a coordinated action conducted by the Uttar Pradesh police, four gangsters, including Rohit Saandu who had escaped from police custody on July 2, were killed in two separate encounters in Muzaffarnagar and Meerut on Tuesday.

Rohit and his accomplice Rakesh Yadav were eliminated in the Nai Mandi area of Muzaffarnagar after an exchange of fire with the police personnel. With over 40 cases against Rohit, the U.P. police had declared a bounty of ₹1 lakh on his arrest.

SP (City) Muzaffarnagar Satpal Antil told The Hindu that the police had information that Rohit and his accomplices were in the area.

Looted to mislead

"We were waiting for them since Monday night. At 4.30 a.m., we noticed four men on two motorbikes. As it was raining, two slipped away from the cordon while the other two opened fire on us.

We retaliated and in the process Rohit and Rakesh got bullet injuries. They were taken to a district hospital where they were declared dead."

The two who slipped away were Ravinder Kalia and Amit alias Sheru. According to Mr. Antil, Ravinder and Amit looted occupants of an SUV on the way in order to confuse the police.

"But we had already passed the information to Meerut Police and the SUV owner had lodged a complaint of theft. They were cornered in Daurala area of the district," Ravinder was also a notorious criminal and had a bounty of ₹50,000 on his head.

On July 2, Rohit, languishing in Mirzapur jail, was brought to Muzaffarnagar in connection with a case where he managed to flee with the help of a historysheet Bhupendra Bafer and his men. Sub-inspector Durg Vijay Singh was injured in the incident.

Youth beaten up by three men 'for talking in English'

Two accused arrested; victims say perpetrators were drunk

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

A 25-year-old man suffered severe injuries and his friends, including two women, were allegedly thrashed by three men in Kotla Mubarakpur. Two of the accused have been arrested while one is still absconding, said the police.

Deputy Commissioner of Police (South) Vijay Kumar said that Pranay Pradhan, who works as a chef in a Khan Market restaurant, was allegedly assaulted by three men: Vishal, Yogesh alias Ju di (19) and Saurav alias Nalla (23), on Saturday. Yogesh and Saurav have been arrested.

The incident happened around 2 a.m. when Mr. Pradhan and his friends Ganesh, Laxmi, Leena and Nitish Shankar, were walking to their residence in Rishi Nagar after attending a friend's birthday party.

"When we reached Subhash Gali, three men were sitting there and they appeared to be drunk. We were talking among ourselves and they asked 'Why are you talking in English?' and started quarreling. They thought we had said something about them," said Ganesh, who is from Darjeeling and works as a cashier in a Khan Market restaurant.

The group told them that they live nearby and were not talking about the accused, but the men did not listen and allegedly started attacking the group.

"They hit Leena and Laxmi and abused them. Then they picked up a wooden plank and asked us to leave. When Pranay tried to talk to them, two of the men caught hold of Pranay and one attacked him with the wooden plank," said Mr. Shankar.

Mr. Pradhan, who was bleeding from the head, was rushed to Safdarjung Hospital by his friends. He is said to be in a critical state.

"We come here [Delhi] to work. We do not feel safe in Kotla Mubarakpur... or this city," added Mr. Shankar.

'No separate police station to deal with power thefts'

The Delhi government had submitted that a separate staff could be created within the District Investigation Unit of the police.

Delhi govt. names AAP leaders for DMRC board

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

The Delhi government has nominated four representatives, including AAP leaders Raghav Chadha and Atishi, to be appointed to the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation's board of directors, sources said.

This is the first time that non-bureaucrats have been nominated by the government.

Delhi Dialogue and Development Commission vice-chairman Jasmine Shah and AAP MP N.D. Gupta's son Naveen Gupta are the two others nominated by Transport Minister Kailash Gahlot as the government's representatives, a top official said.

The board comprises 17 members, including five each from the Centre and the Delhi government. "Currently, DMRC MD Manu Singh, and former finance secretary Ramesh Chandra are serving as Delhi government nominees," a source said.

Mr. Gahlot did not respond to messages and phone calls. In his July 13 communication to the DMRC, the Minister did not specify why it nominated four persons when only three posts of directors are vacant. "It is not clear whether they wish to remove Mr. Singh or Mr. Chandra," the source said.

The move comes at a time when the AAP government's scheme for providing free ride to women in public buses and metro trains is taking shape.

The issue of free ride to women in metro trains is yet to be resolved as the DMRC has sought eight months to implement it while the AAP government wants it to be implemented before the Assembly polls scheduled early next year.

What if hospitals hike charges like airlines, HC asks DGCA

Criticises practice of carriers levying exorbitant airfares in adverse situations

SOIBAM ROCKY SINGH
NEW DELHI

Which institutions other than airlines encash on the difficulties of the public, the Delhi High Court asked the Directorate General of Civil Aviation on Tuesday, referring to the practice of airlines hiking price of tickets when road and rail services are affected.

The court's sharp comment came while hearing a couple of public interest petitions highlighting the arbitrary and exorbitant price of air tickets during emergency situations.

"Name any other institution, it may be hospitals, schools anything, which behaves like airlines. Are there any other institutions which are encashing on the difficulties of the public at large. Who are encashing on the negative situation," asked a Bench of Chief Justice D.N. Patel and C. Hari Shankar.

Final hearing in Nov.

"Think about it and answer," the Bench told the counsel for DGCA before posting the case for final hearing in November.

The Bench further reminded the counsel, "What will happen if hospitals start charging extra during the time of seasonal diseases? What will happen if medicines are being sold at an increased rate?"

The Bench's remarks came after the DGCA counsel said that airfares fixation does not fall within the regulator's ambit.

"We cannot interfere in pricing of airfares. We are only regulating the safety and security of the airlines," the DGCA's counsel submitted.

One of the petitions, filed by advocate Amit Sahni, urged the court to direct the authorities to frame "guidelines so as to put a cap on airfares and prevent private airlines from charging arbitrarily, irrationally and exorbitantly for flights".

Mr. Sahni's petition cited the 2016 Jat agitation in Haryana, during which private airlines allegedly charged exorbitant airfares from passengers.

The other petition was filed by activist Bejon Kumar Misra seeking direction to the Civil Aviation Ministry and the DGCA to ensure refunds or provide alternative travel mode to passengers who had booked tickets with the Jet Airways before it shut all domestic and international flights.

Denied admission, schoolgirl moves HC

Govt. schools cited overage as reason

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

A 14-year-old girl from Nagaland, who recently shifted to Delhi, has moved the High Court here as she has not been able to secure admission in any local government school since she has become overage for Class VI by two months during the transfer period.

The academic season in Nagaland starts and ends between January and December, while in Delhi it starts in April and ends in March.

Mr. Aggarwal argued that right to education is a fundamental right at all levels and not only confined to upto Class VIII or the age of 14.

"The respondents [Delhi government] are under constitutional as well as statutory obligations arising out of Articles 21 and 21-A of the Constitution, Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act 2009 and Delhi School Education Act 1973, to grant admission to the petitioner in Class VI," the petition said which could come up for hearing later this week.

Academic season
Advocate Ashok Aggarwal, representing the girl, said that though she completed her Class V in December 2018, for admission in Delhi government school she had to wait till April 2019 when the academic session starts.

Mr. Aggarwal said her parents have been regularly approaching their neighbourhood school, Government Co-ed Middle School, Vasant Vihar. He said the school has denied admission to the girl saying she has crossed 14 years of age on May 31, 2019 and hence she is not entitled to admission in any class in any government school in Delhi.

Mary Karki was earlier living with her maternal grandparents in Nagaland, while her parents have been living and working in Delhi for the last eight years. She studied in a local school in Jalukie Town, Peren in Nagaland till Class V. After completing Class V in December 2018, she started living with her parents in Delhi.

HC seeks govt. reply on plea to link property to Aadhaar

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

The Delhi High Court on Tuesday sought response from the Centre and the AAP government on a plea seeking to link movable and immovable property documents of citizens with their Aadhaar number to curb corruption, black money generation and 'benami' transactions.

Petitioner advocate and BJP leader Ashwini Upadhyay said it is the duty of the State to take steps to curb corruption and seize 'benami' properties made by illegal means to give a strong message that the government is determined to fight against corruption and black money generation.

"If government links property with Aadhaar, it will lead to an increment of 2% in annual growth. It will clean our electoral process, which is dominated by black money and be-nami transaction and thrives on a cycle of large black investments, capture of power through foul means, use of political strength to amass private wealth, all with disdain of the citizen," the plea said.

The HC Bench has posted the case for further hearing on October 15.

In a separate plea filed by Mr. Upadhyay, the HC directed the Election Commission to decide within eight weeks the representation for taking steps to link voter ID with Aadhaar to curtail bogus and duplicate voting in polls.

HC verdict in decade-old rape, murder case today

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

PANAJI

The High Court of Bombay at Goa will on Wednesday pronounce its verdict in the death and rape case of a British teenager a decade ago. The incident had made headlines worldwide.

The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) has charged two men, Samung D'Souza and Placido Carvalho, with death and rape of the girl, who was then 15-year-old, when she was holidaying in Goa along with her family.

Her bruised semi-nude body was found at the Anjuna beach on February 18, 2008. Advocate Vikram Varma, representing the victim's mother, on Tuesday confirmed that the verdict is scheduled to be pronounced on Wednesday.

The matter was heard by a Division Bench comprising Justices R.D. Dhanuka and Prithviraj Chavan.

Eye on elections, BJP gets new heads for State, Mumbai

Chandrakant Patil is Maharashtra unit president, Lodha to take charge of city

MUMBAI

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) made major changes to its organisational structure on Tuesday by appointing Revenue Minister Chandrakant Patil as head of the State unit of the party.

It also appointed Malabar Hill MLA and founder of the real estate Lodha Group, Mangal Prabhat Lodha, as the Mumbai unit chief in place of Ashish Shelar, who has been inducted into the government as a Cabinet Minister.

Mr. Patil replaces Raosaheb Danve, who has been inducted into the Union Cabinet in the second term of the Narendra Modi-led government at the Centre. Announcing the appointment of the two leaders, party national secretary Arun Singh said the changes have been approved by party president

Amit Shah. "The appointments are from immediate effect," Mr. Singh said on Tuesday.

Senior leaders said as per party rules, one can not hold the same term for two years. It was with this in mind that Mr. Danve met the Prime Minister in New Delhi and requested for a change of guard earlier this month. Mr. Danve is believed to have told Mr. Modi it would be difficult for him to juggle the responsibilities of State chief along with that of the Union minister in the run-up to the elections in Maharashtra.

"We have some very capable leaders in our party and they can perhaps come forward to take this responsibility," he said.

ficult for him to juggle the responsibilities of State chief along with that of the Union minister in the run-up to the elections in Maharashtra.

"We have some very capable leaders in our party and they can perhaps come forward to take this responsibility," he said.

Mr. Danve was appointed State party chief in 2015 and has been instrumental in the BJP expanding its base across the rural hinterland. "The BJP has since captured 25,000 gram sabhas, 23 Members of Parliament (MPs) and 18 corporations across rural Maharashtra. We have only managed to do so under the able leadership and guidance of the PM and Mr. Shah," he said.

Mr. Patil has been Cabinet Minister since July 2016, handling the Revenue, Relief and Rehabilitation and Public Works department (PWD). A prominent member of the BJP, he is also the Guardian Minister of Kolhapur and Pune districts.

Speaking on his appointment Mr. Lodha said, "The party has entrusted me with a major responsibility and I plan to fulfil it diligently. I would do that keeping in mind Prime Minister Narendra Modi's slogan Sabka Saath, Sabka Vikas and Sabka Vishwas."

Banks disburse just 30% loans this kharif season

Delay in sowing season, crop loan waiver could be the reasons

ALOK DESHPANDE

MUMBAI

Sowing for this year's kharif season is already in progress, but banks in Maharashtra have achieved only 30% of the target of kharif crop loan disbursement.

Despite repeated warnings from Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, nationalised and commercial banks have failed to speed up crop loan disbursement as they have achieved only 17% and 18% of the target respectively. District Central Cooperative Banks (DCCBs) have till date achieved 58% of loan disbursement.

According to data available with The Hindu, the target of ₹43,844 crore set by the State Level Bankers' Committee seems far from being achieved as banks have managed to disburse just ₹12,972 crore. Nationalised banks were given a target of ₹30,778 crore, of which they have managed to disburse only ₹5,331 crore.

The target given to commercial banks was ₹27,918 crore, out of which only ₹4,899 crore has been disbursed.

Last year, loan disbursement was 54%, even though demand for crop loans diminished due to drought.

DCCBs had disbursed 60% of loans while the remaining banks achieved 50% of the target.

Following the kharif review meeting in June, Mr. Fadnavis had said, "The demand for crop loans was less last year owing to drought. This year, the demand is likely to increase, but banks cannot disburse to those accounts," he said.

Agriculture Minister Anil Bonde on Tuesday said the government will conduct cloud seeding experiments in three districts and is waiting for instructions from the India Meteorological Department. "Many parts of the State have yet not received rains and this experiment is being done to overcome the problem," he said.

Meanwhile, ruling coalition partner Shiv Sena will hold a protest rally in Bandra Kurla Complex against insurance companies, demanding they disburse the amount that farmers claim.

100 kg meat seized, suspected to be beef

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Police on Tuesday seized 100-kg red meat, suspected to be beef, from a 30-year-old man in Akola, an official said.

The children were rushed to a nearby government hospital where two of them – Azim Shaikh (3) and Adil Sheikh Jamil (5) – were declared dead, he said.

The third one, a five-year-old girl, was found alive and is admitted to the same hospital where her condition was reported to be serious, he said. The police suspect the children saw the car with its doors open and climbed in.

Police raided a place on Lohara village road on a tip-off and seized the meat from one Shaikh Imran Shaikh Malang, a local official said. # Raja Dhale, a Panther no more

Founded Dalit Panther in 1972 for Dalits to raise their voice

ALOK DESHPANDE

MUMBAI

Raja Dhale, one of the founders of the radical outfit Dalit Panther, passed away at his residence in Vikhroli on Tuesday morning. He was 78.

Family sources said Dhale fell after he got up this morning. He was taken to a nearby hospital where doctors declared him dead. The last rites will be performed at Chaityabhoomi in Dadar area on Wednesday.

Hailing from Sangli district, Dhale along with Sahitya Akademi award winner late Namdeo Dhasal, JV Pawar and others, in 1972 founded Dalit Panther, a youth-based organisation inspired by the Black Panther outfit of African Americans in the U.S., with an aim to raise the voice of Dalits more aggressively in the State.

Dhale's aggressive writing, audacious nature to question those in authority, and connect with the masses created a stir across the State and soon Dalit Panther began to be considered as a major force to reckon with in the struggle for equal rights to Dalits, women and oppressed sections of the society.

His article 'Black Independence Day,' in Marathi magazine Sadhana on August 15, 1972, where he questioned whether the atrocities on a Dalit woman are of lesser concern than the insult of the national flag, raised a storm in Maharashtra. Apart from his writings on atrocities against Dalits, he wrote poems for children, articles on literature, analytical pieces and books on Buddhism.

He parted ways with Dhale over ideological differences claiming that the manifesto of Dalit Panther was communist in nature.

"Dhale was a principled and well-studied individual in the Ambedkarite movement. Dalit Panther was a platform to society's oppressed and depressed sections and it remains one of the most important chapters of country's political history," said Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis.

Union Minister of State for Social Justice and RPI(A) chief Ramdas Athawale expressed grief over his demise. "Dhale brought me into this organisation (Dalit Panther) and mentored me. His death is a personal loss for me," Mr Athawale said.

The Maharashtra Congress working president Nitin Raut said Dhale's contribution to the Ambedkarite movement can never be forgotten. "He worked to raise an Ambedkarite organisation which could take the difficulties head on. The workers he created in his lifetime are there even today across different fields," said Mr. Raut.

One more night of wait for Karnataka MLAs in resorts

H.D. Kumaraswamy to move confidence motion tomorrow

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

It is one more night of uncertain wait for all the political parties in Karnataka, with the Supreme Court reserving for Wednesday morning its order on the plea of 15 Congress and JD(S) MLAs who have sought that their resignations from the Assembly be accepted.

The ruling coalition partners as well as the Opposition BJP have stationed their MLAs in different resorts on the outskirts of Bengaluru. Rebel MLAs who have resigned and are awaiting their acceptance, meanwhile, continue to stay in a Mumbai hotel.

The Supreme Court on Tuesday heard the case of the lawmakers whose resignations, if accepted, will leave the government in a minority. Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy is set to move a confidence motion on Thursday.

Hope against odds

Against all odds, Janata Dal (Secular) leaders remained hopeful of the survival of the government, said sources in the party. A senior leader said the party was hoping one of the three rebels would return to the party fold and also some from the Congress.

