Kumaraswamy govt. loses trust vote

Confidence motion moved by the Congress-Janata Dal (Secular) coalition is defeated by 6 votes

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

BENGALURU

The 14-month-old Congress-Janata Dal (Secular) government in Karnataka collapsed on Tuesday, with Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy losing the confidence motion in the Assembly by six votes. He later tendered his resignation to Governor Vajubhai Vala.

With the BJP deciding to stake a claim to form the government, the return of its State president B.S. Yeddyurappa as the Chief Minister is imminent.

Heated debate

The motion was put to vote late in the evening, six days after Mr. Kumaraswamy moved it and after a protracted and heated debate on the issue of 15 resignations from the ruling parties, allegedly engineered by the BJP. Though the outgoing Chief Minister was aware that the numbers were stacked against him, he said he "would not run away" from the House and resign, but put the motion to vote.

As Mr. Yeddyurappa also demanded that there be a division of vote, Speaker K.R. Ramesh Kumar counted the votes row by row. While 99 MLAs expressed confidence in the government, 105 opposed the motion. He announced that the motion was defeated, and adjourned the House sine die.

In a House of 225 MLAs (including one nominated), 20 MLAs were not present at the time of voting. They were the 15 rebel MLAs who have resigned – 12 from the Congress and 3 from the JD(S) – 2 Congress MLAs who abstained for health reasons, 2 Independents and the lone BSP MLA.

Muralidhar Rao

NISTULA HEBBAR

NEW DELHI

With the BJP defeating the confidence motion moved by the H.D. Kumaraswamy government, it will stake its claim to power in the State.

Speaking to The Hindu, national general secretary P. Muralidhar Rao said the party would take stock of the situation and make the next move. "We will not shirk the responsibility that the trust vote has thrust upon us," he said.

"As per the directions of the parliamentary board, decisions will be taken," he said.

"State unit chief B.S. Yeddyurappa is the fittest to be the next Chief Minister," a party source said.

The indications were clear that no snap polls would be called.

Assam NRC final publication deadline extended to August 31

No 'sample re-verification' though as Supreme Court turns down pleas of Centre and Assam

KRISHNADAS RAJAGOPAL

NEW DELHI

The Supreme Court on Tuesday extended the deadline for the publication of the final National Register of Citizens (NRC) for Assam from July 31 to August 31.

A Special Bench of Chief Justice of India Ranjan Gogoi and Justice Rohinton F. Nariman, however, did not accede to the "fervent" pleas of the Union and Assam governments for a "sample re-verification" of the names included in and excluded from the draft, which was published on July 30 last year.

Both governments said many names had been wrongly included and excluded, and a sample re-verification was necessary to quell the "growing perception" that lakhs of illegal immigrants might have made it to the list, especially in districts bordering Bangladesh.

"This is too great a matter... People's lives will be affected. We have to be 100% right. There cannot be a speck of doubt on the entirety of the NRC exercise... The error percentage in the border districts is just over 7%, while in other districts the average is over 12%," Attorney General K.K. Venugopal said.

He said the low error percentage in the border districts was suspicious, especially when over the years these areas had seen people cross the border illegally and settle down in the State, thus spoiling the opportunity of the natives to make a life for themselves.

Have wheels, will run — made in India aids for pets

DEBORAH CORNELIOUS

MUMBAI

Just two months after bringing his pet pug Sheru home, Vikas Chawla noticed the puppy consistently wobble. Very quickly, the dog lost all mobility in his hind legs.

"Veterinarians were unable to understand the problem, let alone diagnose it," recalls the 51-year-old Kolkata resident.

Chasing doctors

For a whole year, the Chawla family chased doctors, took Sheru for physiotherapy and even swimming classes. "But there was no improvement and it was tormenting Sheru," says Mr. Chawla, who was advised by several veterinarians to euthanise his puppy.

Instead Mr. Chawla decided to buy him a wheelchair. With international manufacturers quoting a whopping ₹40,000 for a clunky product, he turned to Gujarat-based web-designer-turned-animal prosthesis maker Bhumit Vyas.

Sheru today has a wheelchair built for just ₹8,000.

"My dog's life has changed. He's so happy running around," says Mr. Chawla.

Mr. Vyas has always been an animal lover, but the idea of building economic and sturdy wheelchairs for injured pets was sparked three years ago by the plight of a stray dog that had been hit by a vehicle. Even though it was taken in by a local shelter, Mr. Vyas recalls that it was heartbreaking to see the dog drag itself across the shelter's rough floors.

Ever since, he has worked on designing and building custom-made animal wheelchairs, extending a lifeline to pets with few other options in the country.

100 pets get help

Earlier this year, Mr. Vyas established Mintbowl.in, offering custom-built wheelchairs for animals as small as kittens and as large as St. Bernards. He has since sold more than 100 such prosthetic aids across the country, with orders from as far away as the Andamans.

The parts are imported from China and South Korea and assembled by Mr. Vyas.

THE BIG QUESTION FOR GS MAINS 2020!

After a detailed scrutiny of the last few years GS Mains Papers, one can easily conclude that being selective will not work. Depending heavily on Current Affairs is also a little risky. Mains papers from the past few years have become a mix of deep concepts and their application. So, only Current Affairs, or practice without proper integration of concepts may not yield the desired outcome. Performance in mains demands an advanced integration of concepts, application, and practice.

NIRNIMESH KUMAR
NEW DELHI

A Delhi court on Tuesday granted police two more months to get sanction from the city government to prosecute former Jawaharlal Nehru University Students' Union (JNUSU) president Kanhaiya Kumar and others in a sedition case.

The case pertains to the raising of "objectionable" slogans at an event in 2016 against the hanging of Afzal Guru, the mastermind behind the 2013 Parliament attack. Chief Metropolitan Magistrate (CMM) Manish Khurana extended the deadline after the court was told that no sanction had been received from the city government's Home Department.

My daughter has changed, for the better!

My daughter used to be very irritable and got upset over little things. She would refuse to help with any work at home. But now, I see a big transformation in her. Since the Happiness Class, she has become very caring. She helps her mother with housework after returning from school. It gives us a lot of joy to see her participate in the family and even give lessons on happiness to her younger sister.

Order to grant land rights in illegal colonies may come in a month

Affluent colonies will be taken up later, says Union Minister Hardeep Puri

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The order is likely to be issued in a month for implementing the Centre's proposal to grant ownership rights in 1,797 unauthorised colonies in Delhi, according to the Union Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs.

At a press conference here on Tuesday, Union Minister of State for Housing and Urban Affairs (Independent Charge) Hardeep Singh Puri said a Cabinet note had recently been circulated, after the committee led by Lieutenant-Governor Anil Baijal submitted its report to the Ministry in June on the grant of ownership rights.

Ministry's Secretary Durga Shanker Mishra said that after getting the proposal cleared by the Cabinet, the Ministry would "issue orders within a month".

As for the ownership rights in posh illegal colonies like Sainik Farms in south Delhi, Mr. Puri said the "affluent colonies" would be taken up later.

Slams Kejriwal

Mr. Puri hit out at Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal and the Aam Aadmi Party-led Delhi government for attempting to "take credit" for the proposal.

"He [Mr. Kejriwal] has been quick to take credit for something he has been obstructing," he said, referring to a recent statement by the Chief Minister that the Centre had acted on the Delhi government's proposal to grant ownership rights.

On July 18, Mr. Kejriwal had said that on November 2, 2015, the Delhi government had passed a proposal in the Cabinet to regularise the unauthorised colonies and give ownership rights to people living in the colonies. On November 12, 2015, the proposal was sent to the Central government for approval.

"On July 17, the Centre gave a positive response on it. The Centre is ready to regularise the unauthorised colonies. We want to congratulate the Central government on behalf of the people of Delhi," he had said.

Mr. Mishra said the Delhi government had submitted comments on the Ministry's guidelines for these colonies in 2015 and "had not proposed granting ownership rights".

He said the earlier survey had covered 1,797 colonies that existed as on March 31, 2002, and had 50% unauthorised occupancy as on March 24, 2008. These dates were revised during the first government of Prime Minister Narendra Modi to include the colonies that existed as on June 1, 2014, and had 50% occupancy till January 1, 2015. The survey to identify the colonies in accordance with the revised norms was yet to be completed by the Delhi government, which had first asked for time till 2019 and then till July 2021, he said.

"It is absolutely clear that the Chief Minister's statement is not only factually incorrect, but the Delhi government is also ignoring a large population in unauthorised colonies that could have been covered by the recent steps taken by the Central government for ownership and mortgage rights," Mr. Puri said.

Asked about the AAP government's nomination of non-government officials, Mr. Puri said: "I have a situation where the Board is handled with great competence by the serving secretary in the Ministry. There is no scope in that Board for non-official people. So my answer, you have got."

Further, asked if the Delhi government insisted on going ahead with its nominees, Mr. Puri said: "Who are they to insist? It's a joint venture. You see what is happening elsewhere. I hold one or two other portfolios. If the people don't agree, then they have problems amongst themselves."

Mr. Puri said he would not be "party" to the appointment of directors who would not be as accountable as government officials.

On July 13, Delhi Transport Minister Kailash Gahlot had named Ms. Marlena, Mr. Chadha, the vice-chairperson of the Delhi Dialogue and Development Commission, Jasmine Shah, and Neaveen Gupta, the son of Rajya Sabha MP and AAP treasurer N.D. Gupta, as the State government's nominees to the Board.

Responding to the attack, Mr. Chadha said in a tweet: "By the extension of that logic since the Hon'ble Minister@HardeepSPuri achieved the unachievable feat of losing the Lok Sabha elections from Amritsar on a BJP ticket despite Modi Tsunami and BJP winning 300+ seats, he must put in his papers immediately. (sic.)"

Former Union Minister and Congress leader Ajay Maken also said in a tweet: "@HardeepPuriji should check his facts. Khurana Ji resigned both from Lok Sabha and as Chairman of DMRC on 24th Dec 2003-Because he was being made the Governor of Rajasthan. Sheila Ji had best of working relationships with opposition leaders! (sic.)"

No scope for appointing non-official persons to DMRC board, says Puri

AAP's nomination of non-bureaucrats could face roadblock

DAMINI NATH
NEW DELHI

The Delhi government's proposed nomination of non-bureaucrats, including Aam Aadmi Party leaders Raghubir Singh, Chaudhary and Atishi Marlena, to the Delhi Metro Rail Corporation's Board of Directors could face a roadblock, as Union Minister Hardeep Singh Puri on Tuesday said there was "no scope for non-official people" on the Board.

Asked about the AAP government's nomination of non-government officials, Mr. Puri said: "I have a situation where the Board is handled with great competence by the serving secretary in the Ministry. There is no scope in that Board for non-official people. So my answer, you have got."

Owned in equal parts by the Centre and Delhi government, the DMRC's Board has five nominees each from both. Currently, the Delhi government's nominees include officers.

According to a Ministry official, the nomination of directors would have to be processed by the Centre.

Draws comparison

Meanwhile, making a comparison between late former Chief Minister Sheila Dikshit and current Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal, Mr. Puri said when Dikshit had objected to the appointment of BJP MP Madan Lal Khurana as DMRC chief in 2003, he resigned.

On the other hand, he said, the AAP government had nominated "two people who have lost their elections", referring to Ms. Marlena and Mr. Chadha, who contested the recently-held Lok Sabha polls.

Responding to the attack, Mr. Chadha said in a tweet: "By the extension of that logic since the Hon'ble Minister@HardeepSPuri achieved the unachievable feat of losing the Lok Sabha elections from Amritsar on a BJP ticket despite Modi Tsunami and BJP winning 300+ seats, he must put in his papers immediately. (sic.)"

Former Union Minister and Congress leader Ajay Maken also said in a tweet: "@HardeepPuriji should check his facts. Protests over DU syllabus continue

EVA THAKUR
NEW DELHI

The All India Students' Association (AISA) and other Left-wing student and teacher associations as well as the ABVP on Tuesday organised protests at the Arts Faculty, Delhi University, over the ongoing syllabus row.

Professors at the university alleged that members of the ABVP tried to barge into the departments during their protest. "They blocked the entrances, tried to barge into the departments and attempted to destroy the gates of the English and History department," Professor Rupadasheesh Chakrabarty of the English Department said.

The ABVP, however, said that it had organised peaceful protest marches outside the offices of the HODs of the Departments of English, Sociology, History, Hindi and Political Science demanding immediate revision of the syllabus.

The students' union said that it was protesting to emphasise the need for democratisation of academia.

The AISA's protest was targeted against the ABVP's "interference" in the DU syllabus.

Students paste posters on JNU walls to reclaim it

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

A day after students of JNU organised a mass poster making campaign, the JNUSU on Tuesday organised a protest march on the campus and pasted the posters on the walls to reclaim it.

The administration had threatened the students with disciplinary action if they paste posters on the walls saying that it amounted to defacement of property.

The students said that the "fascist administration feared art" and pasting of posters on the walls was a part of the culture of the campus. "The walls speak at JNU. The walls are the publishers of the poor and we will continue our dialogue through posters," Sai Balaji, president of JNUSU said.

According to the police, in 2011, he was charged with the CBI in a similar case of cheating where he stood as 'guarantor' for a ₹3 crore bank loan. In 2004, he was arrested by Rajouri Garden police in a ₹12 lakh cheating case.

In another case, he managed to get a credit limit of ₹6 crore from the same bank against a property in Pitampura. He also managed to obtain credit limit of another ₹11 crore on a property in Model Town, the senior officer said. In total, he is supposed to pay about ₹30 crore to the bank.

Five held in Dwarka firing case

STAFF REPORTER
NEW DELHI

Five persons were arrested from Najafgarh on Tuesday for opening fire at a woman while driving a car in Dwarka earlier this month, the police said.

Chandra Prakash (27), the main accused, had hatched a conspiracy to kill 30-year-old Kiren, a property consultant, as he held her responsible for his uncle's suicide, they said.

On July 11, when the woman was driving back home after dropping her son to school, two bike-borne men shot at her.

"Analysis of call records and CCTV footage led to the arrest of Chandra Prakash. On his instance, Gulab (27), Giriraj Singh Tomar (26), Abhishek (23) and Naren- der (33), were arrested," Joint Commissioner of Police (Western Range) Madhu Tewari said.

NGT for proper mechanism to scrap vehicles

STAFF REPORTER

NEW DELHI

The National Green Tribunal has directed the Ministry of Environment, Forests and Climate Change to consider evolving a mechanism to tackle unregulated scrapping of vehicles.

A Bench headed by NGT Chairperson Justice Adarsh Kumar Goel said, "We would like to note that scrapping of vehicles in a scientific manner may need to be taken up on (an) organised basis. Current capacity to scientifically scrap vehicles is hardly adequate ... there is need to evolve an appropriate mechanism to set up authorised recycling centres compliant with the environmental norms and prohibit unorganised, unscientific and unauthorised scrapping activity."

Will urge Centre to reinforce Ghaggar embankment: CM

Capt. Amarinder blames the Akalis for 'losing' control with Punjab's division

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
CHANDIGARH

Punjab Chief Minister Amarinder Singh on Tuesday said he would meet the Central government Ministers and officials to press for reinforcement of the embankments of the Ghaggar river, which has breached and caused serious damage to standing crops and other assets in Sangrur and Patiala districts after the recent rain.

He said the division of Punjab by the Akalis in 1966 had led to the Ghaggar going into the hands of the Central Water Commission, causing the State to lose control over the critical maintenance of its embankments.

Punjab CM Amarinder Singh making an aerial survey of flood-affected areas in Sangrur on Tuesday. ■ SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

"The Akalis had even stopped the reinforcement work undertaken by him in his previous term," he said. He added that during his last term, his government had completed 22 km of reinforcement, after which all work was suspended by the previous Shiromani Akali Dal Bharatiya Janata Party government.

He made an aerial survey to assess the damage caused by the flooding due to a breach in the Ghaggar catchment area in Sangrur and Patiala districts.

Crops damaged

Capt. Amarinder said about 50,000 acres of crop had been lost in Patiala and another 10,000 acres in Sangrur. "The Ghaggar was creating problems in Bathinda also, where even the Police Lines are under water," he said, adding that the district had received the highest rainfall in 40 years, causing the water to flow at very high levels.

ties on the campus. If any such activity takes place, it shall be considered a major violation of the conditions for setting up the university, the draft legislation warns.

The government may then take action according to the provisions under the Act or any other law in force, it says.

The Bill is meant to enact an umbrella legislation to govern all private universities.

A statement on the objectives of the Bill said 27 private universities have been established and incorporated under different State Acts. This means there is no uniform law to monitor such private universities, it added. It has become difficult to collect information and ensure quality standards in higher education, the government said.

The draft Bill was approved by the State Cabinet recently. An official had then said that the universities will have to ensure that patriotism, national integration, communal amity, social harmony, secularism, ethics and international goodwill are included in the curriculum.