The party is expecting a "positive development" from the Supreme Court and at the Speaker's office too. Fearing poaching of more party MLAs, currently lodged in a city hotel, the Congress on Tuesday moved its law-makers to a private resort on the outskirts of Bengaluru. A total of 76 legislators, including MLCs, are provided accommodation in the resort, sources told The Hindu.

"We are keenly awaiting the ruling of the Supreme Court. Our next plan of action will be only after the order on Wednesday," said a Congress leader.

The Opposition BJP leaders, according to sources, are not worried as the party thinks that it is in an advantageous position in terms of numbers, irrespective of the stand to be taken by the Supreme Court.

The BJP leaders are reportedly in touch with a slew of legal experts and most of them are said to have been of the view that the party's prospects may not be affected.

Meanwhile, party State president B.S. Yeddyurappa spent the day with party legislators at a resort in Yelahanka. He even played cricket with them and engaged them in informal conversation.

Governor asks Kerala VC for explanation on answer sheets

Sheaves of papers, seal were seized from SFI leader's house, college union

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

Governor P. Sathasivam on Tuesday ordered the Vice-Chancellor, Kerala University (KU), to urgently file a report on the seizure of answer sheets from the house of a Students' Federation of India (SFI) leader on Sunday.

The Cantonment police here had stumbled upon the answer sheets, purportedly validated by the KU, when they searched the house of Sivarenjith.

The police had named the undergraduate as the prime suspect in the near-fatal stabbing of a college-mate and SFI activist Akhil during class hours at University College here last Friday.

Investigators had also found a seal of the Director of Physical Education of Kerala University, at Sivarenjith's room.

The seizure of 83 answer sheet bundles from the SFI leader's house at Attukal closely followed by the discovery of more sheaves of answer sheets from the University College room, which is controlled by the SFI campus unit, raised serious questions about the credibility of examinations held at the institution.

Principals complained
The Governor's move follows public statements by former college principals who claimed that they had reported widespread examination malpractices in University College by SFI leaders to the KU repeatedly, but to no avail.

They cited partisan teachers, lack of a robust Parent-Teacher Association, absence of rival student outfits and a delinquent subculture that demanded total deference from students to the SFI, as reasons that had rendered faculty members and invigilators helpless.

The police said the illegal diversion of answer sheets to politically influential leaders of the SFI pointed to active connivance on the part of college insiders.

Pandemonium in Andhra Pradesh Assembly

VIJAYAWADA

Pandemonium prevailed in the Andhra Pradesh Assembly over unparliamentary words allegedly used by Information and Public Relations (I&PR) Minister Perini Venkatramaiyah (Nani) against TDP MLA K. Atchannaiaud.

At one point, the Speaker said it would be difficult to run the House if the pandemonium continued. Intervening, Mr. Venkatramaiyah clarified that he merely said that the Tekkali constituency electorate would feel guilty during question hour on Tuesday.

Speaker Tammineni Sitaram's repeated pleas for order went unheeded with YSRCP and TDP members sticking to their guns.

The House was in disorder for quite some time as the treasury and Opposition benches blamed each other for electing Mr. Atchannaiaud. But the TDP members alleged that the Minister used abusive language while addressing Mr. Atchannaiaud.

Responding to it, the Minister urged the Speaker to verify the records, and said he was ready to apologise if he committed a mistake.

Mr. Sitaram said that the records would be verified and unparliamentary words, if any, would be expunged.

The Speaker took objection to Mr. Atchannaiaud's remark that he would read out whatever the Chair says.

Stating that he was behaving in a dignified manner in the House, the TDP member said he was being targeted as he belonged to the Backward Classes. Intervening, Finance and Legislative Affairs Minister Buggana Rajendranath Reddy pointed out that Mr. Atchannaiaud had used offensive language in the previous Assembly.

Baig moves HC against 'illegal detention' by SIT

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

Shivajinagar MLA R. Roshan Baig on Tuesday moved the Karnataka High Court stating that he was taken into "illegal captivity" by the Special Investigation Team (SIT) on Monday to allegedly serve the "purpose of the ruling party to coerce him to support the government during the coming floor test even though he had submitted his resignation on July 11 itself."

Mr. Baig was detained by the SIT from Kempegowda International Airport on Monday when he was on his way to board a flight to Pune. It has been claimed in the petition that the officers of the SIT "suddenly attacked" him in a high-handed manner at the airport and took him into "illegal captivity" stating that he is required for an inquiry into the IMA scam case, though the SIT itself had given him time till July 19 to appear as a witness in the case.

Faults TDP govt. on move to auction it

STAFF REPORTER

The Andhra Pradesh government will order a vigilance inquiry into the controversial sale of the Sadavarthi Satram (choultry) land in Chennai, which had rocked the State during the TDP government.

The government is contemplating an inquiry into the issue by a senior officer. The inquiry report will be placed on the table of the House in three months. Action will be taken against the guilty officials, if any, according to Endowments Minister Vellampalli Srinivasa Rao.

He was replying to a question raised by Mangalagiri MLA Alla Ramakrishna Reddy during the question hour on Tuesday.

The MLA said the land, originally over 471 acres, had been donated by the descendants of the last ruler of Amaravati, Raja Vasireddy Venkata Naidu, to the Sadavarthi Trust for providing facilities such as education for the poor in 1881. With no proper care, much of it had been encroached upon, leaving 83.11 acres, the Minister said.

Tenders not invited'
The previous government had decided to hand over the land for a pittance to an individual though the market value was very high, the Minister alleged. The upset price was fixed at ₹50 lakh per acre while the market value was ₹6 crore.

Also, the government did not follow due procedures and e-tenders were not invited. An Endowments Department official was transferred for pointing out the market value, the Minister said.

23 foreigners staying illegally in Hyderabad identified

They will be given the option to regularise their overstays

HYDERABAD

In an operation early on Tuesday, 23 foreigners had been identified as overstaying or staying without valid documents in Hyderabad. The joint operation was taken up by the Hyderabad police and the Foreigner Regional Registration Office (FRRO).

Hyderabad Police Commissioner Anjan Kumar said some of the 23 persons, including children, were from Somalia, Sudan and Yemen.

Visa, passport and other relevant documents of foreigners were checked during this operation which was conducted at Banjara Hills, Golconda, Asifnagar, Osmania University, Amberpet, Chikdally, Chandrayangutta and other locations. A total of around 74 people were questioned.

This exercise was taken up a week after the police had collected biometrics from around 65 foreigners as part of the drive.

The Police Commissioner clarified that nobody was targeted and as per rules, it was the duty of the police to check foreigners, their documents and their validity. "Hyderabad is a metropolitan city. It always welcomes people from other countries for business, tourism and studies, but as per rules and procedure," he said.

BDL going strong with missile orders for ₹8,000 crore

We plan to make third-generation missiles soon, says CMD Siddharth Mishra

HYDERABAD

Bharat Dynamics Limited (BDL), celebrating its golden jubilee this year, has orders worth ₹8,000 crore for making various missiles for the Armed Forces to be delivered within the next five years.

Orders are expected to increase to ₹25,000 crore in the next four-five years, even as BDL ramps up the production of next-generation missiles.

Pact with IIIT

Working under the Ministry of Defence, BDL has also entered into a pact with International Institute of Information Technology-Hyderabad for making use of artificial intelligence in the development of systems and products. Further, it would be tying up with T-Hub for developing an ecosystem for start-ups to solve problems through hackathons, said Chairman and Managing Director Commodore (Retired) Siddharth Mishra on Tuesday.

Addressing a press conference on the institute's premises at Kanchanbagh, Mr. Mishra said BDL has also commenced exports, and has just completed an order for the first consignment of missiles to a "friendly country", with more orders in the pipeline.

BDL is game for more exports depending on the demand, and permissions obtained from the government of India.

Established this day in 1970 as a manufacturing base of guided missiles and allied defence equipment to meet the Indian Armed Forces' requirements, BDL began work with the Anti-Tank Guided Missile (ATGM) SS11B1 under technical collaboration with Aerospatiale of France. BDL now works in partnership with the Defence Research and Development Organisation (DRDO) and the Armed Forces in making the latest missile systems.

The company currently makes ATGMs, Akash surface-to-air missiles, torpedoes, seeker-based multi-role air defence missile or the MRSAM (medium-range surface-to-air missile) being developed by the DRDO, IAI (Israel) and others. It has also been in the process of collaborating with various original equipment manufacturers for technology transfers for next-generation missiles.

A listed firm, BDL had a turnover of ₹4,586 crore in 2017-18, up from ₹3,069 crore the previous year.

Ready for action: Akash, a surface-to-air missile, manufactured by Bharat Dynamics Limited to meet the requirement of the Armed Forces. ■ SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

Heavy rain in Nepal causes floods in Bihar, over 25 lakh hit

Kosi, Bagmati and Mahananda rivers in spate, says CM

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

PATNA
Unusually torrential rainfall in catchment areas in Nepal and subsequent massive discharge of water in rivers led to flash floods in Bihar, Chief Minister Nitish Kumar told the State Assembly on Tuesday. A total of 25.72 lakh people have been affected by the natural calamity so far, he said.

In a statement, Mr. Kumar said floods normally struck north Bihar in August or sometimes in September, but this time they came a month earlier primarily because of unusually heavy rainfall in the Terai region of the neighbouring country.

As a result, several rivers in Bihar like Kosi, Bagmati and Mahananda have been in spate, the Chief Minister said in the House.

Twelve districts have been affected by the floods, the Chief Minister added.

45 cows seized from smugglers die in Tripura

'Were kept in the open due to lack of space'

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

AGARTALA

At least 45 cows, seized by the Border Security Force while being smuggled to neighbouring Bangladesh, died due to alleged neglect at a cow shelter run by an NGO in Tripura.

The in-charge of the cow shelter at Devipur in Sipajala district, said the cows died of "hyperthermia" as they were kept in open due to paucity of space and there were incessant rains over the last six days.

The deaths took place during last three days starting from Sunday, officials said.

At present, 700 cattle are lodged in the 'gaushala', cow shelter in-charge Joshua Antony said on Tuesday.

The cow shelter was constructed by a Delhi-based NGO on May 14 last following an agreement with the Tripura government.

She said 45 cows died in last three days as they were under open sky and drenched in rainwater.

"There were incessant rains for the last six days and the 45 cows were under an open sky, drenched in rains and died due to hyperthermia," she said.

Defence Ministry suspends dealings with Swiss company

Ties with the firm severed following charges of corruption

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI

The Defence Ministry has suspended business dealings with Pilatus of Switzerland for a year, over allegations of corruption in the supply of Basic Trainer Aircraft (BTA) for the Indian Air Force (IAF).

"Business dealings with the firm will remain suspended for a period of one year for violation of article 6.6 of the Pre Contract Integrity Pact (PCIP) and ongoing investigation by the CBI, Delhi Police, Enforcement Aircraft Limited," the Ministry said in a notification.

IAF operates 75 PC-7 MKII trainer aircraft procured under a $532 million deal with Pilatus in 2012. The Defence Ministry issued a show cause notice to the company in January 2017 following allegations of corruption, after which Pilatus admitted having engaged the services of Offsets India Solutions (OIS), owned by fugitive arms dealer Sanjay Bhandari, and paying it at least 1 million Swiss francs in 2010 in connection with the trainer deal.

Monitor biomedical waste management: NGT

Asks States to set up common treatment and disposal facilities, if not done yet

STAFF REPORTER

NEW DELHI

The National Green Tribunal (NGT) has directed all States and Union Territories to furnish a report on the amount of biomedical waste generated and asked them to set up common treatment and disposal facilities, if not done yet.

A Bench headed by NGT

Chairperson Justice Adarsh Kumar Goel directed the District Magistrates across States to monitor compliance with the biomedical waste management rules twice a month.

Stating that a District Environment Plan needs to be in place across the country, the green panel said the plan can be operated by district committees comprising representatives from the respective panchayats, local bodies, regional officers and State pollution control boards.

"We place on record our disapproval of the inaction of States in furnishing the inventory studies as well as for incomplete inventories. The States which have not yet constituted advisory committees may also do so within two months. The action plans and their execution must be carried out having regard to the key performance indicators," the Bench said.

It warned States that environmental compensation will be imposed if the orders are not complied with.

Farmers' group wants drought norms revised

Scrap drought rules of 2016, says AIKS

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI

The All India Kisan Sabha (AIKS) on Tuesday demanded that the Centre scrap the Manual for Drought Management, 2016, which had changed the way that droughts are declared and the circumstances under which Central help can be sought by affected States.

Latest data from the India Meteorological Department show over half the country's land area still faces rainfall deficits of more than 20% this monsoon season. Saurashtra and Kutch are the worst affected region, with a 60% deficit as of June 16, followed by Gangetic West Bengal, parts of Rajasthan, Haryana and Kerala. Across the Deccan peninsula – in Marathwada, Vidarbha, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana and Tamil Nadu – the deficits hover in the 30-35% range.

At the All India Kisan Council meeting over this weekend, our leaders from many parts of the country all spoke of how drought is affecting farmers in their areas," said Vijoo Krishnan, AIKS joint secretary. "Rainfall is low, but even in areas where the deficit may not be high now, the rain has come late, affecting the sowing and growing of crops," he added.

Mr. Krishnan asserted that before 2016, it was considered a drought year in a particular area if there was deficient rainfall and the crop yield was less than 50% of the average of the previous 10 years.

However, the Manual for conditions using five indica-

Chinese check

China's famed model of growth is under pressure due to fall in exports and investment

The Chinese economy is seeing the first signs of trouble after long years of sustained growth that rode on cheap labour and high volumes of exports. Data released by the National Bureau of Statistics on Monday revealed that the economy grew by 6.2% in the second quarter, its slowest pace in 27 years. This is in contrast to the growth rates of 6.4% and 6.6% reported for the first quarter and the full year of 2018, respectively. The faltering growth rate was due to a slump in exports in June amidst China's ongoing trade war with the United States and the downturn witnessed by sectors such as housing construction, where investor sentiments play a major role. Many economists believe that the worst may not yet be over for China and that economic growth could further worsen in the coming quarters. But just as growth seems to be faltering, the latest growth figures also showed that the retail sales and industrial output components of the growth numbers witnessed steady growth, suggesting that domestic demand may be compensating for the dropping appetite for Chinese exports weighed down by high tariffs. But with China still heavily reliant on exports and its trade war with the U.S. showing no signs of coming to an end, the pressure on growth is likely to remain for some more time. So the Chinese government, which has tried to boost the economy through measures such as tax cuts, increased public spending and a relaxation in bank reserve requirements to encourage banks to increase lending, will hope that domestic demand for its goods will hold up the economy.

China's quarterly GDP numbers, while useful in many ways, don't reveal very much about the underlying challenges facing the country. One is the need to improve the credibility of data released by the Chinese government. An even larger challenge is the urgent need to restructure the Chinese economy from one that is driven heavily by state-led investment and exports to one that is driven primarily by market forces. The high-growth years of the Chinese economy were made possible by the huge amount of liquidity provided by the Chinese state and the large and affordable workforce that helped build China into an export powerhouse. But now, with China's tried and tested growth model facing the threat of getting derailed as the export and investment boom comes to an end, the Chinese will have to build a more sustainable model, or forfeit hopes of double-digit economic growth in the future. As of now, there are no signs to suggest that the Chinese authorities are looking at implementing deep-seated structural reforms reminiscent of its early decades of liberalisation that can help fundamentally restructure the economy. There might not be a need for radical macroeconomic changes, but China's economic troubles will not go away unless the government boosts domestic consumption and reduces the reliance on exports.

One for the ages

Alongside Federer and Nadal, Djokovic is ensuring tennis is at its competitive best

No player in the last decade has so thrillingly disrupted the Roger Federer-Rafael Nadal binary quite like World No.1 Novak Djokovic. Back in 2008, when Federer and Nadal met at Wimbledon in that iconic final, the contest had a definitive feel to it – to crown that era's best. The two met again this year, eleven summers since, just to earn the right to challenge Djokovic. Such has been the Serb's excellence that in the time between the two Federer-Nadal meetings, he increased his Grand Slam count from one to 15. Sunday's pulsating five-set victory over Federer brought him his fifth Wimbledon to put him just two shy of Nadal (18) and four behind Federer (20) in the all-time list. At times, his on-court demeanour and his grinding style of tennis have detracted from the perception of his success. To not celebrate his greatness, however, would be a severe disservice. Nadal and Federer are still ranked two and three in the world and are playing at near-peak levels. But even at their best, Djokovic has left them short of breath. In fact, starting from the 2011 Australian Open – his second Major – Djokovic has triumphed at nearly every second slam he has entered (15 of 34). Federer in the same period has accumulated four and Nadal nine, of which seven have come at the French Open. Remarkably, Djokovic has vanquished either Federer or Nadal in 12 of the 16 slams he has won. Eight of those victories have come in finals.

That Federer, just three weeks shy of turning 38, came within one stroke of upstaging Djokovic is credit to the Swiss's genius. Even in a career as storied as his, it would have been more than just a normal data point if he had clinched his ninth Wimbledon by beating Nadal and Djokovic – two of his greatest rivals – back-to-back. It is a testament to Djokovic's supreme mental strength that he did not flinch, even under extreme pressure, and despite not being the better player on the day. When he started out, Djokovic was among the most emotionally fragile. Questions abounded as recently as last July when he slipped outside the top-20. But by securing four of the past five Majors, he has truly rediscovered the mind of a champion. Among women, it was the turn of Simona Halep to display similar powers, by adding Wimbledon to her 2018 French Open win. There was a feeling that following her breakthrough in Paris she had suffered a meltdown, as she had not progressed beyond the quarter-finals at any Major since then. However, the way she mowed down one formidable opponent after another at SW19, including the legendary Serena Williams in the final for the loss of just four games, was enough proof of her strong mental make-up.

Making sense of Karnataka's politics

Castes and communities are the key players, where gain to one's community becomes an overriding consideration

VALERIAN RODRIGUES

A distinct genre of political theatrics in which elected representatives play 'hide and seek' in plush resorts to escape poaching by their very own and rival party leaders is currently playing out in Karnataka. While the dramatis personae, the layout of the plot, the resources deployed, and the message conveyed are distinct this round, this mode of doing politics is not new to the State.

In fact, following the State elections last year, leaders of the ruling coalition enacted a similar play almost 14 months ago by shepherding the elected representatives of their respective parties to safe havens; this was done ostensibly to stop them from being poached by the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) which laid claim to power as the largest party in the House and needed a few more legislators to secure a majority.

The bare sketch

Such mimetic displays have not been rare in the past either. They make room for extended invention of sub-plots and even erasure of a few, often delving deep into the rich folklore Karnataka is known for. Analogical practices are there in other States too, although Karnataka can claim a certain expertise in this regard by now. While such theatrics may have tactical political purpose at times, the question to be asked is the purpose for which such a political tactic is employed; the bearing it has on electoral representation, and the affront such political means offer to nurture a democratic culture.

In Karnataka, there is a coalition government of the Indian National Congress and the Janata Dal (Secular), or JD(S). The Chief Minister, H.D. Kumaraswamy, is from the JD(S) that has 37 members, while its majority partner, the Congress, has 78 members in the 224-member House. While there are two independents, the BJP, which is in the opposition, has 105 members. From the beginning, the relationship between the coalition partners has been very uneasy, with the media constantly abuzz with rumours of a breakdown. On its part, the BJP has made umpteen attempts to wean away a few members from the coalition, widely termed 'Operation Kamala (lotus)'. After the Lok Sabha election, and the BJP's resounding victory where it got 25 Lok Sabha seats out of 28, the rumblings within the coalition have become louder; moving to the greener side, i.e. the BJP, has become more tempting for the fence-sitters.

A few days ago, there was drama when 16 members of the Assembly, three from the JD(S) and 13 of the Congress, most of them sheltered in a luxury hotel in Mumbai, announced that they had resigned from the Assembly. Two independents, who were made ministers earlier in order to retain them within the coalition fold, resigned from the cabinet and extended support to the BJP. The Speaker of the House, however, faulted the procedure adopted by 10 legislators to tender their resignations, dragging in the Supreme Court to decide its rectitude. While receiving these resignations afresh, following the court's directive, the Speaker stood his ground on ascertaining their constitutional and legal validity.

In Parliament, the Opposition accused the ruling BJP of employing unfair means to bring down an elected government. With the Karnataka government having decided to convene the Budget session, the coalition partners issued a whip to its members to attend, holding out the threat of disqualification for non-compliance. The Supreme Court was made to step in in order to decide the relative status of resignation and disqualification of elected members and their precedence, given their widely different political implications. On the floor of the Assembly, the Chief Minister announced that he would move a trust motion on his government, which has made the issue of status and precedence crucial to the ambitions and designs of the rebels, and also placing them in a quandary. The unfolding of these events has been laced with several subplots: lavish living, private jet-hops, invocation of divine help, political "attempts" to cajole the rebels to return to the party-fold, and a roughing up of party colleagues, and each party moving its Assembly members to well-secured and lavish resorts.

Disaffection within coalition

While the coalition government and the parties supporting them have targeted the BJP for attempting to pull down the government, the first group is primarily responsible for allowing disaffection within its fold to spread for three reasons.

First, for reasons known to itself, the Congress did not include the most important leaders from Northern Karnataka in the ministry for months; a small coterie of Vokkaliga leaders in the coalition from the erstwhile Mysore region have attempted to direct the course of political developments. The Lingayat-dominated northern region, already smarting under years of neglect and drought, has consolidated itself as a bloc to resist the encroaching dominance of its traditional rival, and has gravitated wholesale towards the BJP which has been nursing it for years. Second, the JD(S) with the Chief Minister at the helm and with the support of a section of the State Congress leadership, has systematically attempted to undercut the lucrative wheeler-dealer network that the Siddaramaiah government of the Congress (2013-18) had built – it involves mining, land, construction and transport – and which directed those resources to its henchmen. It led to interference in departments and transfer of employees which the ministers concerned regarded as their fiefdoms. It made Mr. Siddaramaiah, the pre-eminent leader of the Congress in the State, to blow hot and cold occasionally against the coalition.

Third, the Congress and JD(S) are traditional political rivals in the southern region of the State and over the years, a significant section of the Vokkaligas, the pronounced social base of the JD(S), have been attracted to the Hindutva agenda. The inability of the coalition to forge an overlapping voting base is what has led to its overwhelming defeat in the very region of its strength.

The data is telling. In the Assembly elections of April 2018, the BJP, the Congress and the JD(S) secured 36.34%, 38.14% and 18.3% of the voteshare respectively, while in the Lok Sabha elections, it was 51.4%, 31.88% and 9.67%, respectively. The disaffection has led a large number of Congressmen to question the utility of the coalition on grounds of sectarian loyalties, personal interests, and future electoral prospects; some of them with large interests at stake have decided to jump ship. The hand of the BJP has always been there with the bait and offering promises.

The disaffection mentioned above have little to do with represential logic, i.e., upholding the interests of one's constituency, striving to further the interests of the political community of the State, or even the objectives of one's own party. Due to a number of historical reasons, castes and communities are key players on the political scene in Karnataka. Hindutva has been attempting to fill this vacuum in recent years but has a very tentative hold still.

Personal gain, sectarianism

Even today, the elected representatives primarily consider themselves as members of castes and communities, and in the distribution of public resources, the gain to one's community becomes an overriding consideration. Therefore, elected representatives form a clique with a powerful leader with access to public resources, and strive to tilt the scales in their favour. Being elected as a member of the Legislature is often perceived as an entry point to seek other goodies such as a ministerial berth through which the member can channelise public resources for personal gain and to extend patronage. In the context of the weakening party leadership of coalition partners, since a representative may have to largely fend for himself or herself, the temptation to accumulate as much as possible during one's stint is seen as a mark of political common sense.

It is time Karnataka politics discovers not merely its egalitarian and pluralistic traditions and sets out to reconstruct its political architecture to reflect them. A public culture imbued by such a perspective may not eliminate all differences but there would be some yardsticks to hold elected representatives to accountability. But for the time being, it seems a mirage.

The wheels to a low-carbon transport system

It rests on accessing public service, choosing rapid transit over car driving and supporting electric vehicle transition

SOHAİL AHMAD &
FELIX CREUTZIG

Congested streets and polluted air are common experiences in India's metros, although the average Indian contributes only minuscule amounts of transport-related carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) emissions to global climate change. Patterns of road transport, however, diverge wildly between cities and districts. Delhi tops the charts and emissions are more than twice as high as other Indian megacities, such as Mumbai, Bengaluru or Ahmedabad.

Studies show that India's road transport emissions are small in global comparison but increasing exponentially. In fact, the Global Carbon Project reports that India's carbon emissions are rising more than two times as fast as the global rise in 2018. Globally, the transport sector accounts for a quarter of total emissions, out of which three quarters are from road transport. Reducing CO<sub>2</sub> emissions of road transport leverages multiple co-benefits, for example, improving air quality and increasing physical activity, which are critical for well-being, particularly in urban areas.

Climate action also requires an understanding of how emissions vary with spatial context. In India, we find in our new study (published in Environmental Research Letters), that income and urbanisation are the key determinants of travel distance and travel mode choice and, therefore, commuting emissions. The way cities are built and the design of public transit are critical for low-carbon mobility systems. The study is based on the most recent results of the Indian Census in 2011.

Average commuting emissions in high-emitting districts (Delhi) are 16 times higher than low-emitting districts (most districts in Bihar and Uttar Pradesh). Average per capita commuting emissions are highest for the most affluent districts, which are predominantly urban, and that heavily use four-wheelers for commuting. This is a surprising result, as in other parts of the world such as the United States, commuting emissions are low in urban areas but high in suburban or exurban settings. In contrast, average per capita commuting emissions are lowest for Indian districts that are poor, and commuting distances are short and rarely use three-wheelers.

Focus on well-being
Two policy implications follow. First, mayors and town planners should organise cities around public transport and cycling, thereby improving mobility for many, while limiting car use. Uptake of non-motorised transport emerges as a sweet spot of sustainable development, resulting in both lower emissions and better public health in cities. According to the recent National Family Health Survey (2015-16), nearly 30% of all men are overweight or obese in southwest Delhi, but only 25% in Thiruvananthapuram and 13% in Allahabad. These data correlate with high reliance of car use in Delhi and low demand for walking.

Another of our studies that investigates data from the India Human Development Survey shows that a 10% increase in cycling could lower lower chronic diseases such as diabetes and cardiovascular diseases for 0.3 million people, while also abating emissions. Car use, in contrast, correlates with higher rates of diabetes. Therefore, fuel price increases, congestion charges or parking management could be a strategy that improves the well-being of individuals living in urban areas. In contrast, fuel price increases would be detrimental in poorer rural areas, impairing mobility where there is a lack of alternatives.

Technology transition

Second, India should double down in its strategy to transition to electric two and three-wheelers. India is the third-largest market for automobiles; about 25 million internal combustion engines were sold in 2017, including about 20 million two-wheelers. A recent study reports that India has 1.5 million battery-powered three-wheeler rickshaws (over 300,000 e-rickshaws sold in 2018). In the coming years, experts judge that the electric three-wheeler market is expected to grow by at least 10% per year. In 2019, nearly 110,000 electric two-wheelers were also sold, and the annual growth rate may be above 40% per year.

The current statistics even suggest that electric three-wheelers and electric two-wheelers, rather than electric cars, will drive the electric vehicle market in India. Electric car sales are minuscule and even falling (dropping from 2,000 in 2017 to 1,200 in 2018). Consumers realise the practical advantages of lighter in weight two- and three-wheelers that require much smaller and less powerful batteries and are easily pluggable at home.

India is one of the world's largest producers and consumers in two- and three-wheelers and Indian companies can take a leading role in switching to electric vehicles. This will also help in transforming India's vision of 'Make in India'.

Compact cities improve accessibility and reduce emissions from transport and even the building sector. Most Indian cities are already very dense, with few benefits expected by further high-rise. City managers should ensure that existing urban areas provide short routes and fast access to schools, hospitals and jobs, otherwise, residents would be required to travel long distances. To achieve this aim, mayors and decision-makers need to rethink how to deliver basic services such as education and health. Building schools and hospitals matters especially for informal settlements and are critical in achieving low carbon development as well as improving the quality of life.

Providing access to public service, choosing rapid transit over car driving in cities and supporting the rise of electric two and three-wheelers will help drive India to a modern and low-carbon transport system fit for the 21st century.

103rd amendment

In M.R. Balaji (AIR 1963 SC 649), the Supreme Court made a significant observation by saying, "social backwardness is, in the ultimate analysis, the result of poverty". For the writer (Editorial page, "A test of law and justice", July 16) "to say that there cannot be reservation for the economically weaker sections of society unless they are socially backward" may not be wholly right. To say that reservation for the economically weaker sections goes against the basic structure of the Constitution is to ignore/dilute the significance of Article 14. The very purpose of reservation is to achieve equality as envisaged under Article 14. However, if the process of reservation gets over-heated so as to deprive the economically weaker sections a more proportionate share in the administration and access to opportunities, then it would be a violation of their fundamental rights. One has to see how reservation has worked to the detriment of economically weaker sections so that they don't become socially backward also.

In court

The resolution moved by the Rajasthan High Court advising advocates to refrain from addressing its judges as "My Lord" and "Your Lordship" must be encouraged across the judiciary. There were directions over a decade ago, to settle for "Your Honour", "Honourable Court" and "Sir", but it does not seem to have caught on. In fact, a little more is required to be done to maintain gender equality especially when female judges hold court as a single bench. Besides this, it would also be more appropriate if the use of archaic and colonial terms in law suits is also amended. For instance any petition filed in courts or judicial tribunals often resorts to the use of phrases such as "the petitioner/applicant most humbly sheweth that..."

Final outcome

New Zealand's Kane Williamson was all grace while fielding questions from the media. As the underdogs, the Kiwis deserve accolades and empathy for the way they handled the post-match situation, despite losing the final match to England and the unconvincing rules. It is heart-breaking to lose due to some extraneous reasons. The composure shown by Ben Stokes after reaching his 50 was in quiet contrast to the sword celebration by Ravindra Jadeja in the semi-finals. Players should realise that wild gestures sometimes take away the focus from the main target of winning a game. Finally, one hopes that with its victory, England is able to rejuvenate the game.

■ True fans of cricket will never accept the result of the ICC World Cup. Apart from

CORRECTIONS & CLARIFICATIONS:
A Sports page report headlined "DPR Korea downs Tajikistan" (some editions, July 16, 2019) erroneously said both Tajikistan and DPR Korea had six points from two wins and a draw. Actually it should be two wins and a loss for each team.

the umpiring errors, the odd rules made a mockery of the game and its intricacies. What if there was a tie in the number of boundaries? Would the ICC then use the criterion of the number of catches? One can go on adding all sorts of permutations and combinations. In the true spirit of the game, the ICC should revisit the result.

The many hurdles in proving citizenship

The brunt of the systemic problems of the National Register of Citizens is being borne by the poorest

KALPANA SHARMA

Apart from the floods in Assam, an annual event affecting thousands of families, another humanitarian crisis awaits the State this year. The date is already set for it. It is July 31.

On that day, the final list of the National Register of Citizens (NRC) will be released, the culmination of a fraught process conducted since 2015 at the urging of the Supreme Court, and monitored by it.

While reports of the many anomalies that dog the process of determining citizenship, including the constantly changing list of documents that are (or are not) accepted, are known, the sheer enormity of the crisis facing the State is yet to register in the rest of India.

Numbers alone do not indicate this. What is known today is that of the 32.9 million who have applied to be listed as "genuine" Indian citizens in the NRC, roughly 29 million have been accepted. The future of the four million excluded so far, a number that might reduce when the final list is published on July 31, provides the foundation for the impending human crisis awaiting Assam. Even if half of this number is excluded, we are looking at the future of two million stateless people.

What will happen to me and my family after July 31? That is the question that haunts hundreds of men and women as they wait hours in inclement weather, clutching plastic bags full of documents, to meet anyone willing to answer this question. This was the scene that confronted us as we travelled to three districts in Assam at the end of June.

The majority left out of the NRC so far are abjectly poor; many are unlettered. They cannot understand the legal complications of the process, nor do they have the money to hire legal help. As a result, thousands stand in danger of being declared "foreigners" even though they could be "genuine" Indian citizens.

Three categories
The people affected by this process of verification of citizenship fall into three different categories. Those labelled as 'D voters', or doubtful voters, were categorised as such when the electoral rolls were revised in 1997 and thereafter. Their names are excluded from the NRC unless they can establish their credentials before a Foreigner's Tribunal. There are currently just under 100 such tribunals in Assam. The opacity that surrounds the way decisions are made in these quasi-judicial courtrooms is a part of this larger crisis.

"The citizenship issue in Assam is layered and complex." Officials check documents at an NRC office in Dhubri, Assam in May. ■ AFP

In the second category are people who have been picked up by the police on suspicion of being illegal immigrants. The border police, present in every police station, picks up people, often poor workers in cities, fingerprints them, and then informs them in writing that they must appear before a Foreigner's Tribunal.

In the third category are those who have registered with the NRC, but have been excluded because there was a discrepancy in the documents they submitted. Two lists have been published so far: one with 4 million names last year and another with just over 0.1 million on June 26 this year. Their fate will be known on July 31.