In the controversial video, Mr. Hasan is seen asking people to boycott shops being run by BJP supporters in Kairana, SP Ajay Kumar said. He has been booked under various sections including 153 (wantonly giving provocation to cause riot), 153 A (promoting enmity between different groups) and 505 (statements conducing to public mischief), he said.

KHUNTI (JHARKHAND)

BJP leader Mago Munda, his wife Lakmani and son Liprai were gunned down on market shelves, admits Mr. Singh. "We're working on identifying the origin of the chain to break the supply," he added.

On July 19, on a tip-off, a Special Task Force team and the department raided Khaneshwari Dairy and Agrawal Chemicals in Amba in Morena district and found samples of the same shampoo, detergents and chemicals in both the places and milk laced with them. In Lahar in Bhind district, another team raided Naveen Traders and Gopal Chilling Centre where adulterated milk was seized.

Munda was sitting with his family near his house in Hethguha village when the assailants opened fire at them around 8.30 p.m. on Monday, the police said.

Another woman, a relative, suffered bullet wound and was referred to Rajendra Institute of Medical Sciences in Ranchi.

Munda was a member of the BJP's Schedule Tribe Executive Committee, party sources said.

Khunti SP Alok said a probe is on.

Rajasthan vaccination drive starts amid protests

Parents in Bharatpur prevented health officials from vaccinating children

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
JAIPUR

A measles-rubella vaccination campaign, targeted to cover 2.26 crore children up to 15 years of age, has started in Rajasthan amid protests by parents in some parts of the State.

The drive met with resistance on its opening day on Monday at a school in Bharatpur district's Nagar block where the parents of 600 students prevented the health officials from vaccinating the children.

At least 15 children, who were administered the vaccine in Jhunjhunu district's Kakoda village, were shifted to a hospital when they complained of vomiting and nausea. On Tuesday, half-a-dozen girls at Vaidik Kanya Vidyalaya in Jaipur were admitted to Sir Padampat

Medical & Health Minister

Mother & Child Hospital when they felt dizzy after vaccination. They were kept under observation till late in the evening.

'Without consent'

While the Medical & Health Department maintained that the vaccination was voluntary, the local officials tried to convince the villagers of its benefits. Some parents alleged that the vaccination was being done without taking their consent and it would have an "adverse impact" on their future generations.

Inaugurating the month-long campaign at Mahaveer Public School here, Medical & Health Minister Raghu Sharma said it would be the biggest vaccination drive in the world, as India accounted for 36% of deaths of the world's children by measles. The campaign's first phase will cover all schools across the State and the second phase will involve outreach to local communities.

About 17,000 trained personnel will undertake vaccination activities at 61,000 Anganwadi centres, while 2.11 lakh principals and nodal teachers, 51,000 accredited social health activists (ASHAs) and 59,000 Anganwadi workers and volunteers will assist in the task. The arrangements for vaccination have been made in 65,000 government schools and 40,000 private schools.

Dr. Sharma said his department was paying the highest attention to reduction in infant mortality rate and maternal mortality ratio, as a result of which the health indicators had depicted a continuous improvement. The infant mortality rate in the State had registered an improvement by 4 digits, showing a decline from 32 to 28 per 1,000, he said.

Besides, the World Health Organization has reported that Rajasthan has carried out 90% vaccination in 2018-19. The measles-rubella vaccination drive is set to cover all pre-school children, government and private school children and out-of-school children.

M.P. government to invoke NSA against milk adulterators

Identify and act against guilty government officials'

STAFF REPORTER

BHOPAL

Days after inter-State synthetic milk rackets were busted in two districts of Madhya Pradesh, State Public Health and Family Welfare Minister Tulsi Ram Silawat has said that the National Security Act, 1980, would be invoked in a case of milk adulteration against four persons in Gwalior two years ago.

Stating that the adulterators were a threat to public health, State Controller of the Food and Drug Administration Ravindra Singh said, "After the rackets were discovered, we began collecting samples across the State and have sent them to a lab for testing. Mr. Silawat has asked us to identify and act against government officials who may be part of the nexus."

Spurious products in Morena and Bhind may still be on the market shelves, admits Mr. Singh. "We're working on identifying the origin of the chain to break the supply," he added.

The State, for the first time, had invoked the Act in a case of milk adulteration against four persons in Gwalior two years ago.

Stating that the adulterators were a threat to public health, State Controller of the Food and Drug Administration Ravindra Singh said, "After the rackets were discovered, we began collecting samples across the State and have sent them to a lab for testing. Review of rejected claims under Forest Rights Act patchy: activists

'The Madhya Pradesh government is focusing on justifying rejections instead of rectifying them'

SIDDHARTH YADAV
BHOPAL

A day before the States are to file affidavits in the Supreme Court over the status of rejected claims under the Forest Rights Act, 2006, gram sabhas are yet to be organised in several districts of Madhya Pradesh, which resolved to reconsider 3.6 lakh rejected claims afresh, say activists.

The government's pace is sluggish and it is not working on a mission-mode to review the rejected claims. There is lack of coordination among those on the field and the Collectors, who are not trained to hold the sabhas.

Although the government had declared it would reconsider the rejected claims, there is no road map for it," said Bharat Jan Andolan national convener Vijay Bhai.

Despite this, the government has sent a positive signal, he added, by declaring in the affidavit that the Act is a legislation which doesn't prescribe eviction but grants rights to tribals and other forest dwellers.

In a mammoth drive from July 15 to 20, the State government had decided to review 3,60,181 rejected claims and Additional Chief Secretary, Panchayat and Rural Development, Gauri Singh had directed the District Collectors to hold the sabhas.

In Burhanpur district, Madhuri Krishnaswamy of the Jagriti Adivasi Dalit Sangathan, said in almost 50-60 villages having around 100 families each, residents who have been living in forests for years lost another opportunity to stake claim as gram sabhas were not organised. Of the 14,260 claims in the district, 6,462 were rejected as on June 30.

The district became a flashpoint recently when foresters on July 9 in Siwal village allegedly used pellet guns on tribals, injuring four of them, as part of an eviction drive. On Tuesday, almost 1,000 villagers of Nepanagar tehsil in the district staged a sit-in outside the local police station.

In Jabalpur division, the district administration was mainly trying to justify the 40,012 rejections rather than rectifying them, said National Alliance of People's Movement member Rajkumar Sinha. "The officials rejected the claims earlier in an arbitrary manner and now they are not reviewing them properly. They still demand government-issued documents as proof of rightful claim, whereas an affidavit from village elders is allowed," he added.

Shankar, an activist from Alirajpur district, said villagers have no clue about the special gram sabhas being held. "Although the patwaris have started visiting villages, they are busy working for the PM Pradhan Mantri Kisan Samman Nidhi programme," he said.

Three killed

near Pune

SHOUMOJIT BANERJEE
PUNE

Three Pune-based men were killed and five others seriously injured after a truck collided with their two-wheelers on the Pune-Satara road early on Tuesday.

Aniket Randive (23), Sushil Kamble (23), and Suraj Shinde (24), were residents of the Taljai Tekdi area of Pune.

According to the police, the eight were celebrating a friend's birthday till late on Monday night. They were travelling towards Shivapur, on the outskirts of the city, sometime after midnight on three two-wheelers. Around 1 a.m., a truck hit them from behind near Kondanpur, around 25 km from the city.

Two of the men were killed on the spot as their vehicles were flung off the road, while the third died during treatment at a nearby hospital where all injured were taken.

Police officials said they are investigating the cause of the accident.

In a similar accident early on Sunday, nine students were killed on the spot along the Pune-Solapur highway after their car, which was apparently over-speeding, hit a median and collided with a truck.

Modi, Shah to take part in BJP's pre-poll outreach programme

Home Minister to kick off CM's State-wide tour, PM likely to conclude it

SHARAD VYAS
MUMBAI

Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah will participate in the Bharatiya Janta Party's (BJP) month-long outreach programme scheduled across Maharashtra in the run-up to the Assembly elections.

Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis on Tuesday confirmed that Mr. Shah has been invited and is likely to flag off the Maha Janadesh Yatra on August 1. Mr. Modi will attend the concluding day of the event, for which a date is yet to be finalised, senior party functionaries said.

A senior BJP minister, who is part of the event management committee, said, "The Maha Janadesh Yatra will start from Amravati and will be flagged off by Mr. Shah, while the honourable Prime Minister will conclude the event in Nashik."