In addition, there are people who have already been declared "foreigners" by the tribunals. In February 2019, the government informed the Supreme Court that of the 938 people in six detention centres, 823 had been declared foreigners. How long will they be held? Can they be deported? To which country? These questions remain unanswered. In this haze of numbers and judicial processes, the real and tragic stories of individuals often go unheard.

Left out

Take Anjali Das, 50, in Bijni, Chirang district. Dressed in a rust saree, Anjali cannot hide her anxiety. Her maternal home is in Jalpaiguri, West Bengal, where her father and brother still live. Anjali came to Assam in 1982 when she married. She has no birth certificate, like many in India. She has a school certificate that confirms she was a student up to Class 5 and gives her date of birth as June 1, 1969. She also has a certificate from the Panchayat and her father's Aadhaar card as proof that she is Indian. But this will not suffice. Anjali's name has been excluded from the NRC, the only one in her marital home.

Anjali is only one of thousands of married women who have been left out of the NRC for similar reasons. Although disaggregated data is not yet available, it is estimated that more than half of those excluded from the NRC are women like her. Then there are women who are struggling to understand why only some members of their families have been excluded. In Hanchari village in Morigaon district, Jamina Khatun pulls out a photocopy of the June 26 list of names excluded from the NRC. It has the names of her husband, her two sons, and her 11-year-old granddaughter. But not hers, or that of her daughter-in-law, Jamina's son, Nur Jamal Ali, was referred to the Foreigner's Tribunal based on a complaint by his landlord in Jorhat, where he worked as a construction labourer. As a result, Nur Jamal was finger-printed by the border police, sent a notice to appear before a Foreigner's Tribunal, and then declared a foreigner. His only daughter has also been excluded from the NRC.

After July 31, the focus will shift to the Foreigner's Tribunals. The State government plans to set up 200 by the end of this month and eventually 1,000, as all those excluded from the NRC will have to present themselves before these tribunals.

Expensive and time-consuming

Only the litigants and their lawyers know what happens within the four walls of these tribunals as neither the public nor the media are permitted there. I tried to get a peek into one in Guwahati. Foreigner's Tribunal Court Room 3, Kamrup Metro district, Guwahati, is located in a residential colony on the ground floor of a building. The small room is arranged like a courtroom. A white railing separates the podium on which the tribunal member sits from the litigants. The railing becomes a small witness stand at one end. The tribunal member has the help of an assistant who sits on the side. According to him, cases are heard simultaneously, stretching out to five days. But a lawyer tells a different story. The case he has come for began in March. It is still being heard in July.

This is the other problem. Poor people travel long distances to appear before these tribunals. Their cases stretch out over months. They have to spend on travel and lawyers' fees, unaffordable for most. If they give up, or cannot afford to make the journey, their cases will be judged "ex parte". In a statement in the Lok Sabha on July 2, the Minister of State for Home Affairs, G. Kishan Reddy, said that from 1985 to February 2019, 63,959 people had been declared foreigners in ex parte rulings.

The citizenship issue in Assam is layered and complex. It is not easy for people outside the State to understand the multiple threads. What is clear though is that the brunt of the systemic problems of establishing citizenship in this manner, and in such haste, is being borne disproportionately by the poorest.

Tapping the potential of communities to end AIDS

Success is achieved where policies and programmes focus on people, not diseases

GUNILLA CARLSSON

The UN Sustainable Development Goals include ensuring good health and well-being for all by 2030. This includes the commitment to end the AIDS epidemic. In many countries, continued access to HIV treatment and prevention options are reducing AIDS-related deaths and new HIV infections. But there are still too many countries where AIDS-related deaths and new infections are not decreasing fast. In fact, they are rising in some cases, though we know how to stop the virus. Why are some countries doing much better than others?

sion-makers to account.

By signing the 2016 UN Political Declaration on Ending AIDS, countries affirmed the critical role that communities play in advocacy, coordination of AIDS responses and service delivery. Moreover, they recognised that community responses to HIV must be scaled up. They committed to at least 30% of services being community-led by 2030. However, most countries are nowhere near reaching that commitment. And where investment in communities is most lacking, there is often weaker progress being made against HIV and other health threats.

Reliable partners

All over the world, communities are demonstrating time and again that they can, and do, deliver results. Since the beginning of the epidemic in India until now, communities have been the most trusted and reliable partners for the National AIDS Control Organization and the Joint UN Programme on HIV/AIDS. They are fully engaged in many aspects of the National AIDS Response, including prevention, care, support and treatment programmes. There are over 1,500 community-based organisations reaching out to key populations. In India, there are around 300 district-level networks of people living with HIV which are supporting treatment programmes through psychosocial support, treatment literacy and adherence counselling.

Our communities present us with a lot of untapped potential. Unleashing this is the key to gaining the momentum we need to make faster progress towards reaching UNAIDS Fast-Track targets. The more we invest in communities, the closer we get to ending the AIDS epidemic.

Rethinking KUSUM

If designed better and implemented effectively, the scheme could radically transform the irrigation economy

TAUSEEF SHAHIDI &amp; ABHISHEK JAIN

SUM proposes a 60% subsidy for the pumps, borne equally by the Centre and the States, and the remaining 40% will be the farmer's contribution – 10% as down payment and 30% through loans. This unilateral financing approach will exacerbate the inter-farmer disparity given the inequity in access to credit and repayment capacity between small and large farmers. A higher capital subsidy support to small and marginal farmers and long-term loans with interest subsidies for large and medium farmers would be a more economical and equitable alternative.

Prudence over populism

Fourth, polarising existing grid-connected pumps, as proposed under the scheme, needs a complete rethink. Existing grid-connected farmers, who have enjoyed power subsidies for decades, would receive the same financial support as that received by an off-grid farmer. In addition, they would earn regular income from the DISCOM on feeding surplus electricity, furthering the inequitable distribution of taxpayers' resources. Instead, the scheme should only provide Central government subsidy of up to 30% for solarisation, and use the proposed State support to incentivise DISCOMs to procure energy from the farmers.

Also, polarising grid-connected pumps must include replacement of the pump. Poor efficiency levels of the existing pumps would mean unnecessary oversizing of the solar panels and lesser available energy to feed into the grid. Moreover, instead of feeding surplus energy to the grid, solar pump capacity could be used to power post-harvesting processes, which complement the seasonal irrigation load and can enhance farm incomes through local value addition. Further, the injection of solar power by farmers would require the entire agriculture electricity line (feeder) to be energised throughout the daytime, including for those not having solarised pumps. This would aggravate DISCOMs' losses on such feeders. Instead, an effective alternative is to solarise the entire feeder through a reverse-bidding approach, and provide water-conservation-linked incentives to farmers as direct benefit transfer.

KUSUM should not woo a certain section of farmers with short-sighted objectives. If designed better and implemented effectively, it holds the potential to catapult the Indian irrigation economy from an era mired in perpetual subsidy, unreliable supply, and inequitable distribution of resources to a regime of affordable, reliable, and equitable access to energy and water.

FIFTY YEARS AGO JULY 17, 1969

Morarji Desai resigns

The Deputy Prime Minister, Mr. Morarji Desai, resigned in protest from the Central Cabinet to-day [July 16, New Delhi], when the Prime Minister, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, relieved him of the Finance portfolio and herself took it over in a surprise political move to hit back at the party bosses and reassert her supremacy in the wake of her latest set-back in the Congress Parliamentary Board over presidential candidature. This precipitate action by the Prime Minister has confronted the country with the most serious political crisis since Independence – with the Congress leadership at the Centre now so irreversibly divided and the ruling party clearly heading towards an internal trial of strength before Parliament meets on Monday [July 21]. Though Mrs. Gandhi has requested him to continue as Deputy Prime Minister with any portfolio other than Finance, Mr. Desai felt that his self-respect demanded that he should resign immediately to vindicate his position – and presumably fight it out in the Congress Parliamentary Party. But she was not accepting his resignation in haste.

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO JULY 17, 1919.

Indian States and Reform.

On the occasion of laying the foundation stone of a Council Hall at Jamnagar by the Maharaja of Alwar, a ceremonious durbar was held at which sardars, officers and local gentry were present. In requesting the Maharaja of Alwar to lay the foundation stone of the Hall, Jamsaheb Ranjit Singh said that he had according to the time-honoured culture of his Aryan ancestors instituted an advisory council composed of his subjects, whose advice and opinion he proposed to invite regularly on matters connected with social, industrial and economic progress of his subjects. In indicating the constitution of the advisory council His Highness said that they (Indian Princes) did not belong to a school that idolized democracy for democracy's sake and left but a thin line between anarchy and all-men-rule. They were advocates of popular rule in the sense that weighty, stable and reasoned public opinion should be at the back of strong, beneficent paternal Government. It was not difficult to work out a constitution that aims at securing the representation and advice of such interests as were stable, sound and trustworthy intellectually, commercially and otherwise.

SC moved for sample re-verification of NRC

Both the Centre and the State said the re-verification exercise should be conducted by Class I officers of the State government from other districts who have knowledge and experience of handling the process of enquiry/investigation. The applications further sought an order that the sample re-verification should be undertaken at a place different from where the NRC exercise happened. The Assam government agreed that this would cut out the possibility of local influences, bias/threat, etc.

"But why should we grant an extension?" asked the CJI even as Solicitor General Tushar Mehta pressed for an early hearing.

"We will have it on August 1 then," the CJI said. To this, Mr. Mehta said the last date of publication of NRC was July 31. "We will see," the CJI finally said.

The applications may be listed soon for hearing before a Special Bench of the CJI and Justice Rohinton Nariman.

The Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA), in its application, tried to impress upon the court the "unprecedented large scale of complexities" involved in the NRC process.

Impact social harmony' The Ministry informed the court that the NRC exercise had created apprehensions in the minds of the citizens and could very well impact social harmony, and law and order in the State.

"It is pertinent that the exercise of sample re-verification must necessarily follow before the publication of the final list," the application said.

The draft NRC list, published on July 30, 2018, had included 2,89,83,677 persons as Indian citizens but found 40,70,707 persons ineligible. The Centre said re-verification should be done for both inclusions and exclusions.

In its separate application to the court, Assam said that an "additional exclusion list" was issued on June 26, 2019. This list contained 1,02,463 names which had been earlier included in the draft NRC list.

Don't lay down limits of our jurisdiction: SC

Mr. Dhavan told the Chief Justice that this should not be viewed as a crossing of swords between the Supreme Court and the Karnataka Speaker.

"My Lord, this is not the Speaker versus the Court. This is Chief Minister versus somebody (Yeddyurappa) who wants to be Chief Minister by bringing down the present government. You should not have entertained this petition... your order (of July 11) asking the Speaker to decide on the resignations forthwith exceeded your jurisdiction," Mr. Dhavan told the court.

Mr. Singhvi countered that the current turmoil cannot be compared with the events leading to the formation of the Kumaraswamy government in 2018.

"At the time of the midnight hearing in May 2018, there was no Speaker, no government and no Assembly in Karnataka. The Supreme Court had ordered pro tem Speaker K.G. Boppanah to conduct a floor test because otherwise no government would have been formed in the State," Mr. Singhvi submitted. Mr. Dhavan said the Supreme Court should not come in the way of a proposed vote of confidence motion scheduled in the Assembly for July 18.

Mr. Singhvi said the Speaker should be allowed to take his final decision on the resignations in his own time. The court could test him after he takes a call.

"We are not restraining the Speaker in any way. What stopped him from accepting or rejecting these resignations on July 6 when they were tendered to him by the MLAs," the CJI asked.

Pakistan opens its airspace after 6 months

Until now, only two of the 11 routes between the two countries had been opened. Around 3 a.m., Turkish Airlines' Istanbul-Delhi flight became the first to use the Pakistan airspace, according to the official. An hour later, Air India's flight from San Francisco followed it.

An AI official said all their flights between Delhi and destinations in the U.S. and Europe were flying through Pakistan from Tuesday.

SpiceJet's Jaipur-Dubai flight, too, flew over Pakistan, but the airline is yet to announce the resumption of its flights to Kabul.

IndiGo, whose flight to Istanbul had to take a long detour via Qatar and stop there for refuelling, doubling its flight duration, says it is awaiting clearances to start operations on the reopened route.

Afghanistan's Ariana Afghan is expected to resume operations between Kabul and Delhi next week and Kazakhstan's Air Astana, which resumed four flights from Almaty to Delhi says it will return to its 11 flights a week mid-August after demand picks up.

As per government data, Air India was the worst affected among all Indian carriers. It lost ₹490 crore until July 2 due to the sheer number of flights it operates to the U.S. and Europe.

According to IATA, before the ban at least 220 flights used the Pakistan airspace every night between Asia and Europe.

Postal department examination annulled

A fresh one would be held in all regional languages, he said.

The House had to be adjourned thrice in the pre-lunch session.

Members of the AIADMK, a key NDA ally, trooped into the well, tore up and flung papers, demanding the annulment of the exam.

They were joined by their rivals, the DMK, the Congress, the CPI and the CPI (M), and the Trinamool Congress.

The protests started soon after the listing of papers, with AIADMK members shouting slogans and demanding that the government hold a fresh examination for the recruitment of postmen by including Tamil as a language. Both the AIADMK and the DMK raised the issue during a zero-hour reference on Monday.

They contended that excluding the regional languages put rural students at a disadvantage.

On Tuesday, within nine minutes after the House met at 11.00 a.m., Chairman M. Venkiah Naidu ordered stopping the live transmission of the proceedings owing to the ruckus and adjourned the House till noon.

PM pulls up Ministers who played truant

After complaints from the Opposition, Modi takes note of those who skipped roster duty in Parliament

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Tuesday pulled up Ministers for playing truant from roster duty in Parliament, taking cognisance of complaints by Opposition leaders.

Addressing the weekly meeting of the BJP's Parliamentary Party (when session is on), Mr. Modi said he had "asked for the names" of errant Ministers and taken the matter seriously.

Ministers are placed on roster duty to be present in Parliament when the session is on.

"Prime Minister Modi said that several Opposition leaders had mentioned to him that Ministers were missing from Parliament, and that he was not happy with that state of affairs," said a senior MP present at the meeting.

At a July 2 meeting, the Prime Minister listed out several criteria based on which he selected MPs to join his Cabinet, with participation in Parliament proceedings being an important factor. Significantly, Mr. Modi indicated that there was much on the government's legislative agenda, and that "if need be, the session can be extended", the MP said.

Members who attended the meet did not share the context in which this remark was made. Mr. Modi also asked the MPs to associate themselves with causes related to social welfare such as the rehabilitation of those suffering from leprosy or the government's tuberculosis eradication programme that seeks to remove TB from the country by 2025, Parliamentary Affairs Minister Pralhad Joshi told presspersons after the meeting.

Social causes

"He said, 'logon ko yaad rahi, aisa koi kaam kaor [do something that will be long remembered by the people]', adding that if MPs had any aspirational districts within their constituencies, then they should get in touch with the officers serving there to lend a helping hand in the various social welfare programmes," the MP said.

"He said that officers were themselves in competition in these districts against each other and MPs should help them compete. These activities were to be undertaken in an apolitical spirit and not for votes," said a source quoting Mr. Modi.

Central Universities Bill cleared

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Rajya Sabha on Tuesday passed the Central Universities (Amendment) Bill, 2019, for establishing a Central University and Tribal University in Andhra Pradesh.

HRD Minister Ramesh Pokhriyal "Nishank" assured the House that the universities would be set up in the next four years.

The Lok Sabha had cleared the Bill on July 12.

The government has set aside ₹450 crore for the first stage of the Central University project against the total amount of ₹902.07 crore and ₹420 crore for Tribal University against the Minster said.

The Tribal University will offer research facilities in the fields of art, culture and technology to the tribal population.

CWC meet not before July 22, says senior leader

No decision on Rahul's successor yet

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Congress Working Committee (CWC) is unlikely to meet before July 22 as the political turmoil and the Karnataka trust vote has taken precedence, said a senior leader on Tuesday.

Though senior leaders who have been discussing about finding a consensus candidate for the next Congress president had informally set July 15 as a cut-off day by when the party would decide on the next president, all plans are now on hold.

The CWC meeting could now be delayed until the current Parliament session gets over on July 26. No final decision, however, has been taken on the date.

So far, names of several senior leaders like Mukul Wasnik, Mallikarjun Kharge among others have been in circulation. However, no consensus candidate has emerged.

A section of senior leaders have also approached Congress Parliamentary Party (CPP) chairperson Sonia Gandhi to become the provisional party president once again but she is learnt to have categorically turned it down.

Another section of senior leaders are of the opinion that the next CWC meeting, after Mr. Gandhi's formal resignation, should start the process of election of a new

All India Congress Committee (AICC).

And until the AICC election process gets completed, general secretaries who are in charge of party affairs in the States should be fully empowered to discharge their responsibilities.