Last week, at the BJP's State executive meeting held in Mumbai under the leadership of working president J.P. Nadda, party leaders announced their intention to reach out to different sections of society through the State-wide tour. Mr. Fadnavis will cover 152 of the 288 Assembly constituencies over a period of one month, and is likely to address 150 rallies, senior party leaders said.

30-district tour

The Maharashtra BJP clarified it has yet to receive confirmation from the Prime Minister's Office, but does have one from Mr. Shah's office. The yatra will cover a distance of over 4,000 km across 30 districts. "This is a new war, we need a new strategy to fight the enemy. There is no point resting on our laurels; even the Pandavas did not do so after winning the war in the Mahabharata. We must work on this new strategy and take it to the people," Mr. Fadnavis told party workers in the meeting. "The planning of this yatra must be flawless and ensure that maximum people participate in it," he said.

The BJP yatra is being seen as a move to counter the Shiv Sena's Jan Aashirwad Yatra, in which Yuva Sena chief Aaditya Thackeray is travelling across major districts. The tour has fuelled speculation that the party is preparing Mr. Thackeray for the role of chief minister.

Highly improper for Centre to amend RTI Act, says Hazare

Move will weaken democratic institutions, says activist

SHOUMOJIT BANERJEE
PUNE

It is highly improper on the Centre's part to try and amend the Right to Information (RTI) Act, anti-corruption crusader Anna Hazare said on Tuesday. The government's introduction of the regressive RTI Amendment Bill was akin to deceiving the people of the country, he said.

Speaking at his residence in Ralegan Siddhi in Ahmednagar district, the octogenarian said the RTI Act was a solid piece of legislation empowering citizens of the country.

He said that while the Narendra Modi government was otherwise doing good work, he failed to understand why the Centre was suddenly bent upon introducing changes to the RTI Act that would only weaken democratic institutions and people's rights. "Introducing amendments like concerning the appointment of information commissioners will only lead to a dictatorship," Mr. Hazare said. The standing committee, which was constituted at the time of the drafting of the Act, had already taken into consideration all factors pertaining to the status of information commissioners, and no further change was necessary, he said.

He recalled that he had staged a massive 'Jan Andolan' (people's protest rally) on August 9, 2006, in Alandi

"Eleven days after I sat on a hunger strike, Dr. Singh, through Prithviraj Chavan, who was then Minister of State for the Prime Minister's Office, had sent me a written assurance that he would not effect any changes in the RTI Act." Mr. Hazare said. He said he would write to the Prime Minister on the issue and urge him not to bring about any amendments to the RTI Act.

Asked whether he would lead a new agitation against the RTI Amendment Bill, he said he had sat on 19 hunger strikes in the past. "At 82, I do not have the strength to lead new agitations. However, if the youth and citizens take the lead, I will participate in such a demonstration," he said.

'Wide access to OTC drugs frees up govt. resources'

OTC policy may take shape in six months to a year, says drug producers' group chief

JYOTI SHELAR
MUMBAI

Self-medication is not new to India. A 2015 survey conducted by Lybrate among 20,000 people across 10 cities showed that 52% of people practised self-medication. But the country lacks a well-defined regulation for over-the-counter (OTC) medicines, important for patient safety.

The government is in the process of finalising an OTC drug policy, which may bring more clarity on the drugs that a wider population can access. The Organisation of Pharmaceutical Producers of India (OPPI), a body of multinational drug companies, has worked with the government over the past one year by providing inputs to the draft of the OTC policy.

The Hindu spoke to OPPI president Annaswamy Vaideesh about the need for such guidelines and the changes they will bring about in healthcare.

What role did OPPI play in creating the OTC policy?

Drugs known to have negligible side effects ... can be classified as OTC so that access to them becomes easy and wide policy draft? We brought experts together to help develop the guidelines. We also invited companies like Cipla, Glenmark, Sun Pharma and others who are not members of OPPI, but their inputs were valuable. Additionally, we got international experts to bring in perspective. The government has hailed the inputs and is seriously considering taking them forward. We have looked at the best practices in various economies and highlighted what we can take from them, the kind of drugs that should be included in the OTC list and the ones that should not.

How will an OTC policy help? ■ First of all, when you widen access to OTC drugs, it automatically releases the government's time and resources, which can be focused on drugs that need to be stringently prescribed. We are saying that drugs that are known to have negligible side effects and don't require much explanation can be classified as OTC so that access to them becomes easy and wide. These drugs can be made easily accessible in small towns as well. The idea is to make sure that the right product rests in the right place. Society has learnt that OTC medicines are those that don't have major side effects but help improve health. Many countries have brought more products under the OTC category to focus on drugs that need to be strictly regulated.

We also face the threat of antibiotic resistance. Will bringing more drugs under the OTC category lead to overuse or misuse?

■ An antibiotic is a drug meant to treat a bacterial infection. But people who have viral infections, fever and so on are taking antibiotics, causing the resistance. However, when drugs for common viral infections, sore throat, acidity, indigestion, nausea, vomiting, stomach pain, injury, cuts, wounds, burns, acne etc are made available under OTC, people will get access to the right medication. Many people are using such drugs without prescription anyway. But an OTC policy will improve access to drugs that are okay to be sold as OTC and restrict access to other drugs. Besides antibiotic resistance, steroid use is also a big problem. There are people who use steroid creams for skin whitening. But we are working with the government to spread awareness about the responsible use of antibiotics and steroids.

What stage is the policy in?

■ The submission has gone; we have crossed three-fourths of the passage. The government may take six months or a year. It is in the process of finetuning it and converting it into a legislation.

A bunch of tribal students scaled Mount Everest last year, prompting the government to announce the support system to train and encourage future athletes.

The mission is directed towards six sporting disciplines, while grooming the students for selection in the 2024 Olympics. The government has set aside funds at the district level to construct facilities and a stadium, while a mega sports complex is planned at Ballarpur with a focus on six areas: archery, shooting, volleyball, swimming, weightlifting and gymnastics. "The actor had last year promised to visit the districts and encourage young students for the mission. We are all set to launch the event and hope to find a Hima Das in Maharashtra soon," said a senior official.

Political instability will haunt you, Kumaraswamy tells BJP

'You will see bombs dropping soon after you form your Ministry'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
BENGALURU

Declaring that he was quitting happily without anxiety, outgoing Karnataka Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy on Tuesday cautioned the Bharatiya Janata Party's Chief Ministerial candidate B.S. Yeddyurappa that political instability would haunt him as reverse political defections were bound to begin soon.

"The BJP leaders are in a tearing hurry to capture power after effecting political defections from the coalition. But let's see what happens after a week. I'm sure you [Mr. Yeddyurappa] will see dropping of bombs soon after you form your Ministry," Mr. Kumaraswamy remarked minutes before the confidence motion was put to vote.

Declaring that his party would not entertain its rebels if they want to return, Mr. Kumaraswamy felt that it would be better to face mid-term polls as the BJP had initiated the political environment. "You look anxious, but I'm not. In fact, I'm very happy," Mr. Kumaraswamy taunted Mr. Yeddyurappa. "Yes, I had wept when I had to quit during my earlier stint as Chief Minister, but not now."

Recalling how Income Tax raids had taken place on various non-BJP leaders in Karnataka just ahead of the Lok Sabha polls, Mr. Kumaraswamy wondered why the I-T department was keeping quiet now though hundreds of crores of rupees were allegedly changing hands while effecting defections.

He also accused the BJP of trying to misuse the ongoing inquiry into the IMA scam to pressure an MLA, who allegedly has a link to the scam, to toe its line. Seeking to set the record straight on the flagship programme of farm loan waiver, he reeled out statistics on the status of its implementation. He said ₹25,000 crore had been earmarked so far. He also touched upon all the major programmes taken up by his government.

Refutes rebels' claims

Debunking claims of the rebel MLAs that neglect of their constituencies was the main reason for them to tender resignations, Mr. Kumaraswamy furnished details to the Legislative Assembly on how the rebels had actually received a huge quantum of funds for development of their segments.

As per the statistics revealed by him, all the rebels have got more than ₹100 crore for their constituency in the last one year, while some of them have even received more than ₹500 crore.

Mr. Kumaraswamy stated that Ramesh Jarkiholi, who began the episode of rebellion, had received ₹262 crore, while Munirathna had been given ₹559 crore and Byrathi Basavaraj ₹332 crore. Pratapgouda Patil had got ₹517 crore, while K.R. Pet MLA Narayana Gowda, who had been lamenting about lack of funds, had actually been given ₹474 crore, he said.

He particularly chose former JD(S) president and rebel MLA A.H. Vishwanath for attack by saying that he was pained over the veteran's remarks that his government had indulged in demonic politics.

Similarly, he alleged that another JD(S) rebel Gopalaih wanted him to protect his brother who was allegedly involved in a murder.

Dangerous trade'

Terming the defection of MLAs in the present scenario as "wholesale horse-trade," Congress Legislature Party leader Siddaramaiah on Tuesday said while wholesale trade is dangerous, retail trade is not such an issue.

"How can a democratically elected government survive if there is wholesale trade of MLAs?" he asked.

Condemning the BJP's attempts to form the government using unconstitutional methods, he said: "Horse-trading began as soon as the BJP was given 15 days by the Governor to prove majority last year. If one or two MLAs are traded in retail, it is one thing. If they are traded wholesale, it causes a problem for any government."

Kerala Tourism's new initiative

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM

Holidayers coming to Kerala for rejuvenation therapy and wellness-based Ayurveda can look for better quality and standardised services with Kerala Tourism's new classification scheme in place for Ayurveda centres.

Henceforth, all classified units will have to append the term "Kerala Tourism Ayurveda Centre" to the name of their units on brochures, signages and communications. Besides creating a brand and helping holidayers to identify approved centres, this is expected to further promote wellness-based Ayurveda, the USP of Kerala Tourism, and increase footfall.

Road and vehicle access, qualified doctors with 'A' class registration from the Travancore Cochin Medical Council, government- approved male and female masseurs, 24-hour doctor facility, separate treatment rooms for men and women, English-speaking front office staff, non air-conditioned treatment rooms, and surveillance cameras have been made mandatory at the Ayurveda centres.

Based on facilities and quality, the centres will be classified as per the guidelines and checklist by a five-member committee headed by the Director of Tourism as Ayur Silver, Ayur Gold, and Ayur Diamond. Ayur Silver will offer minimum facilities and Ayur Diamond the maximum.

Ayur Silver and Ayur Gold will replace the existing Green leaf and Olive leaf categories, official sources told The Hindu. Only Ayur Gold and Ayur Diamond categories will be eligible for incentives and subsidies.

Fruit hub Kanthallur is playing host to visitors with orchards of ripe fruit ready for picking Another apple season has started at Kanthallur in Idukki, giving a boost to farm tourism activities there. Kanthallur is the only place in the State where apples are cultivated and tourists throng the farms to enjoy the fruits.

The apple is late entrant to Kanthallur, a fruit hub, where almost all varieties of fruits are grown. Every season has its own delicacy ranging from oranges, guavas, gooseberries, blackberries, egg fruits, peaches, plums, to passion fruit, pears, and tamarillo.

However, tourists prefer apples which they can pluck from the trees even as they walk around the orchards. The visitors can also directly buy the apples from the farmers who can command better prices at the farmgate than in the market.

fruits is grown at Kulachivayal, Keezhanthur, Perumala, and Puttur in the grama panchayat. Though apple is not the main fruit at Kanthallur, farmers cultivate it with other fruit species. It is estimated that around five hectares are under apple cultivation.

"It is an additional income to the farmers and tourists who taste it also purchase and pay better," says C.T. Kuruvila, an apple farmer, adding that more farmers are taking up apple cultivation.

Kanthallur agriculture officer M. Govindaraj says soil and climate conditions here are suitable for apple cultivation, though the production depends on weather conditions.

"If the temperature drops below 0°C in the winter, apple production will be better. The average temperature favourable to apple farming in Kanthallur is 5 to 15°C. Unlike oranges, which have been cultivated here for decades, farmers moved to apple cultivation just about a decade ago with Kashmiri species such as Tropical Beauty and Parle Beauty grown there," Mr. Kuruvila says. Apple trees shed leaves in January and new leaves and flowers emerge by February. The majority of the fruit ripen by the end of July. Orange is the other attraction for the tourists visiting the orchards in Kanthallur.

SC moves to rein in fraudulent builders

Cancels the registration of the Amrapali Group under the Real Estate Regulatory Authority

KRISHNADAS RAJAGOPAL
NEW DELHI

Unfinished business: Over 70% of the projects initiated by the group a decade ago are still incomplete. •PTI

The Supreme Court on Tuesday directed the Union and State governments to move against builders defrauding homebuyers even as it cancelled the registration of Amrapali Group under the Real Estate Regulatory Authority (RERA) and directed the State-owned National Buildings and Construction Corporation (NBCC) to complete the unfinished housing projects of the company in a relief for over 40,000 homebuyers.

A Bench of Justices Arun Mishra and U.U. Lalit listed out how the company and its directors diverted the hard-earned money of homebuyers on luxury watches, cars, helicopter rides, villas in tourist destinations to have "fun", etc. Over 70 percent of the housing projects initiated a decade ago remained incomplete. Families ended up paying both their rent and the loans due for their "dream home" in one of Amrapali projects.

The court directed the Enforcement Directorate and other law enforcement agencies to investigate and nail the people in the group responsible for fraud and моney laundering. It sought a progress report. It fixed the next hearing for August 9.

The 270-page judgment made scathing remarks at the lender banks, Noida and Greater Noida authorities who remained mute spectators while the company and its directors conducted "sham transactions" under their very nose. These included sub-lease of public land got on huge concessions, grant of NOC for illegal mortgages, diversion of loans to "dummy companies" run by their office boys and peons. All this without bothering to pay compensation to the farmers whose lands were taken away for housing projects.

The court accused the banks of "negligence and non-monitoring"; of turning a blind eye to such an extent that even the basic checks were not done. On the other hand, the group owed over Rs.5426.09 crore to the Noida and Greater Noida authorities.

The judgment also exposed the ways in which builders collude with banks and authorities to crush the hand which feeds them - the lower income and middle class homebuyers.

In observation made at 4.00 p.m., Jodhpur, Rajasthan recorded an overall air quality index (AQI) score of 187 indicating a moderate level of pollution. In contrast, Haldia, West Bengal, recorded a healthy AQI score of 20

Air Quality Code:

■ Poor ■ Moderate ■ Good (Readings indicate average AQI)
SO₂: Sulphur Dioxide. Short-term exposure can harm the respiratory system, making breathing difficult. It can affect visibility by reacting with other air particles to form haze and stain culturally important objects such as statues and monuments.

NO_x: Nitrogen Dioxide. Aggravates respiratory illness, causes haze to form by reacting with other air particles, causes acid rain, pollutes coastal waters.

CO: Carbon monoxide. High concentration in air reduces oxygen supply to critical organs like the heart and brain. At very high levels, it can cause dizziness, confusion, unconsciousness and even death.

PM2.5 & PM10: Particulate matter pollution can cause irritation of the eyes, nose and throat, coughing, chest tightness and shortness of breath, reduced lung function, irregular heartbeat, asthma attacks, heart attacks and premature death in people with heart or lung disease

Group alleges starvation death of youth in Odisha

STAFF REPORTER

Bhubaneswar
A teenager died after reportedly starving for five days in Odisha's Nuapada district, members of the Odisha Kha-dya Adhikar Abhiyan (Right to Food Campaign-Odisha) claimed on Tuesday.

The deceased's sister, who was also starving, however, survived. She was shifted to a shelter home after her brother's death.

Waking up late on the distress of the siblings, the Odisha government issued them a ration card under the Antyodaya Anna Yojana (AYY), a scheme to provide highly subsidised food to the poorest of poor families, three days after the death.

UGC list of fake universities: 14 out of 23 around since 2005

Yet to close doors despite Anti-Malpractice Cell's efforts

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

The University Grants Commission (UGC) has issued a list of 23 fake universities which are "self-styled, unrecognised institutions functioning in contravention of the UGC Act", warning students not to be taken in by their claims. Most of these institutions have been on the UGC's watchlist for well over a decade, despite the regulator's annual claim that its Anti-Malpractice Cell (AMPC) has been taking appropriate legal action against them.

Out of the 23 institutions in Tuesday's public notice, as many as 14 of them also appear on the 2005-06 list of fake universities published by UGC. These long-term offenders include four institutions in Delhi: Commercial University, United Nations University, Vocational University and ADR-Centric Juridical University. Seven institutions in Uttar Pradesh have also been on the list since 2005: Varanasi Sanskrit Vishwavidyalaya, Mahila Gram Vidyapith/Vishwavidyalaya, Gandhi Hindi Vidyapeeth, National University of Electro Complex Homeopathy, Netaji Subhash Chandra Bose Open University, Uttar Pradesh Vishwavidyalaya and the Maharana Partap Shiksha

Niketan Vishwavidyalaya.