Mr. Gandhi had informed the CWC, as far back as May 25, about his decision to step down to own responsibility for the 2019 Lok Sabha debacle. Though the CWC had rejected it unanimously, Mr. Gandhi has been firm on his decision.

Since then more than seven weeks have passed and Congress veterans have questioned the delay. "As someone who joined the Congress in 1967, over half a century ago, I am aghast to see the confusion and disorientation into which the party has fallen since Rahul Gandhi resigned on May 25," Karan Singh had said last week.

Trinamool Congress against Motor Vehicle Bill

Says it takes away State powers

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The Trinamool Congress on Tuesday said it would oppose the Motor Vehicle Bill, 2019, infringing on the State's rights and the government did not adopt any of the corrections suggested by a committee during the Bill's earlier introduction in the 16th Lok Sabha.

He said over 40,000 km of roads had been constructed in the past five years and work totalling nearly ₹11 lakh crore had been awarded by the Ministry during this period.

He said since land acquisition was a problem, especially in some States such as West Bengal and Bihar, his Ministry has made a rule that a project is started only when 80% of the land was acquired.

The Punjab police on Tuesday said it had arrested the kingpin of a drug racket of habit-forming drugs, including the 'tramadol' tablets.

Chief of the Anti-drug Special Task Force and Addl. DGP Gurpreet Kaur Deo said the police had recovered a consignment of 10,67,800 tablets from accused Pardeep Goyal, a Ludhiana-based chemist. "Goyal was operating from his medical store in Ludhiana. He was arrested by the Bathinda police on information provided by a peddler Sunil Kumar. The chemist was dealing with large-scale diversion of banned drugs and tablets," she said.

She said the accused had supplied 70 lakh banned tablets throughout Punjab in the last 10 months.

military court as "illegal", and order a retrial. Pakistan, on the other hand, remains hopeful that the Indian petition at the ICJ will be dismissed.

Two-year process

The verdict will bring to a close India's two-year long quest for a reprieve for Kulbhushan Jadhav, who, the government believes, was convicted falsely on charges of terrorism in Pakistan. While Pakistani prosecutors maintain that Mr. Jadhav was a "spy" in Balochistan province, India has consistently held that he was working as a businessman in Iran, and was kidnapped by Pakistani agencies.

India has taken a two-pronged approach in the case: pleading that the Jadhav trial held in a military court was only quasi-judicial and hence lacked internationally recognised procedures, and that Pakistan had violated the Vienna convention on consular relations that stipulates that foreign nationals under trial be offered consular access.

In the petition, India had asked that the ICJ suspend Mr. Jadhav's death sentence, restrain Pakistan from carrying out the military court's verdict, provide the government consular access to Mr. Jadhav, and annul the trial entirely. Finally, the government asked that the ICJ direct Pakistan to "release the convicted Indian national forthwith".

Pakistan has said it will have "responsibly", but has given no undertaking that it would accept an adverse verdict.

Pakistan's Foreign Affairs spokesperson Mohammad Faisal said he would not comment on the matter, but hit out at India for "state terrorism".

Centre cites NGO's letter on NRC

Group, which has supported the Citizenship Bill, denies ties to the BJP

VIJAYA SINGH
NEW DELHI

Seeking "sample re-verification" of Assam's draft National Register of Citizens (NRC) in the Supreme Court, the Union Home Ministry, in its affidavit, attached a letter from an Assam-based NGO, Sachetan Nagrik Mancha, Amon (SNM), that had demanded an "error-free NRC".

The Supreme Court has directed that the final NRC be published by July 31. If the fresh affidavit filed by the Ministry and the Assam government seeking "20% re-verification of names included in the final draft NRC in districts of Assam bordering Bangladesh and 10% verification in other districts" is admitted by the court, it would further push back the date of the final publication of the NRC. If the SC rejects the proposal, the Centre may take the legislative route, a senior government official said.

SNM secretary Atul Burman told The Hindu that the NGO was formed in 2013 and it worked for "national integration" and denied it was aligned to the BJP.

"There are 5,800 members in our organisation. When the NRC was being updated, we conducted 442 meetings in Assam. We are not associated with the BJP; people from all communities – Hindu, Muslim, Christian – are part of it [SNM]," Mr. Burman said.

While several groups in Assam have vociferously protested against the Citizenship Amendment Bill, 2019 that would benefit Hindus excluded from the NRC, the NGO supported it. The Bill lapsed with the dissolution of the previous Lok Sabha.

"There have been instances where field officers have been arrested for taking bribes for entering names in the NRC list," the affidavit said.

Shah's statement

On July 1, Union Home Minister Amit Shah told the Rajya Sabha that the government would bring in a Bill to provide citizenship to "Hindus refugees" left out of the NRC. He was responding to the Trinamool's Derek O'Brien who raised the issue of the probability of 23 lakh Bengali Hindus losing citizenship when the final NRC is published.

In 2017, the NGO filed a police complaint against former Assam Chief Minister Tarun Gogoi in a "cash for job" scam.

In its affidavit, the Ministry cast aspersions on the officials who initially conducted the verification drive. Out of 3.29 crore applicants, around 40 lakh people were excluded from the final draft NRC that was published on July 30 last year. Another one lakh were excluded in another list published last month. Of these, 36 lakh people filed claims against the exclusion whereas objections were filed against inclusion of 2 lakh persons.

"There have been instances where field officers have been arrested for taking bribes for entering names in the NRC list," the affidavit said.

Woman gets bail, told to donate Koran

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

RANCHI

A 19-year-old woman, who was arrested for sharing an offensive social media post targeting Muslims, has been granted bail by a local court here on the condition that she donate five copies of the Koran to separate institutions in the city.

The court of judicial Magistrate (First Class) Manish Kumar Singh asked Richa Bharti to submit one copy of the holy book to the local Anjuman Committee in the presence of police authorities, and four more copies to different libraries in the city, her advocate Rampravesh Singh said.

The Magistrate has also sought the receipts or the acknowledgements of the donation within a fortnight, he said.

Md. Jamil Khan, a member of the Anjuman Committee, said it has welcomed the court's verdict.

SP (Rural) Asutosh Sekhar said the officers were studying the court order to understand the stipulations.

On M.P. transfers, Congress and BJP won't let sleeping dogs lie

Parties trade charges over transfer of 46 police dogs

BHOPAL

If you have a dog in the fight, never let it go. So it seems seeing the ruling Congress and the BJP hurl charges at each other over the transfer of 46 police dogs and their handlers in Madhya Pradesh.

Hitting back at the Opposition party for saying that the State government has not spared even police dogs and their handlers from transfers, the Congress on Tuesday came up with a list of canines transferred by the previous BJP regime.

"There is nothing unusual about the transfers, whether of officials or dogs. It is the prerogative of the government to see who is needed where, and the BJP can't dictate us on that. They are making a laughing stock of themselves," Shobha Oza, State Congress media chief, said.

Party workers produced an 18-page document listing posted at one place for five or six years, flouting the policy which mandates their transfers after every three years. The new government had to correct the wrong, stick to the rules and transfer officials."

"One day, you transfer several DSPs (Deputy Superintendents of Police) and the next day you cancel the transfers of most of them. This shows how corrupt the Congress is. For them, governance is not jan sewa (serving people), it is jeb seva (lining one's pocket)," BJP State spokesman Gulrez Sheikh said.

Dog's mentality

Public Works Department Minister Sajjan Singh Verma told presspersons that the BJP leaders were making such accusations as they had "a dog's mentality".

Mr. Sheikh retorted, "Yes, we have a dog's mentality. We are loyal to the people and work for them."

In a tweet on July 13, BJP State president Rakesh Singh wondered why were dogs, which could not communicate with humans directly, transferred to a location more than 500 km away.

Stating that the change of government had necessitated the transfers as the BJP had not complied with the transfer policy during its 15-year regime, Ms. Oza said, "Then, officials remained Civil Aviation Minister Hardeep Singh Puri said in 2006 the total number of passengers at Indian airports was about 1.5 million per annum. Therefore, a regulatory mechanism was needed for fixing tariffs. In 2009, only two major airports had traffic of 1.5 million passengers per annum. In 2011, the number went up to 16 and in 2016, there were 24 such airports.

"Today, the passenger throughput at the Airport Authority of India airports is in the vicinity of 344.69 million. So, the limited purpose of this amendment is to substitute the figure 1.5 million, which defined a major airport, which reflected 1.3% of passenger traffic at that point of time, with the figure 3.5 million which accurately reflects the state of traffic today," he said.

The Bill was first approved in December 2017, but could not be passed.

The Rajya Sabha on Tuesday passed a Bill to amend the Airports Economic Regulatory Authority of India Act, 2008, whereby the Airports Authority would not determine tariff structures in the case of privatised airports as that was part of the bid offered at the time of the privatisation.

In all, 16 airports would come under the Airports Economic Regulatory Authority.

Concerned by the incidents of workers dying while cleaning sewers and septic tanks, the Union Housing and Urban Affairs Ministry has asked all States and Union Territories to set up emergency response sanitation units (ERSU), which would include trained cleaners wearing protective gear.

In letters to all Chief Secretaries on July 12, Housing and Urban Affairs Ministry Secretary Durga Shanker Mishra wrote: "The Government of India is seized of press reports regarding number of fatalities attributed to entry into sewers and septic tanks (both public and private) of personnel employed for their cleaning or removal of chokes."

"To implement the provisions of PEMSRA Act, 2013 regarding hazardous cleaning of sewers/septic tanks, it is advised that States/Uts/ULBs [urban local bodies] should set up an ERSU, on the lines of the fire service station, in capital cities of each State/UT and in all major cities having a municipal corporation and/or water and sewerage board with population of more than one lakh," the letter said.

Congresswomen hit back at Trump

The blatantly racist attack is a distraction from the chaotic and corrupt culture of the administration'

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
WASHINGTON

"This is simply a disruption and a distraction from the callous chaotic and corrupt culture of this administration, all the way down," Ms. Pressley said.

The Squad

The four lawmakers – who have been nicknamed "The Squad" by some media – said attention should instead be focused on healthcare and immigration and, in particular, the treatment of asylum seekers on the southern border.

"Weak minds and leaders challenge loyalty to our country in order to avoid challenging and debating the policy," said Ms. Ocasio-Cortez.

Mr. Trump "does not know how to defend his policies, so what he does is attack us personally, and that is what this is all about," she said.

Ms. Tlaib said Mr. Trump's tweets and remarks were "a continuation of his racist and xenophobic playbook."

"We cannot allow these hateful actions by the President to distract us from the critical work to hold this administration accountable to the inhumane conditions at the border that is separating children from their loved ones and caging them up in illegal, horrific conditions," she said.

Ms. Omar and Ms. Tlaib repeated calls for Mr. Trump to be impeached.

At a White House event later, Mr. Trump said, "All they do is complain".

"These are people that hate our country. If you're not happy here, you can leave." Mr. Trump also accused the four first-term Congresswomen – who are of Hispanic, Arab, Somali and African American origin – of having "love" for U.S. "enemies like Al-Qaeda."

Asked by a reporter whether he was concerned that many people saw his comments as racist, Mr. Trump said: "It doesn't concern me because many people agree with me."

Mr. Trump's extraordinary attacks on the lawmakers prompted outrage.

The President also came under fire from some members of his Republican party but remained unrepentant.

"My view is that what was said and what was tweeted was destructive, was demeaning, was disuniting, and frankly it was very wrong," said Senator Mitt Romney, a Republican from Utah.

New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern became the latest international leader to condemn Trump's tweets. "I completely and utterly disagree with him," she told Radio New Zealand, noting that her country welcomed diversity.

No racist bone: Trump

Meanwhile, Mr. Trump denied accusations of racism.

"Those Tweets were NOT Racist. I don't have a Racist bone in my body!" he tweeted, as lawmakers prepared to vote on a resolution condemning his "racist comments."

Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and Britain's Theresa May also expressed disapproval.

Pakistani journalists held nationwide protests on Tuesday to denounce rampant censorship by the country's powerful security services, massive layoffs due to budget cuts and months-long delays in payments of their wages.

The rallies, dubbed Day of Protests, were spearheaded by the Pakistan Federal Union of Journalists, which said that journalists, who face the roughest phase in the country's history, have decided to "fight the unprecedented censorship."

Tuesday was only the "beginning of a protest movement," said Afzal Butt, union president.

Journalists and press freedom advocates say that the Pakistani military is pressuring media outlets to quash critical coverage while the newly elected government is slashing its advertising budget.

In the last few months, hundreds of journalists have been laid off as media houses came under financial constraints after government advertising was drastically reduced.

Journalist wore black bands and held banners demanding an end to censorship, economic woes for those working in the media and abuse of media laws to curb free expression.

Authorities control "even minute details of the media content these days, and dictate who will be the face of print and electronic media," Mr. Butt said.

ISLAMABAD

Pakistan expressed hopes on Tuesday that Prime Minister Imran Khan's maiden trip to the White House later this month would help repair its acrimonious relationship with Washington as the U.S. seeks its help in ending the war in Afghanistan.

Observers believe that the nearly 18-year conflict will be the major focus of talks between Mr. Khan and President Donald Trump when they meet on July 22, as Washington presses for Pakistani assistance in securing a peace deal.

"Pakistan has been facilitating the U.S.-Taliban talks in good faith, underscoring that it remains a shared responsibility," Foreign Minister Shah Mahmood Qureshi said during a seminar in Islamabad.

A guide on the entrepreneurial journey

Big corporates see immense value in offering mentoring support to startups that are just out of the blocks

LIFFY THOMAS

Most of the time, entrepreneurship is about treading a solitary path. Meeta Verma is among the lucky ones who found support early on. Six months before she turned 40, Meeta received a call to join a one-year Women Startup Programme (WSP) offered by the Indian Institute of Management - Bangalore (IIM-B) with the support of Goldman Sachs and the Department of Science and Technology, Government of India.

Meeta could not have hoped for a better launch pad. Through mentoring and opportunities for networking and industry collaboration, the programme would enable participants to give their entrepreneurial idea more than a fighting chance in the market. To top it all, every participant will take home a stipend of ₹ 40,000 a month.

"I just had an idea when I joined the programme, and did not know how to execute it," says Meeta, who started Worksera, a freelance jobs platform for Indian women, in 2017.

It was with the network she had forged through WSP that Meeta found her early clients. The stipend helped her pay the rent for the office space she had taken.

Now, Worksera is 150 projects old, and has four employees, all of them women, on its rolls. Around 800 people have signed up on the platform.

only illustrates the value of such programmes, but also underlines how support from large corporations sustains them.

There are two scenarios. One, large corporations support such initiatives, as in the case of IIM-B's WSP where the programme receives support from Goldman Sachs.

The other scenario is about these corporations starting these initiatives themselves.

Cisco and Shell are among companies that have been running "accelerator programmes" for entrepreneurs who have just started up their enterprises.

Cisco's 'LaunchPad' is held twice a year with eight startups in each cohort. Participants go through a 24-week training programme. The organisation has so far helped more than 40 startups and provided mentorship, grants, investor connects, tech platform, customer partner access and co-working space. It does not stop with this. Some of the "mature startups" move from the accelerator to the "innovation centre programme", which provides them with a bigger platform to develop their products and showcase them.

Shell has been accelerating energy-related technologies under its programme called 'E4' (Energizing and Enabling Energy Entrepreneurs). The start-ups are incubated for six months. In the recent edition, 10 start-ups that had a strong connect with the company's business, were helped.

Recently, Dell opened its India chapter of what is called 'Dell Women's Entrepreneur Network' (DWEN), enabling networking among women entrepreneurs from India.

A 'matchmaking' platform

100 Open Startups is one of the largest evaluation and matchmaking platforms for startups to connect with big corporations.

Started by Bruno Ronciani from Brazil in 2007, 100 Open Startups works in major countries to enable corporate-startup engagement.

Currently, 2,400 big corporates are on the platform. Ten thousand contracts have been signed up so far.

In India, the initiative has been running since 2015. "We have 190 corporates who are part of our programme," says Varad Krishna, co-founder and managing director - Asia, 100 Open Startups.

The programme runs through the year and is open to anyone, irrespective of age and sector. Early-stage start-ups are preferred. Participants are shortlisted based on five filters.

Problems are defined by the corporates in verticals, numbering around 24. For example, innovative cities, future of education and healthcare. Anybody with a solution for these questions can apply.

The programme gets more challenging at every successive level.

"At Level 4, we have the open innovation week where corporates and startups negotiate and contracts are signed," says Krishna, adding that 90 startups from India have reached this level so far.

"It's a start of a journey where we begin by mentoring and this goes on till strategic acquisition," says Krishna.

He says corporates like to partner with the platform as they find this an efficient resource for innovation.

HR questions answered online

Noble House, a human resources consultant, has launched 'Expert Connect' on its website. The initiative aims to help corporates and independent consultants seek advice or vet their policies.