Others, which seem to have existed for the last 14 years despite UGC's watchlist, include the Badagamvi Sarkar World Open University Education Society (Karnataka), St. John's University (Kerala) and Raja Arabic University (Maharashtra).

The Anti-Malpractice Cell of the UGC was set up in 1995 to deal with complaints regarding fake universities. Through the years, the UGC's annual reports have documented FIRs and show cause notices filed against some of these institutions. Despite the Cell's efforts, many of the institutions have yet to shut their doors.

High-level probe into three incidents of fire

Union Minister orders fire and safety audit for all their buildings

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI
The government on Tuesday ordered a "high-level inquiry" into three instances of fire that occurred at buildings owned by the state-run telecom firms Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited (BSNL) and Mahanagar Telephone Nigam Limited (MTNL) in three cities on Monday.

No casualties

While two major incidents occurred at the MTNL building in Mumbai and the BSNL building in Kolkata, one minor incident occurred in the MTNL building in New Delhi.

These outbreaks were controlled by the fire department. No casualties of the BSNL employees or other persons in the buildings were reported," an official statement said.

It said while the reasons were being established by the fire and the police departments, Minister for Communications Ravi Shankar Prasad "has ordered a high-level inquiry by BSNL/MTNL in relation to the said incidents". He had also asked that the two firms should conduct fresh fire and safety audit for all their buildings.

Services disrupted

Following the fire at the nine-floor building in Mumbai, landline services of about 25,000 customers and Internet services of about 8,000 customers were down. These are likely to be restored within four days.

Likewise, due to the incidents at the BSNL building at Salt Lake, Kolkata, mobile services in the Andaman & Nicobar Islands and data services in West Bengal have been impacted and are expected to be restored in the next 24 hours.

Expert teams from BSNL and MTNL have been deployed round the clock to ensure complete restoration of services at the affected premises. The situation is being closely monitored at CMD level in both the organisations," the statement said.

What suits Trump

The U.S. President violated diplomatic protocols in talking of mediation on Kashmir

Facing a furore in Parliament over the issue, the government has clarified in no uncertain terms that Prime Minister Narendra Modi did not request U.S. President Donald Trump to "mediate or arbitrate" on the Kashmir issue, as Mr. Trump claimed on Monday. Addressing Parliament, External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar said India remains committed to its policy of discussing all outstanding issues with Pakistan only bilaterally, and assured the House that Mr. Modi did not raise this with Mr. Trump at their recent meeting in Osaka during the G-20 summit. In making the claim that has been roundly denied by New Delhi, Mr. Trump breached several well-laid diplomatic protocols, including one against discussing privileged conversations with a leader, during a public conversation with another. Mr. Trump also said a "lot" of his talks with the Pakistan Prime Minister would focus on India and Afghanistan, an odd departure from the precept of putting bilateral issues to the fore, and being more discreet when discussing sensitive relations involving other countries. For New Delhi, it may be time to recognise that Mr. Trump's comments are a sign of new realities in international diplomacy, where leaders care less about niceties and more about open communication. Mr. Modi will have to prepare accordingly for some plain-speaking when he visits the U.S. and meets with Mr. Trump, as he is expected to, in September this year.

In the short term, the government's decision to address the claim by Mr. Trump will have nipped any repercussions in the bud. The government should pursue the issue through diplomatic channels with the U.S. government, and determine whether Mr. Trump made the comments out of confusion or deliberately. India has always opposed any suggestion of third-party mediation on Jammu and Kashmir; both the 1972 Shimla Agreement and the 1999 Lahore declaration included India's and Pakistan's commitment to resolving issues between them. It is unlikely that Mr. Modi would have spoken out of line with this policy, and the most charitable explanation for Mr. Trump's new contention is that he mistook India's appeal to the international community to hold Pakistan accountable for terror groups on its soil that carry out attacks in Kashmir, for a general desire for mediation. Mr. Trump's comment in March that the U.S. successfully mediated for the release of captured fighter pilot Abhinandan by Pakistan may have even given him some hope that the U.S. could play a larger role on the Kashmir issue, and New Delhi would need to address that. A more worrying proposition is that Mr. Trump took the line favoured by his Pakistani interlocutors on Kashmir as a way of enhancing his own plans for a pullout from Afghanistan with Pakistan's help on security and talks with the Taliban. While the damage from Mr. Trump's words may not have a very lasting impact on India-U.S. ties, that from any rushed measures to force a resolution in Afghanistan will have far-reaching and lasting impact, including on India.

Caribbean cruise

India goes to the West Indies sensing more cricketing opportunities than threats

In the past, a tour of the West Indies was deemed the toughest endeavour for any cricketer. Reputations were either enhanced or lost and fractures seemed imminent in the battles against the fiery fast bowlers, while the crowds requested the perfume-ball, a euphemism for a nasty bouncer. But times change, and the inherent quality of the Caribbean squads has declined so much that a sporting visit to the isles with their sunny beaches is seen as an exercise towards etching triumphs, fattening batting averages and multiplying bowling yields. With this as the backdrop, India will fly halfway across the earth for a set of three Twenty20s – interestingly, two of them are being hosted in the United States of America – three ODIs and two Tests against the West Indies from August 3 to September 3. India will be the favourites across the three formats, though in limited overs games, where the abridged nature of the sport tends to iron out the flaws, the host might fancy its chances. The tour, coming as it does close on the heels of the World Cup in England, presents an opportunity for India to look ahead, make a few changes in personnel and prepare for the future. Transition always coincides with the quadrennial World Cup and India too is part of that global trend.

M.S. Dhoni has straddled three generations, the one that had Sachin Tendulkar, the second with the likes of Yuvraj Singh and the latest under Virat Kohli as captain. The former India captain has held firm in a storied career of triumphs, losses, frenzied runs, sharp catches and quicksilver stumpings, but at 38 he is near his cricketing twilight. Though he avoided retiring from the blue shade by preferring to serve the Army in his role as an honorary lieutenant colonel, Dhoni presented an opportunity to M.S.K. Prasad and his fellow selectors to fast-track Rishabh Pant as the first-choice wicket-keeper batsman across all formats. Dhoni, who retired from Tests in 2014, might still make appearances in the shorter versions, and there is speculation about next year's Twenty20 World Cup in Australia being his preferred last stop. But it all depends on what the selectors and Kohli prefer as they look at building the team afresh for the 2023 World Cup in India. The imminent West Indies tour will help the team management get a fair idea about the potential in the likes of Shreyas Iyer, Mayank Agarwal, Manish Pandey, Rahul Chahar, Krunal Pandya, Washington Sundar, Khaleel Ahmed, Deepak Chahar and Navdeep Saini, besides the other regulars. The opposition may be depleted, but for these players, hope floats and a crucial August awaits.

A bridge across the India-Pakistan abyss

It would be a travesty to waste the opportunities made possible by the Kartarpur corridor plan

SUHASINI HAIDER

Ties between India and Pakistan are at an ebb – their lowest in two decades. The thread from this phase, as a series of events – the Kargil war (1999), the Agra Summit (2001), the attack on Parliament (2001) and Operation Parakram (2001-02) – meant a sustained period of deep hostilities, with diplomatic missions downgraded and travel routes truncated. Since 2015 and Prime Minister Narendra Modi's Lahore visit in the same year, the leaders of both countries have not met for talks. In mid-2018, the backchannel diplomacy between the National Security Advisers of both countries was called off by Pakistan, while in September 2018, India called off a planned meeting between the Foreign Ministers in New York. In the wake of the Pulwama terror attack in Jammu and Kashmir in February this year, India attacked terror targets in Pakistan which in turn sent fighter jets to the border. Subsequently, after India moved missiles and deployed submarines, Pakistan raised a full air alert and imposed an airspace ban that lasted till mid-July.

Unbroken thread

What has been disconnected from all those tensions are the talks on the Kartarpur corridor. The offer from Pakistan's Prime Minister Imran Khan to open the corridor was conveyed first by Pakistan Army Chief General Qamar Javed Bajwa, and accepted by Mr. Modi, marking a rare moment of coordination between the two nations.

That the talks have continued through one of the most difficult years in the relationship is equally remarkable; there have been three rounds of technical-level meetings to ensure both sides complete the infrastructure needed before November 2019, the 550th anniversary of Sikhism's founder Guru Nanak.

The symbolism for pilgrims who will be able to travel from Dera Baba Nanak town in Punjab to the Gurdwara Darbar Sahib Kartarpur just a few kilometres inside Pakistan, which are sites where Guru Nanak spent his last few years, goes well beyond the date and year. This is a route that the Guru and his followers traversed with ease for half a millennium until Partition resulted in the India-Pakistan border cutting through it. While Sikh pilgrims have been given easy access since then to Guru Nanak's birthplace at Nankana Sahib, the circuitous 200 km route to Kartarpur via Amritsar-Wagah has been off limits. The Kartarpur shrine has one of the last copies of the original Guru Granth Sahib; there are some who believe that it contains not only the wisdom of the 10 Gurus but is itself the 11th and last Guru. Giving life to the wishes of so many will also ensure political dividends in India, an aspect no government in the State or at the Centre can ignore.

Some irritants

Despite the rich significance of the corridor, there were many reasons for the earlier hesitation to revive the project. The Kartarpur corridor project is an issue that has been raised by India for several decades, with New Delhi's reasons for wanting the corridor clear. However, in the case of Pakistan, these have not been as transparent, with the military establishment's surprise backing only raised doubts on whether Islam-bad has an ulterior motive. In a dossier handed over during the last round of talks on Kartarpur on July 14, India spelt out its apprehensions over Pakistan allowing separatist Khalistani groups, including those funded by groups based in the United Kingdom, the United States and Canada, to try and influence pilgrims. Of specific concern is the 'Referendum 2020' plan by the Sikhs for Justice group (banned by India).

This group has already held a series of public events in the U.S. and the U.K. demanding a 'worldwide referendum' on a separate Sikh state. The other irritant is the possible use of the corridor for drugs and arms movement; there are many routes and tunnels at the border between the two Punjabs. The terror threat by Pakistani Punjab-based anti-India groups such as the Lashkar-e-Toiba and the Jaish-e-Mohammed is also a constant concern.

Agreeing to the Kartarpur corridor means the government has made an exception from a matter concerning national policy for a matter of faith. In the last few years, every avenue has been shut down from those for official, bilateral and regional (South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation) talks to even those for travel and tourism. Trade too has ground to a halt with cross-Line of Control (LoC) trade route suspension the latest casualty.

With such strictures in place, New Delhi's decision to embark on a course that will need regular and repeated India-Pakistan meetings is nothing short of a breach of its otherwise firm "no talks without terror ending" policy. For example, at a time when Indian and Pakistani Ministers do not even hold talks when they meet at multilateral conferences, New Delhi sent two senior Ministers to Pakistan to participate in the groundbreaking ceremony for the event. It remains to be seen who the government will send to the inauguration, and whether Mr. Modi, who has likened building the Kartarpur corridor to the fall of the Berlin wall, will grace the occasion.

A range of possibilities

With the Kartarpur exception to India's policy on Pakistan now established, it is necessary to see whether it can be built on to create a mechanism for broader conversations between India and Pakistan.

The obvious extension from this would be for having other faith-based "corridors" for Hindu, Muslim and Sikh pilgrims in both countries; this would be in addition to the list of 20 shrines (15 in Pakistan, five in India) that were negotiated under the 1974 Protocol on visits to Religious Shrines.

The template that Kartarpur has given both sides is also worth considering for the format of other bilateral negotiations given that the talks have been immunised from both terror attacks and election rhetoric. The venue of the talks, at the Attari-Wagah zero point, lends itself to more successful outcomes too away from the glare of the media, without focus on arrangements for both parties. The two sides can cross over, meet for the duration of talks and return after issuing a pre-arranged joint statement.

The timing of the Kartarpur opening may also lend itself to exploring other bilateral engagements.

Ahead of the next plenary of the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) in October, Pakistan will remain under pressure to keep terror groups subdued. According to various reports, infiltration figures at the LoC are significantly lower (a 43% reduction since the Balakot strikes in February); officials have marked about 20 terror camps in PoK they believe have been "shut down" recently. Civilian and military casualties from ceasefire violations have also reduced. Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan's government, which has been buoyed by Mr. Khan's U.S. visit and by Pakistan's new-found acceptance in the international community for its role in Taliban talks, and Mr. Modi's government, which has been bolstered by its strong electoral mandate, will also be in the strongest positions politically to forge agreements.

Thus, it would be a travesty to waste the opportunity made possible by the Kartarpur corridor, and by extension, the founder of the Sikh faith himself (revered by Hindus and Muslims in India and Pakistan) to bring both countries back to the table for talks. The most famous story at Kartarpur is the one of the 'miracle' that Guru Nanak wrought after his death as his Hindu and Muslim followers debated late into the night whether their Guru should be cremated or buried. When they awoke, his body had vanished, replaced by flowers which they divided up. The Guru Nanak's 'samadhi' and grave were built side by side. As pilgrims across the border pay a visit in November, it should be clear what the bigger miracle is: that the Kartarpur exception has been made at all.

Faltering steps in the anti-AIDS march

The commitment to end the AIDS pandemic by 2030 needs strong and fearless leadership

J.V.R. PRASADA RAO

The Joint UN programme on AIDS, commonly known as UNAIDS, is facing one of the worst challenges afflicting the global AIDS response – this time an existential threat questioning its very relevance. The UN Secretary-General, António Guterres, is expected to appoint a new executive director after the departure of Michel Sidibé in May 2019 on the recommendation of the programme coordinating board which manages the organisation. There are strong contenders from Africa and the U.S. in the reckoning among those who have been shortlisted.

A pivotal role

At such a crucial time, it is disturbing to hear voices again questioning the relevance of UNAIDS for the global response.

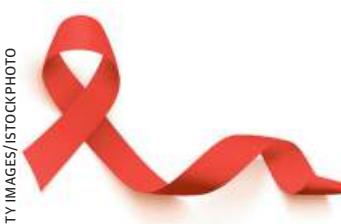

There are suggestions that AIDS should go back to the World Health Organisation (WHO) where it originally belonged to some 25 years ago. And that the new executive director should be equipped with an exit strategy to wind up the organisation.

Since its establishment in 1994, UNAIDS has been able to successfully mobilise world opinion to mount an exceptional response to an epidemic which has consumed over 20 million lives with still no effective treatment or cure. The UN General Assembly Special Session (UNGASS) 2001 was a game changer with the adoption of a political resolution that itself was exceptional in many ways. The creation of a Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria (GFATM) and the slashing of prices of AIDS drugs by Indian generics have brought treatment within the reach of many countries. Today some 22 million people are under antiretroviral therapy (ART) and preventing mother-to-child transmission of HIV has become an achievable goal by 2020. The organisation has provided leadership to many countries which in 10 years (2001-2010) could halt the epidemic and reverse the trend.

The epidemic is still alive

However, at a time when it should be leading the global response to end AIDS as a public health threat, the organisation has started to falter in its strategy. First came the extremely optimistic messaging blitz that the world was going to see the end of AIDS very soon. This is far from true. Regions such as eastern Europe and Central Asia and West Asia are nowhere near reaching that goal, with many countries such as Russia witnessing a raging epidemic among drug users and men who have sex with men (MSM) communities. With the top leadership in UNAIDS exhorting countries to bring AIDS "out of isolation" and integrate with health systems, the political leadership in many countries have thought that AIDS is no more a challenge.

Second has been the thinking that the AIDS epidemic can simply be treated away by saturating antiretroviral (ART) coverage. Nothing could be farther from the truth. It is forgotten that AIDS affects the poor, the marginalised and criminalised communities disproportionately as they face challenges in accessing the 'test and treat' programmes. The ever increasing number of young people who are joining the ranks of vulnerable populations do not get prevention messages like in the past. National programmes do not any more consider condoms, sexual education and drug harm reduction as central to the prevention of HIV transmission that results from unprotected sex and drug use. Funding for non-governmental organisations and community-based organisations working on prevention has virtually dried up.

Third has been the weakening of country leadership of UNAIDS in many high-prevalence countries. Senior country-level positions are, in many instances, held by people who do not possess the core competence to constructively engage political leadership to undertake legal reforms and provide access to services to marginalised populations.

Weakening activism

But the biggest setback has been the lost voice of vulnerable communities which was the main driving force of AIDS response in the decade after UNGASS. Activism surrounding AIDS has suddenly fizzled out emboldening many countries, especially in Africa, to further stigmatise and discriminate by enacting new laws that criminalise vulnerable sections of society.