In-house HR teams of organisations, both at a startup and mid-to-large company level can use the feature to understand new policies and trends.

According to a press release, this would allow both corporates and freelancers to interact with skilled HR professionals via a pre-paid video call or a chat option. The consultants come from diverse industries, the release says.

Before launching DWEN, Dell did a survey, connecting with 300 entrepreneurs, to understand what kind of support entrepreneurs look for. The majority of entrepreneurs said they needed help in expansion, sales strategy and leveraging technology.

Sheenam Ohrie, vice president, Enterprise Data and Mobility Engineering, Dell Digital, says there were two strong reasons for starting DWEN.

Referring to studies, she says 40% of start-ups fail in the first year. And only 2% of venture capital funding goes to women entrepreneurs.

In a Dell survey, the majority of entrepreneurs said they needed help in expansion, sales strategy and leveraging technology

"We need to change these numbers," says Sheenam.

Win-win situation

What do large corporations gain by working with startups?

Saras Saravathy, Paul M. Hammaker Professor of Business Administration, The

Darden School of Business, says both big corporations and startups can gain a lot by partnering with each other. Startups think they need funding. But they should realise that building a direct relationship with the potential customer is of greater importance, she says.

That is a learning they are likely to receive from their association with large corporations. Large corporations find it difficult to leave their predictable market and therefore work with an inherent handicap while attempting new product development. And this is one area startups are naturally good at.

DHFL to seek ₹1,500-crore loans a month

Move part of the cash-strapped mortgage lender's resolution plan to kick-start its lending business

Cash-strapped mortgage lender Dewan Housing Finance Corporation Ltd. (DHFL), which was asked by banks to prepare a resolution plan, will be seeking ₹1,200 crore to ₹1,500 crore in loans per month to kick-start its lending business.

Banks have stopped lending to several housing finance companies, including DHFL, following the debt default by IL&FS in September.

According to highly placed sources in DHFL, the resolution plan envisaged restructuring of the debt first, which will pave the way for a new investor to pick up equity stake. The total debt of DHFL is about ₹80,000 crore, of which bank loans constitute ₹40,000 crore. The remaining ₹40,000 crore are in terms of money market instruments, mostly non-convertible debentures.

"The resolution plan seeks short-term loans by banks, with a maturity of one year, every month, for about one year. This will be required to kick-start lending. Home loans, which are extended with these bank loans, will be securitised with the banks again after one year," the source said.

While banks are trying to execute a comprehensive resolution plan by including all the creditors, including the mutual funds which also subscribed to the NCDs of DHFL, some of the fund houses are not agreeing to be a part of the debt recast process. "Banks are in discussion with some of the mutual funds who are not agreeing. In any case, these funds have a small exposure of about ₹2,500 crore," the source said. Of the ₹40,000 crore NCDs and other money market instruments, banks alone have an exposure of over ₹12,000 crore.

Nod by month-end

The company expects banks to approve the resolution plan by the month-end.

At ₹80,000 crore, this will be the biggest debt restructuring exercise carried out by banks in the country. DHFL had assured that this would be a comprehensive resolution plan, without any haircut to the lenders.

Banks have already signed the inter-creditor agreement and will scrutinise the resolution plan, and aim to make it operational before September 25. After the debt recast, which is essentially elongating the repayment schedule to match liabilities with assets, a new investor is expected to come in.

DHFL is in talks with Cerberus Capital, Aion Capital and Loan Star for the stake sale. Promoters of DHFL who have 39.8% stake in the company, could see their shareholding reduced by half after the deal. DHFL aims to raise about ₹5,500 crore from the stake sale.

On Tuesday, DHFL stock rebounded to close 4.33% higher at ₹50.60.

Rating agency Crisil has revised its rating watch on the long-term bank facilities and debt instruments of Indiabulls Housing Finance Limited (IBHFL) to 'Rating Watch with Negative Implications' from 'Rating Watch with Developing Implications'.

The rating on the short-term bank facilities and the short-term debt programme has been reaffirmed at 'Crisil A1+'. IBHFL was under 'Watch with developing implications' when the company announced its merger with Lakshmi Vilas Bank (LVB).

"With progress on the merger, the rating watch has been revised as it is possible that the credit profile of the merged entity as a bank could be relatively weaker than other Crisil AAA rated private banks, at least in the short term," the rating agency said.

CCI nod for merger
IBHFL has received approval from the Competition Commission of India for the proposed merger, while it awaits other approvals.

Crisil said there could be transitional challenges once the merger goes through, as the entity would need to establish its liabilities franchise to compete effectively with banks.

Snapdeal cuts losses by 70% to ₹186 crore

For 2018-19, a period following failed merger talks, the firm's revenues too grew 73% to ₹925.3 crore

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

E-commerce firm Snapdeal on Tuesday said it had "significantly" narrowed its losses to ₹186 crore in the 2018-19 financial year.

This is a decline of 69.55% from a loss of ₹611 crore in 2017-18.

As per regulatory documents filed by Snapdeal, consolidated revenues grew to ₹925.3 crore in 2018-19 from ₹535.9 crore in 2017-18, an increase of nearly 73%.

"Two years ago, we were coming off a challenging patch for our company. However, disciplined and focussed execution by our team over these past two years shines through in our audited financial results," CEO and co-founder Kunal Bahl said in a blogpost on LinkedIn. He added that Snapdeal's transacting customers grew 2.2 times and the traffic surged 2.3 times to 70 million unique users per month. "And all this in a year when the e-commerce companies in India burnt through about $2.5 billion in the pursuit of growth," he pointed out.

Mr. Bahl said the firm's strategy was to focus on the needs of value-conscious buyers in India, who constitute the Snapdeal's of their users. "They are the fastest-growing mega segment in Indian e-commerce and will be nearly 400-million strong over the next few years," he added.

Snapdeal was among the top e-commerce players in the country a couple of years ago, but lost share, given the fierce competition from rivals such as Amazon and Flipkart.

In 2017, the company was also in talks to merge the firm with Flipkart. However, the deal did not go through and the company decided to "pursue an independent path", calling it Snapdeal 2.0. Snapdeal said its selections had grown to over 200 million listings on the platform and in the last two years, the company had seen over 60,000 new seller partners coming on board.

For the ongoing year, Mr. Bahl said the company's focus areas would not be very different.

"The past couple of years have been about getting back in the saddle and putting the company on a path that has a very long runway to grow – with strong fundamentals and a fantastic culture. We are not aiming for triple-digit growth rates, as we don't believe that one can achieve them without compromising on parameters that we consider critical – economics and experience," he said.

different, the company said in its rationale for the decision. The loss-making firm (₹254.3 crore in 2018-19), posted its first quarterly net profit at ₹20.8 crore in the fourth quarter of last fiscal, making this the first net profit in 10 quarters.

The improved performance came through cost savings and efficient logistics, according to the firm.

KIL's debt now stands at ₹2,950 crore. "The separation of the tyre business would bring significant benefits to both the businesses," it said. These would be through dedicated management focus and accelerated growth for the tyre business and access to varied sources of funds for the rapid growth of both businesses.

Regulator probing alleged fund siphoning by promoters

ASHISH RUKHAIYAR
MUMBAI

The ongoing regulatory probe into the alleged siphoning off of funds by the promoters of Leel Electricals, formerly Lloyd Electric and Engineering Ltd., is getting delayed as the company officials are allegedly not cooperating in the forensic audit process, which has been mandated by the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI).

As part of the expansion, Nayara plans to set up a 4.5 lakh-tonnes a year polypropylene plant.

"The primary source of feedstock is its existing FCC unit, which is optimised for booting performance," said Nayara Energy in a statement told that the audit is a time-bound exercise with stringent deadlines but is still taking time to share the complete set of documents as required in the audit," said the person.

"While the company has shared some documents such as the annual report and the balance sheet, the forensic audit team has sought more information and the company is sharing the documents only in parts, thereby slowing the audit process," he added.

In the past too, the bourses had penalised the entity for non-compliance with the regulations in timely filing of the financial results and shareholding pattern reports.

The gross non-performing assets (NPA) ratio stood at 2.99% as against 3% in the same period of the previous year, while net NPA ratio improved to 1.49% from 1.72% in the March quarter.

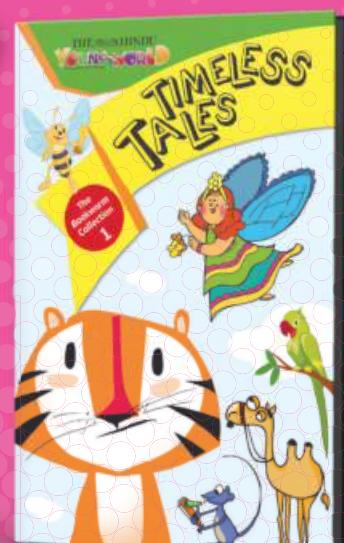

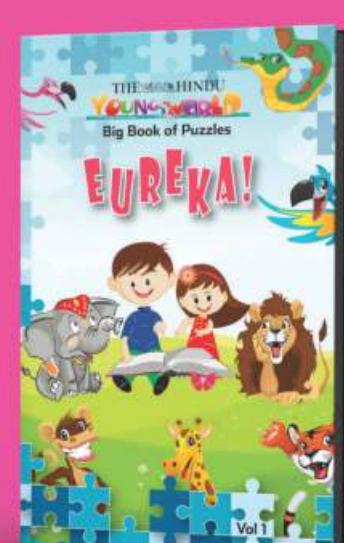

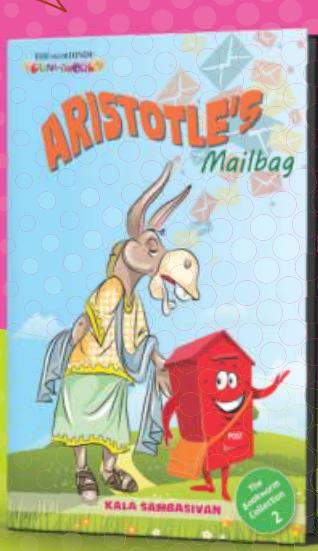

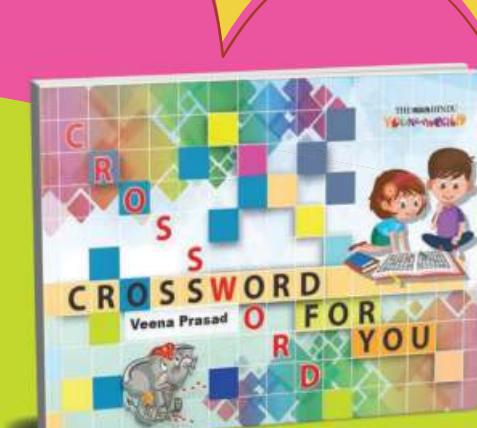

About the exposure to the troubled mortgage lender DHFL, Mr. Srinivasan declined to name the account but said the bank's exposure to certain accounts was standard.

"The primary source of feedstock is its existing FCC unit, which is optimised for booting performance," said Nayara Energy in a statement

VANGMAYI PARAKALA

In 2017, Swati Soharia decided she'd stop buying clothes. This is important since Soharia is a knitwear designer, with a degree from the National Institute of Fashion Technology. But she just couldn't get herself to work in the fashion business. "I've never been one to stick to buying garments often, and to consumerism," she says.

For a while before she cut new buys from her closet, she'd worked in visual merchandising, with a company that did shoots for brands as diverse as Chivas Regal, Absolut, Wella, and Olay. Soharia's job was to make installations that'd feature in these shoots.

For instance, if they were doing a visual campaign for a set of nail colours, she'd make display boxes out of a medium-density fibreboard (MDF), a material made by combining wood fibre, wax, and resin at high pressure and temperature.

Typically, this process generated a lot of waste. She began noticing how much would accumulate in their factory spaces. It started to make her uncomfortable and restless. Which is when she quit, started looking at ways to reuse all sorts of waste material, and set up an eponymous label to do just this.

Beyond a trend

Upcycling isn't really new. These days, we outgrow the novelty of most things given the glut of posts, shares, retweets that tire us fast. But the upcycling and sustainability movement in fashion is still important – in fact, more so now, given how the water table in our cities is dipping further and further.

In late 2017, Soharia got in touch with a curator working in the area of sustainability. This gave her the avenue to display her initial work with the label at the Ara In-

MAKING SUSTAINABILITY MASS

Inspired by Swati Soharia's upcycling workshops, Refash is a website that was set up earlier this year, to offer products and know-how on sustainable clothing novation Space, a community in Vienna that brings together artists, researchers, and industries to ideate on future resource efficiency and work towards a circular economy.

Soharia, buoyed by this experience and orders that started coming in through word of mouth, opened her store in February 2018. Soon, she started collaborating with bigger brands for corporate gifting orders, meeting demand needs by reaching out to NGOs who'd already recognised women with basic tailoring skills.

"I train them further in upcycling," she says. "I bank on this sort of collaboration. We need orders, they need employment, and the corporates are happy with this sort of social collaboration," Soharia adds.

She spreads the word on upcycling with workshops at various women's self-help groups in and around Delhi, making words like slow, conscious, sustainable, and upcycling go beyond being niche and hipster. It's now a workable means of livelihood.

Much work across genre
The connect with the urban crowd isn't secondary though. Soharia holds workshops and hobby classes, meant to influence people, helping to keep upcycling alive in everyday memory, fuelling thoughtful purchase and behaviour change.

One such project is Refash.in, a website (not to be confused with the Singaporean website of the same name, which sells second-hand clothes) by Mumbai-based Akanksa Kaila Akashi, specialising in all things upcycled. It is billed as a portal that lets you dis-

The website started in April last year, soon after Akashi attended one of Soharia's workshops in Mumbai.

"There are a lot of upcycling brands in the market, but what was missing was a platform to bring them together," she says. "We've built a database of over 200 upcycling brands from all over the world. I discover new designers and brands on a daily basis. They just don't get enough momentum or coverage," she says.

Akashi, who moved to Mumbai from Delhi in 2016, finds that in India, the movement is yet to go beyond niche brands. "The term upcycling also remains relatively new here. But the core of it is running through our veins. Indian mothers and grandmothers have been reused fabric for ages," she says.

Through its various interviews, features, and directory of upcycling brands, Refash.in seeks to contribute to upcycling becoming "a mass movement in a couple of years."

Currently, they're running a series, where they spotlight upcycling efforts in one world city every month, and it has covered brands like Queen of Raw, Ilene Fisher's Waste No More campaign. They featured New York last month. This month, they officially launched their e-shop for homegrown upcycled brands like Dwij and Inai. The footwear brand Paduks, will soon feature.

Even if you can't stop buying clothes, like Soharia did, the hope in the short term, says Akashi is to see a whole "Refash" section at mainstream fast-fashion stores like Zara. Baby steps do turn into adult strides.

Soharia's upcoming workshop will focus on making bags with upcycled fabric. At the Stainless Steel Gallery, Mathura Road. ₹2,200 per head; all materials provided. To register: 9958011118

A kitchen with a cause

This café provides a space for people to grow

Despite working at a small café in Karkardooma, Sonia, 19, never felt like she was learning the ropes. The work environment was unsafe too, but that didn't stop her from wanting to train for a job in the hospitality sector.

But, for the last six months, her stint at Kitchen With A Cause, a café in Karol Bagh, is slowly skilling her. "I have learnt how different pieces of cutlery have different names, and I have also learnt to speak and understand English," she says, recalling details of the internship that she found out about through a friend.

Kitchen With A Cause is a fully commercial café, started in January 2018 by Abhishek Chhetri and Govind Jha, who'd just graduated (the latter in hotel and tourism management). The cafe also provides a space for young, underprivileged people interested in the hospitality sector to receive training, with a ₹7,500 stipend.

Snuggled in the popular Karol Bagh market, KWAC hires those over 18, who come through contacts that Abhishek and Govind have built at various NGOs. There's a round of interviews to select candidates. Each set is then given common training for the first month, after which they are either placed in the kitchen or in service, depending on individual interest and skill level.

A month before Sonia, another 19-year-old, Kushmita too joined KWAC as an intern. Originally from Bengal, she'd lost her father at an early age. Given the financial hardship of the family, Kushmita's mother sent her to Delhi in the hope that she'd become an earning member of the family. In 2014 she finally became a part of Kilkari Rainbow Home, an NGO in Kashmere Gate.

"I used to cook for hundreds of people in the NGO too, but there is a difference in cooking there and cooking at a restaurant. The audience consuming it is different," Kushmita says, adding that "I am learning [the right way] to chop vegetables, and I observe minute details [of the cooking process] while a dish is being prepared." Kushmita hopes to become a professional chef someday.

"We never considered this just a business. It was an opportunity," says Abhishek. They bring on board friends from the industry to guide and advise the interns. The programme also helps those interested in a career in the business to find jobs in the market.

KWAC just started with a fresh batch of interns. This time, from the Navayoti India Foundation, which was established in 1987 by former IPS officer and current governor of Puducherry Kiran Bedi.

She'll soon take the exhibition to Bengaluru (July 18th), Chennai (August 1st), Hyderabad (August 2nd), and finally to Mumbai. As the temperature drops a few degrees, Delhi, she says is most ready for that little bit of silver and gold. Colour stories begin with blush, go on to brick, and finally cinnamon, with zari woven through in stripes, checks, and sometimes throughout the fabric, a linen warp and zari weft. She hasn't deviated from her signature linen, and sees more people requesting for evening-wear in the material. Silhouettes are relaxed, some layered (linen with silk overlays). Anavila has recently launched her online store, but the collection will be available there August onwards.

5 safest cars under ₹10 lakh

The Global NCAP rates these cars as the best money can buy in that given range

RIVAN RS

Global NCAP first began testing mass-market models sold in the Indian market back in 2014. Since then, the safety ratings agency has tested and rated nearly 30 models and variants, ranging from hatchbacks such as the Maruti Alto and VW Polo to SUVs and MPVs like the Mahindra Scorpio and Renault Lodgy. We take a look at the five safest cars (as rated by Global NCAP) that you can buy for under ₹10 lakh.

Volkswagen Polo

One of the first made-in-India cars to be tested by the safety ratings organisation, the Volkswagen Polo without dual front airbags scored zero stars for adult occupancy; but the version with two airbags managed a solid 4-star crash-test rating (12.54/17). Both models scored three stars for child occupancy, although the Polo with airbags managed a marginally higher 29.91/49, as compared to the 26.97 of the model without the safety feature. Remember, this was back in 2014 and the Polo at the time didn't even get ABS, Isofix child seat mounts and seat-belt reminders as standard. The top-spec Volkswagen Polo GT TSI on sale in India now gets features like traction control, ESC, hill-start assist and rear parking sensors.

Tata Nexus

Tata's compact SUV recently achieved a 4-star rating from NCAP for adult occupancy (13.56/17) and three stars for child occupancy (25/49). After this, Tata updated all variants of the model with a seat-belt reminder for the driver and front passenger and had the compact SUV pass the UN95 side-impact protection requirements – resulting in the Nexus becoming the first made-in-India model to achieve a 5-star rating, achieving a score of 16.06/18 in adult occupancy. Global NCAP rated the Nexus's body shell integrity as 'stable' while providing good protection for the head and neck of the driver and the passenger. All variants of the Tata Nexus come with two airbags, ABS and Isofix child seat mounts as standard.

Toyota Etios Liva

Tested by Global NCAP back in 2016, the Etios Liva hatchback was one of the few models that registered a commendable 4-star rating for adult occupancy in its very first crash test (13/16); for child occupancy, it scored two stars (20.02/49). While the Toyota Etios Liva was updated later with more safety kit such as ABS with EBD and Isofix child seat mounts, the model tested only had dual-front airbags and front seat belts with pretensioners.

Tata Zest

While the first round of tests for the Zest compact sedan earned it a 0-star rating, Tata was allowed another opportunity and thus it introduced an upgraded compact sedan, which was crash-tested in 2016. This model scored an impressive 4-star rating (11.15/17) in adult occupancy and two stars in child occupancy (15.52/49). The Tata Zest came with two airbags and a seat-belt reminder for the driver, but was later updated with ABS, EBD and corner stability control.

Maruti Suzuki Vitara Brezza

A feather in Maruti Suzuki's cap, the Vitara Brezza compact SUV received a 4-star rating for adult occupancy in the latest round of Global NCAP's crash tests (12.51 out of 17). However, the SUV only managed two stars for child occupancy (17.93 out of 49) with the 18-month-old dummy in the test suffering injuries to its head and shoulders. The markings for the Isofix anchorages did not meet Global NCAP testing protocols, either. All variants of the Maruti Suzuki Vitara Brezza are equipped with two airbags, ABS with EBD, front seat belt with pretensioners, a driver's seat belt reminder and Isofix child-seat mounts.

Honourable mentions:

Honda Amaze

The made-in-India Honda Amaze – sold here and in select African markets in the same specification – was tested as part of Global NCAP's Safer Cars For Africa campaign. Safety equipment such as dual-front airbags, ABS and seat-belt reminders helped the compact sedan achieve a commendable 4-star rating (14.08/17) for adult occupancy. However, despite coming with Isofix child seat mounts as standard, the Amaze performed poorly in terms of child occupancy. Global NCAP gave the car just one star (8.16/49), as the child seat mounts were not up to its standards.

Mahindra Marazzo

The first made-in-India MPV to gain a 4-star rating, the Mahindra Marazzo did far better than fellow people carriers such as the Renault Lodgy and Chevrolet Enjoy. The Marazzo MPV scored 12.85 out of 17 in adult safety and 22.22 out of 49 in child occupancy (two stars), thanks to safety kit such as dual front airbags, ABS, a driver's side seat-belt reminder, front seat-belt pretensioners and Isofix anchorages for the rear seats – standard across all variants.

New Zealand done in by a bizarre set of rules

Arbitrary approach to determine the winner led to England walking away with the trophy despite the Kiwis 'not losing'

WORLD CUP

S. DINAKAR
CHENNAI

The gut-wrenching final at Lord's, visceral, brutal and explosive, was adjudged by a thoughtless, arbitrary number-of-boundaries rule that actually overlooked which team had lost less wickets in a tie after 100 captivating tension-filled overs.

The World Cup should have been shared between England and New Zealand and it's still not too late to right a grievous wrong that so cruelly denied the gallant Kiwis.

Idea of sharing honours
New Zealand coach Gary Stead is open to the idea of a shared World Cup if the ICC decides to re-look the events and circumstances of that epic Sunday that left millions of aficionados, cutting through barriers, feeling justice had not been done.

Former Sri Lankan World

Cup-winning coach Dav Whatmore said, "Sharing the Trophy would be the right thing to do but I don't know whether it is possible. This is the first time I have heard of a game being decided on the basis of boundaries."

New Zealand 'lost' by zero runs in both regular play and the Super Over, and was, unlike England, not bowled out during normal play.

Umpiring error
Then it emerged that the final over's pivotal moment – that left the luckless New Zealand devastated – when the ball rocketed off the desperately diving Ben Stokes' bat and shot past the ropes, was marred by a match-turning umpiring error.

The umpires awarded six runs which as celebrated umpire Simon Taufel revealed later, was a clear mistake. The batsmen had not crossed for the second run when Martin Guptill unleashed his throw and the umpires should have awarded England five runs and not six.

This also meant Adil Rashid would have been on strike and not the influential Stokes. These 'game-changing' umpiring mistakes hurt New Zealand in a game of such fine margins.

The umpires could have taken their time and referred the contentious extra run to the television umpire. Surely, they would have been aware of the rules.

In a game as big as this, the ICC should have left nothing to chance. At least, it could have continued with Super Overs until a conclusive result was reached much like penalty kicks in football that go on till a winner is found.

"This is actually a good idea," said Whatmore.

The never-say-die New Zealanders, gutsy, nerveless, skilful and full of grace and poise under extreme pressure, have been done in by a bizarre set of rules and questionable umpiring. Now, the ball is in ICC's court.

Another Super Over should decide winner: Tendulkar

Several cricketers have also questioned the boundary-rule

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

NEW DELHI

Sachin Tendulkar on Tuesday endorsed a second Super Over to decide the winner instead of considering the boundary count if such an extraordinary situation arises like it did in the World Cup final.

"I feel there should be another Super Over to decide the winner, instead of considering the number of boundaries scored by both teams. Not just in a World Cup final. Every game is important. Like in football, when teams go into extra time, nothing else matters," Tendulkar said to 100m.

Current and former cricketers, including Rohit Sharma, Gautam Gambhir and Yuvraj Singh, have questioned ICC's "ridiculous" rule on boundary count that decided the World Cup title.

Kohli's suggestion
After table toppers India was knocked out of the World Cup after losing the semifinal to New Zealand, skipper Virat Kohli had suggested IPL-like playoffs instead of knockouts in the World Cup, going forward.

For rule change: Tendulkar favoured another Super Over, not just in a World Cup final but whenever required. ▪ PTI

Asked if the World Cup format needs to be changed in the knockout stages, Tendulkar said: "I think the two teams that finish at the top should definitely have something going for them for having played consistently through the tournament."

Dhoni's slot
During India's semifinal, former skipper M.S. Dhoni was sent at No. 7 with Hardik Pandya and Dinesh Karthik being promoted in the batting order.

Asked what batting order he would have gone with for the chase, Tendulkar said: "Without a doubt, I would've sent M.S. Dhoni at his usual position, No. 5.

"With the kind of situation that India was in and the experience that he has, the need of the hour was for him to build the innings. Hardik could've batted at 6 and Karthik would've followed at 7."

England's triumph

ways that they'll probably explore."

Stead shrugged off suggestions England had been mistakenly handed an extra run after a throw from a fielder hit the bat of a diving Ben Stokes' and deflected to the boundary in the final over of regular play.

It's a very, very hollow feeling that you can play 100 overs and score the same amount of runs and still lose the game, but that's the technicalities of sport," Stead told reporters in comments released by New Zealand Cricket on Tuesday.

He said such a thrilling match, which has been hailed by many experts as the greatest one-day game in history, deserved a better way to determine the result.

"There's going to be many things they look at over the whole tournament – I'm sure when they were writing the rules they never expected a World Cup final to happen like that," he said.

"I'm sure it'll be reviewed (and) there's many different

I'm sure rules will be reviewed and possibilities explored: Stead

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

LONDON

New Zealand coach Gary Stead has called for the Cricket World Cup's rules to be overhauled, labelling the showpiece final "hollow" after England defeated the Black Caps on a technicality.

The teams could not be separated at the end of both regular play and a Super Over shootout, so England was handed victory because it had a superior boundary count.

"It's a very, very hollow feeling that you can play 100 overs and score the same amount of runs and still lose the game, but that's the technicalities of sport," Stead told reporters in comments released by New Zealand Cricket on Tuesday.

He said such a thrilling match, which has been hailed by many experts as the greatest one-day game in history, deserved a better way to determine the result.

"There's going to be many things they look at over the whole tournament – I'm sure when they were writing the rules they never expected a World Cup final to happen like that," he said.

ways that they'll probably explore."

Stead shrugged off suggestions England had been mistakenly handed an extra run after a throw from a fielder hit the bat of a diving Ben Stokes' and deflected to the boundary in the final over of regular play.

England was awarded six runs but former umpire Simon Taufel said it should only have got five as the batsmen had not crossed for their second run when the throw was made.

"I didn't actually know that," Stead said. "But at the end of the day the umpires are there to rule.

"They're human as well, like players, and sometimes there's a mistake but that's just the human aspect of sport."

We didn't lose

Skipper Kane Williamson pointed out his team was not defeated on the pitch, saying it instead fell victim to "fine print" in the rules.

He said that was a shame but the New Zealanders had signed up to the rules that governed the tournament.

"At the end of the day nothing separated us, no one lost the final, but there was a crowned winner and there it is," he told Newstalk ZB.

BCCI invites applications for coach, support staff

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

MUMBAI

The BCCI has initiated the process of recruitment for head coach, batting coach, bowling coach, fielding coach, physiotherapist, strength and conditioning coach and administrative manager of the Indian men's team.

The BCCI's contract with the present coaching and support staff ended with the World Cup in England, but most of them have been asked to continue till the completion of the tour of the West Indies that will run from August 3 to September 4.

The BCCI though has acceded to the wishes of physiotherapist Patrick Farhart and strength and physical conditioning coach Shankar Basu to be relieved after India's campaign in the quadrennial event.

According to a press release issued by the Supreme Court appointed Committee tee of Administrators, aspiring candidates have to apply for particular posts on or by July 30 after which the Cricket Advisory Committee (CAC) will take the recruitment process forward. The release also said that the current coaching staff will get an automatic entry in the recruitment process. The BCCI has posted an advertisement on its website. Bcci.tv giving details of eligibility criteria and experience required for different posts.

The former director of Indian cricket (2014 to 2016) Ravi Shastri returned as head coach of the team after a bitter end to Anil Kumble's tenure as head coach immediately after the Champions Trophy in June 2017. Once Shastri was appointed as head coach, Bharat Arun and R. Sridhar also returned as bowling and fielding coach. The present batting coach is Sanjay Bangar.

PM May thanks England for ending 44-year wait

Jacinda Ardern praises the Kiwis for putting their all on the line

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

LONDON/WELLINGTON

The prime ministers of England and New Zealand lauded their cricket teams' performance in the World Cup, which helped bring the sport into limelight in nations obsessed with football and rugby.

May added, "It was a fitting end to what has been a great tournament – and I want to take this opportunity to thank everyone involved in once again making our country a sporting showcase for the world."

New Zealand's Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern praised the Black Caps for putting their all on the line and then accepting the gut-wrenching defeat with grace.

"That was undeniably an incredible game. I think as a nation we all aged a year in that super over. Congratulations to England. And to the Black Caps, I feel nothing but pride. What a team," wrote Ardern on Instagram.

Deserving winners England pump energy into fading format

It is difficult not to sympathise with the Kiwis for the non-defeat that ended all dreams, and the Cup might have been shared

BETWEEN WICKETS

SURESH MENON

The World Cup final was a celebration of cricket, revealing the possibilities of the 50-over game which was thought to be on its death bed. So England were lucky, we need to visit the rules afresh, and shouldn't New Zealand have won for good behaviour and long-term consistency? Yes, but what does all that matter when the game brought so much joy and gave us what all sport hopes to provide: a nail-biting climax?

For a long time, it wasn't a particularly good match. The Lord's wicket was too slow and the occasion seemed to get to the performers. But the finish changed everything. A tie is exciting enough, but a double tie? The questions will remain, though. Were England given an extra run when a diving Ben Stokes inadvertently deflected an overthrow to the boundary? What was that strange rule about boundaries deciding a match? How could England have won when New Zealand didn't lose?

Sport is not perfect. Often imperfection is the crack through which we see it at its best. After all, sport is, "the voluntary attempt to overcome unnecessary obstacles," as the philosopher Bernard Suits said, and the final was full of unnecessary obstacles. Rules are arbitrary, so it is as valid to say the team with most boundaries wins as it is to say that the team which loses the fewer wickets does so. In the end, the best team took the title. Too much analysis and too many complaints will only extinguish the pleasure.

Take away: England's triumph means that other teams might try to play like them, in a positive style. ▪ AFP

Diverse approaches
It may not be politically correct to say this, but New Zealand did not deserve to win the World Cup. They played a brand of cricket that was a throwback to the English style of old – overcautious, unadventurous, risk-averse. This, at a time when the format was in danger of being wiped out by T20, and the sport itself was struggling to attract new fans. Something was needed to provide the energy and flair that would revive it, and England delivered that in style. The action was on attack – whether batting or bowling – and the approach attractive.

The essential difference between white ball cricket and the red is this: in the shorter formats, the result is everything, the ends justify the means. The longer format demands logic, style, and emphasis on the process as much as on the result. Only one question needs to be answered in white ball cricket about strategy, tactics, selection: did the team win? If it did then it was all brilliant. If it didn't, it's time to move on.

Good for the game
World Cup-winners tend to set the agenda. Had New Zealand won, it might have been a step back. England winning means that other teams might attempt to play like them, in a positive, sexy style that can only be good for the game.

New Zealand were the underdogs, they have been the best-behaved team in international cricket, and in Kane Williamson they had a gracious captain with a fine tactical brain. It was difficult not to love him and his team – I wrote here earlier how a New Zealand win would be something to look forward to. It is difficult not to sympathise with the team for the non-defeat that ended all dreams, and in the ideal world, the Cup might have been shared.

But sport abhors such fragmentation. Competition demands that there be one winner, and all games have rules for breaking the tie from penalty shootouts to (in the old days) bowl outs and Super Overs. It is not a perfect system, but it is there, no one had an issue with it before the tournament began when all teams approved.

The case of 'extra run'

Former umpire Simon Taufel has said that England were given an extra run, six instead of five, when Stokes's bat deflected the ball. A philosopher in a US University has countered that by saying the law is ambiguous thanks to a misplaced comma, and five runs was right. Interpretation is everything. The argument that England's 'extra run' led to victory assumes that everything else would have remained exactly the same. But one variable can affect others too in real-life situations.

Tournament rules (framed by the International Cricket Council) and laws of the game (the preserve of the Marylebone Cricket Club) are not written in stone, they evolve. Before Duckworth-Lewis appeared and fans stopped complaining about results because they didn't understand the rule, ODIs were decided in a variety of ways. We can get too mathematical about the Lord's final, and forget the human drama and the spirit of the players involved. Ben Stokes, for one, deserves better.

The final will have greatness thrust upon it over the years as more people than the ground could possibly accommodate claim to have watched it live. It was unforgettable, even if Williamson might not echo Roger Federer's words after his loss at Wimbledon a few kilometres and a few minutes away: "I shall try to forget."

For the moment, that is enough.

'Adapting to different coaching styles not difficult'

Reid believes that our finishing and defending have to improve, says Manpreet Singh

HOCKEY

SHREDDUTA CHIDANANDA
BENGALURU

Over the last five years, the Indian men's hockey team has had Australian, Dutch and homegrown coaches in charge, with the frequent changes at the helm now a matter of routine.

When Graham Reid was appointed in April this year, he became the team's third coach in less than 12 months, after Sjoerd Marijne and Harinder Singh. Adapting to varying coaching styles and philosophies may appear to be a tough task for players, but Manpreet Singh disagrees.

"It's not difficult at all," the Indian captain says.

"Whenever a [foreign] coach comes to India he tries to see what India's best qualities are and he wants to retain them. So far, we've never found it hard to adjust to any coach. Because coaches adapt to the team they have; they don't have one fixed style they impose on all teams. They always take their time and see what they have to do. It's the same with Graham."

Reid has sought to make the most of India's attacking strengths while building on the defence, states Manpreet. "Graham has been watching India for some time. He's not trying to change much. He believes that our finishing and our defending have to improve. He sees that we are good at attacking and counter-attacking. We have quick forwards; so his idea is for us to move the ball forward as quickly as possible. The higher up the pitch we play, the better it is for us," he says, after a training session at the SAI here.

Working with Reid has apparently been enjoyable.

AITA Trust starts talent hunt

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT NEW DELHI

The cream of junior talent across the country is all set to get financial and technical support from the All-India Tennis Association (AITA) Trust.

Players in the under-14 age group have been called from various States for a selection camp to be held at the DLTA Complex from July 19.

Each State has been asked to nominate a boy and a girl for the selection. Overall, 16 boys and 16 girls are scheduled to assemble.

To start with, 50% of them will be chosen for support.

A panel of coaches, including Vishal Uppal and Ankita Bhambri, will be part of the committee in the selection process.

The players will be supported for competing in tournaments at home and abroad, and there will also be possibilities of coaches travelling with them to enhance their performance.

The selected players will be monitored through the year, in consultation with their coaches, and appropriate measures taken periodically for further improvement.

Since one of the States did not send its share of two players, Delhi will field four players for the selection camp. There will be more players added for support in due course of time, to cover all the best players from across the country in the age group.

Arrangements have been made for lodging at the R.K. Khanna Stadium. The accompanying parents will be able to stay in nearby hotels at special rates.

India was unlucky with injuries, says Whatmore

'Gill, a fantastic young batsman, could well fill the No. 4 slot'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT CHENNAI

Celebrated coach Dav Whatmore was here on Tuesday to promote Sports Exotica's Luxury Sports vacation and the launch of its Cricket Leisure League, but predictably ended up answering a barrage of questions on India and the recent ICC ODI World Cup.

Whatmore said, "India had a good tournament. It topped the group after nine matches, made runs, had a very good bowling attack, both pace and spin."

He added, "But India ran into New Zealand in the semifinal, and the Kiwis made full use of helpful conditions."

Whatmore said, "The team-management made decisions which were in the best interests of the team. India was unlucky with injuries, lost some key players."

Right technique
He observed, "But the No. 4 issue kept raising its head. India should look at the future. Shubman Gill is a fantastic young batsman and he could well fill that slot. He's got the technique."

Whatmore added, "Then you have Vijay Shankar who is a fine batsman and a useful medium-pacer. Unfortunately, he got injured during the World Cup. As a coach I am always worried about cricketers picking up injuries during net sessions."

He saw a bright future for Virat Kohli as captain.

Just one defeat'

"It's just one defeat in a World Cup semifinal that can happen to any team.

New Zealand did too much damage in the first 10 overs. India has got some powerful strokemakers and a potent attack. It should do very well in the coming days."

Turning his attention to M.S. Dhoni, Whatmore said, "You need to look at the influence he has on the team and the youngsters as a senior player, on the field, dressing room, team meetings, in the bus.

"Dhoni's contribution has been enormous. He alone should decide when he leaves the international stage."

Whatmore's message was clear – Give Dhoni the respect he deserved.

Manpat – a mentor for the shooters

Apurvi Chandela and Meghana Sajjanar are among his students

KAMESH SRINIVASAN NEW DELHI

He is too young to be a coach, but too good, not to be one! The 28-year-old Rakesh Manpat, who beat Olympic champions Abhinav Bindra and Alin George Moldoveanu to the gold, with a borrowed weapon, in the Intershoot at the Hague in 2016, is mentoring the women's world No.1 air rifle shooter Apurvi Chandela, among others.

Rakesh also trains Meghana Sajjanar at his base in Bengaluru, where he is all set to open a second training centre, better equipped.

It has been a golden season for Olympian Apurvi this year, as she won two gold medals with world record in Delhi and Munich, apart from the mixed team silver.

"Apurvi has been mentally very strong. She is able to keep many things off the lane in control and focus on herself more than anyone else in the world.

"It makes her a world beater. She has been shooting well in the past as well", said Rakesh.

After the spell of World Cups, Apurvi has been training in Bengaluru. She makes it a point to visit the centre once every two to three months.

Leaner Australia means business

Coach Jacco Verhaeren sets tough qualifying standards for the Gwangju meet

WORLD SWIMMING

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE SYDNEY

Coch Jacco Verhaeren has set brutally difficult qualifying standards to make Australia's team for this month's World swimming championships team after a poor showing two years ago.

Australia, a traditional power-house, had a disappointing campaign last time in Budapest, slumping to eighth on the medals table.

It's haul of just one gold, five silver and four bronze in the pool left it badly trailing the table-topping Americans, who scooped 18 golds.

Verhaeren's new selection policy means the Aussie team that competes in Gwangju from July 21 is smaller than usual, but looks very strong.

He has moved the Australian trials much closer to the championships – emulating the all-conquering Americans – while setting qualifying times far harder than required by swimming's governing body FINA.

It means the team is down to 27 swimmers compared to the upwards of 40-strong squads who have featured previously. Verhaeren said that while it was leaner it was also meaner with all swimmers clocking times that should put them in medal contention. "There have been some fantastic individual performances," said the Dutchman. "We now have to convert and capitalise on these performances."

Serious threat

The Dolphins will be a serious threat in a host of events, headlined by Olympic 100m freestyle champion Kyle Chalmers and former World record holder Cate Campbell. Mitch Larkin boasts a World-leading time in the 200m individual medley and will also line up in his favoured backstroke across 100m and 200m – for which he was World champion in 2015.

There are also high hopes for a handful of Australia's younger generation, led by teen sensation Ariarne Titmus, who recently set a new Commonwealth best of 3:59.35 in 400m freestyle.

While Mack Horton failed to make the grade in either the 200m, 400m or 800m, he was added to the squad as a discretionary pick, meaning he will almost certainly renew his bitter rivalry with China's Sun Yang.

Horton is the only man to topple Sun over 400m in major competition over the past eight years, winning the Rio Olympic gold after publicly calling the controversial Chinese giant a "drug cheat" in the lead-up to the race.

"He's an Olympic champion, it's not panic stations, he could turn it around in weeks," Verhaeren said of Horton's inclusion.

Chalmers qualified for Korea in 47.35sec to put himself in prime position for gold and perhaps even threaten Brazilian Cesar Cielo's 10-year-old World record of 46.91sec.

Campbell is also in fine form, clocking the fastest 100m time this year of 52.12 – quicker than the 52.27 swum by American Simone Manuel to win the world title in 2017. The two-time Olympic champion is desperate to make amends after famously flopping in the Rio final as the red-hot favourite, but acknowledged everything must click perfectly.

"It is the trickiest race," said Campbell. "That is why it's the blue riband event. Your margin for error is so small."

In India, all fighters get an opportunity to fight international tournaments, they are funded and they also get paid, because these boxers can't get jobs as they have to focus on boxing.

Indian boxing looking up: Amir

Credits the system; backs Bhiduri to win Olympic medal

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA NEW DELHI

Former Olympic medallist and professional star, Amir Khan feels India has a robust system in place to keep producing good boxers for the world stage and singled out 2017 World Championship bronze-winner Gaurav Bidhuri for Olympic glory at the 2020 Tokyo Games.

The 32-year-old from Bolton, who clinched the WBC international welterweight title during a Super Boxing League (SBL) bout in Jeddah last week, believes India has the wherewithal to produce champions, who can follow the likes of Vijender Singh and MC Mary Kom.

"He's an Olympic champion, it's not panic stations, he could turn it around in weeks," Verhaeren said of Horton's inclusion.

"Indian boxing is doing very good. What I like is that they have a system which not many countries have," Amir, who had knocked out Australian Billy Dib last Saturday, told PTI during an interview.

"In India, all fighters get an opportunity to fight international tournaments, they are funded and they also get paid, because these boxers can't get jobs as they have to focus on boxing."

"All countries should follow this system. That's why they have Olympic medalists like Vijender and Mary Kom and many more will come from this, it will only inspire the next generation."

Asked if India can win a medal at the 2020 Olympics, the British-born boxer said: "One kid I follow is Gaurav Bidhuri, he is a very good boxer. I like his style, I like how he fights, how he pushes himself. I have seen his videos. This kid will get far, if he can stay focused. He is in the national team and he made a lot of noises, he had some good performances," added Amir.

Bidhuri is only the fourth Indian boxer to get a medal at a World Championship, claiming the bronze at the 2017 edition in Hamburg, Germany.

Takeover by IOC
Speaking on other issues in boxing, Amir said it is a shame that the AIBA was suspended last month and the International Olympic Committee took over the qualification and competition for the Tokyo Olympics.

"It is crazy what is happening in boxing. IOC has taken full control and AIBA has been stripped off. I fought under AIBA rules and it was fine when I was around, but it is just a shame, you know they are not giving opportunities to young fighters," he said.

"AIBA needs to be there and so they need to set up a proper committee and work hand-in-hand. It is the only way boxing will work. Without amateur boxing, I won't be here. Champion boxers like Mike Tyson, all of them started from amateur. So without AIBA it is going to be difficult."

Amir said he is planning to open super boxing gyms in India and Pakistan next year. "I would like to help these boxers in any way I can. I would love to open an academy in India."

Australian newspapers lose Gayle defamation appeal

SYDNEY
An Australian media group on Tuesday lost an appeal against an Australian $300,000 defamation payout to West Indies cricket star Chris Gayle. Gayle was accused by former media group Fairfax, which at the time was publisher of The Sydney Morning Herald and The Age, of indecently propositioning the woman in a dressing room during the 2015 World Cup in Sydney. Gayle won the defamation case in October last year. The publisher appealed the case arguing it did not receive a fair trial. Gayle also appealed the size of his payout, seeking an increase. # Thrilled to hold Arjuna award: Bopanna

The former World No. 3 doubles star requested live streaming of matches featuring Indians

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

It was after nearly a year that Rohan Bopanna was able to lay his hands on the Arjuna award, as he received it from the Union Sports Minister Kiren Rijiju here on Tuesday.

"It is an amazing feeling to hold the award. Definitely, I would have loved to receive it from the President at the Rashtrapati Bhawan, along with other athletes and achievers. But that does not take anything away from the thrill of receiving it," said Bopanna, who received the trophy along with his wife Supriya Annaiah.

Bopanna, a former World No. 3 doubles star, said he enjoyed his meeting with the minister.

"He is such a big tennis fan, and has been watching tennis for a long time. We spoke for nearly 45 minutes and it was very positive.

"He also talked about following women's cricket, as Smriti Mandhana also got the award today," said Bopanna.

During his interaction with the Sports Minister, Bopanna also requested that all the matches featuring Indian tennis players on the Tour be streamed live on the internet for the benefit of youngsters in the country.

"It may be difficult to get it on television, but live streaming is something that can inspire the young players. The minister was very receptive and said that he would see how it can be done," said Bopanna.

Not having received any money so far this year despite being part of the TOPS funding, Bopanna broached the subject with the minister.

He was told that the national tennis federation needed to keep the athletes in its Annual Calendar for Training and Competition (ACTC) so as to make it a smooth affair.

Since Bopanna and Divij Sharan had won the Asian Games doubles gold, they have been kept in the TOPS as a team.

Thus, whatever money is sanctioned would be split equally between the two.

"I would love to continue to play with Divij on the Tour. But, the fact is that with our ranking, we are not getting into the ATP-500 and Masters events.

"It is not easy to play only the big tournaments with other partners. Even now, the cut for Washington DC is 47. Denis Shapovalov and I are one out at the moment, and have to wait. That is the reality.

"If we don't play the big tournaments on the Tour, how do we prepare for the Grand Slams and the Olympics?" queried Bopanna.

Smriti wants to add more power

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

India opener and No. 1 ODI batswoman Smriti Mandhana is in no mood to take it easy after a memorable season and is busy tweaking her all-round game in the lead up to the Women's T20 World Cup early next year.

The season that went by saw the 22-year-old reach the top of the ODI rankings. Smriti is not just known for her stylish strokeplay anymore. She has added the much-needed power to her game to meet the demands of the modern game.

Ready for the grind

"It was a good fitness camp. Finally after an year or two, we got a month off. It was good for us to come back and do a fitness camp. It was much needed because we are going to have a hectic eight months, so we have to get our body prepared for the grind."

On her batting, she said: "I and coach

Raman sir have been discussing quite a bit about my game. How I can become more consistent in T20 cricket, how I can add more power to my game. I still feel I need to improve on that front.

"You have to improve because other teams are also keeping an eye on you. Adding new shots is not something which I am looking at. I am looking to consistently hit the same length of balls in different places," Smriti, who is confident of another stellar season in the Kia Super League to be held in the United Kingdom next month, said.

While she was India's stand-out performer in ODIs and T20s, the team's performance in the shortest format has left a lot to be desired as it lost six games in a row.

The team did not have enough fire-power and though the issues facing the side were discussed at length in the camp, Smriti feels there is still a long way to go.

It was one of the most sought-after tournaments on the table tennis calendar till about two decades ago. But with the ever-increasing opportunities on the global circuit, the Commonwealth Table Tennis Championship has lost its sheen in the last few years. While India makes an effort to revive the tournament – staging it for the third time in succession with the tournament finding no host for its last edition in 2017 – the hosts will enter as firm favourite to sweep a majority of titles.

Five pull-outs

The 21st edition – seventh in India – will see 12 teams, despite five pull-outs for a variety of reasons, vying for glory at the Jawaharlal Nehru indoor stadium on the banks of the Mahanadi. In the last four years – when India tallied three gold, four silver and seven bronze medals in Surat – the Indian table tennis has reached greater heights. Add to that the fact that some of the other contenders, including England and Nigeria, have rested top players and have instead fielded second-string teams to plan for the future it makes India's job easier to better the medal haul.

While England, the top seeds in men's, has travelled without its top two players, World No. 15 Liam Pitchford and veteran Paul Drinkhall,

Aiming high: Manika Batra will be hoping to lead the Indian women to a second successive triumph. ■ BISWARANJAN ROUT

Nigeria has travelled without star paddlers Aruna Quadri (World No. 21) and Segun Toriola.

India men, on the other hand, have stuck to G. Sathiyan (World No. 24) and A. Sharath Kamal (World No. 32) to lead the charge.

That would mean the Indian men will be the team to beat in the team championship.

Even in the women's section, with Singapore not fielding its top four players and Australia travelling without their highest-ranked paddler, Manika Batra-led India will be in contention for the yellow metal. It will be interesting to see if Manika can lead Indian women's charge to a second glory at the Commonwealth stage in as many years.

mac went for a new combination in defence, trying out the young Gahlot and Rahul Bheke in the full-back position. Pritam Kotal retained his right-back spot while Mandar Rao Dessai rejoined the side as a left-back.

Narender Gahlot found the target for India while Firas Alkhaitib equalised for Syria off a penalty. The draw saw Tajikistan and DPR Korea progress to the final with six points each while Syria (4) joined India (1) on the sidelines.

India's gritty resistance kept Syria at bay in the first half. Head coach Igor Stimac fielded a side that appeared the best combination from the two previous outings – against Tajikistan and DPR Korea. With Adil Khan suspended (two bookings) and Sandesh Jhingan injured, Sti-

Following a barren first half, India returned with more purpose after the break.

It created more chances and finally found the breakthrough in the 52nd minute when Gahlot rose above his marker to head home. This was his first goal in only his second appearance for the country.

India held on to its lead till the 77th minute when the referee awarded a penalty to Syria. Alkhaitib made no mistake with it.