To add to its woes, the charges against one of the senior most staff and his exit from the organisation have seriously compromised UNAIDS at a time when the global response needs its leadership the most. The new executive director will have an unenviable task of not just restoring the credibility and relevance of the organisation but strengthening its presence at country level and making it more meaningful to the communities which look to it for leadership. The new executive director has to work relentlessly to place prevention of the epidemic and empowering communities at the centre of global response.

With 1.7 million new infections and one million deaths occurring every year, we can't afford to drop the ball half way. The commitment to end AIDS by 2030 is ambitious but not impossible to achieve. What we need is a re-energised UNAIDS with a strong and fearless leadership from a person of high integrity and commitment along with a sincere effort to remove the deadwood from the organisation. Any thought of winding it up or giving the mandate back to WHO would be suicidal at this moment.

Trump and the 'K' word

The claim by U.S. President Donald Trump that Prime Minister Narendra Modi broached the subject of Mr. Trump's mediation on the Kashmir issue during the meeting of the two leaders in Osaka in June, is stunning (Page 1, "I would love to be a mediator on Kashmir: Donald Trump", July 23). Is it a white lie? Or is it a political gimmick?

Even if India had sought his assistance, the fact that the U.S. has all along been providing military assistance to Pakistan would by itself make America very unsuitable as a mediator.

B.V.K. THAMPI,
Thiruvananthapuram

Mr. Trump's offer could well be a trap, a product of his meeting with the Pakistan Prime Minister. The U.S. has a history of long friendship with Pakistan. There may be a hitch at present in their relationship but self-interest has always been a priority in American foreign policy. The offer may be a part of a strategy relating to Pakistan-China policy. Once we are drawn to the mediation table, our contention of sovereignty over Kashmir will be jeopardised.

S. RAJAGOPALAN,
Chennai

It is significant that as no less than the POTUS himself has named the Indian Prime Minister as personally having sought Mr. Trump's mediation, it is in the fitness of things and in keeping with the best parliamentary traditions that the Prime Minister offers his own clarification on the floor of the House even if it means causing personal embarrassment to Mr. Trump, who is not known to observe diplomatic niceties. If Mr. Modi chooses to remain silent fearing a diplomatic backlash from the U.S., a doubt about who is economical with the truth will gain ground hurting the Prime Minister's credibility.

S.K. CHOWDHURY,
Bengaluru

India may maintain that the Kashmir issue should be resolved bilaterally but the fact is that there have been regular global interventions as far as India-Pakistan relations are concerned. During the Kargil intrusions in 1999, it was the Clinton administration which led Pakistan to step back. Also after 9/11, it was the U.S. and the U.K. which helped in blacklisting Pakistan-based terror outfits. India has relied on global support when it comes to cornering Pakistan. Therefore, Mr. Trump wanting to be a mediator should not raise hackles.

HARVINDER SINGH CHUGH,
Jalandhar, Punjab

Mr. Trump is turning out to be an inexperienced statesman, examples being his meddling in Obamacare, his unilaterally scrapping the Iran nuclear deal, verbal attacks on European leaders and his mishandling of the immigrants issue in the U.S. Mr. Trump needs to set his own house in order first before he can even think of mediating on Kashmir.

T. ANAND RAJ,
Chennai

The U.S. has most often been at the wrong end of understanding the geopolitical affairs of developing countries, Vietnam, Iran and Iraq being examples. America's attempt to help these countries has ended in disastrous results. In the Kashmir conflict, a mediator must understand the socio-cultural context of the State as well as its history which Mr. Trump is clearly unaware of. I am sure that the Prime Minister, despite his shortcomings, did not raise the question of mediation seriously with Mr. Trump. Observing the U.S.'s previous attempts at mediation, it would be much better if the process involved only India and Pakistan even if it takes another 70 years.

The complexities of Naga identity

The Nagaland govt. will face many hurdles in its quest to compile a list of indigenous inhabitants

SUSHANTA TALUKDAR

The Nagaland government's move to compile a Register of Indigenous Inhabitants of Nagaland (RIIN) opens up possibilities in the context of the decision to link the register to the Inner Line Permit (ILP) system without a consensus on the definition of an 'indigenous inhabitant'.

One such possibility is of RIIN pushing the negotiators engaged in the ongoing Naga peace talks to articulate new and hardened positions on the contentious issue of integration of contiguous Naga-inhabited areas.

Though the official notification on RIIN has not mentioned a cut-off date to compile the proposed register, the authorities in Nagaland have till date issued indigenous inhabitant certificates using December 1, 1963 as the cut-off date. Nagaland was inaugurated as India's 16th State on this date following the '16-point agreement' between the government of India and the Naga People's Convention on July 26, 1960.

Opposition from NSCN (I-M)
The National Socialist Council of Nagaland (Isak-Muivah), which has been engaged in peace talks with the government of India since 1997, has opposed the compilation of RIIN asserting that "all Nagas, wherever they are, are indigenous in their land by virtue of their common history".

A statement issued by the 'Ministry of Information and Publicity' of the self-styled Government of the People's Republic of Nagaland reads: "The present move of the State government to implement [the] Register of Indigenous Inhabitants of Nagaland (RIIN) is contradictory to the inherent rights of the Nagas. It is politically motivated to suit the interest of the groups advocating for the '16-Point Agreement'. The 'Nagaland State' does not and will not represent the national decision of the Naga people. It was formed purely to divide the Nagas." The self-styled government of the People's Republic of Nagaland is the parallel government run by the NSCN(I-M).

On June 29, the Nagaland government notified that RIIN "will be the master-list of all indigenous inhabitants" of the State. All those to be included will be issued "barcoded and numbered indigenous inhabitant certificates". It added that all existing indigenous inhabitant certificates would become invalid once the process of compiling RIIN is completed and fresh certificates issued.

RIIN is different from Assam's National Register of Citizens (NRC) as exclusion or inclusion in RIIN is not going to determine the Indian citizenship of anyone in Nagaland.

Three conditions

Since 1977, a person, in order to be eligible to obtain a certificate of indigenous inhabitants of Nagaland, has to fulfil either of these three conditions: a) the person settled permanently in Nagaland prior to December 1, 1963; b) his or her parents or legitimate guardians were paying house tax prior to this cut-off date; and c) the applicant, or his/her parents or legitimate guardians, acquired property and a patta (land certificate) prior to this cut-off date.

The compilation of RIIN also involves the complexities of deciding claims in respect of children of non-Naga fathers as well as non-Naga children adopted by Naga parents.

If the Nagaland government goes ahead with a compilation of RIIN with this cut-off date, then all Naga people who have migrated to the State from the neighbouring States of Assam, Manipur and Arunachal Pradesh and elsewhere in India after this day will have to be excluded.

The NSCN(I-M) statement adds, "Nothing is conclusive on the Naga issue, until and unless a mutually agreed honourable political solution is signed between the two entities. Therefore, any attempt to dilute the final political settlement by justifying any past accord of treasons should be seriously viewed by all Nagas."

This clearly indicates the opposition the Nagaland government may have to face if it goes ahead with the move to compile RIIN. The Centre and the NSCN (I-M), which is the largest among all armed Naga rebel groups, signed a Framework Agreement in 2015, the content of which has still not been made public, in turn leaving room for speculation on the contentious issue of integration of all contiguous Naga-inhabited areas of Assam, Nagaland, Manipur and Arunachal Pradesh.

Unless otherwise clarified through an official notification, the proposed linking of RIIN with the ILP system may require large numbers of non-indigenous inhabitants of Dimapur district, more particularly the commercial hub (Dimapur town), to obtain an ILP to carry out day-to-day activities. Most of them migrated from other States and have been carrying out trade, business and other activities for decades. Migration also explains the higher density of population in Dimapur district (409 persons per sq. km) when compared to all the other districts in the State. The ILP is a travel document issued by the government of India to allow a 'domestic tourist' to enter Nagaland, and is valid for 30 days.

Streamlining ILP

The Supreme Court, on July 2, dismissed a Public Interest Litigation seeking a directive against the Nagaland government's move to implement the ILP in the entire State including Dimapur district, which had so far been kept out of the purview of the ILP system.

A report prepared by the government, in collaboration with the UNDP in 2009, gave information on migration patterns in Nagaland. Titled 'Rural-Urban Migration: A Thematic Report', it said that in 2001, Assam was the State with the highest number of migrants to Nagaland (19,176 people), followed by Bihar (7,249 people) and Manipur (4,569 people). A large section of people (about 45% of them in the case of Assam, 59% in the case of Bihar and 25% in the case of Manipur) had migrated for better employment and business opportunities.

While the move to streamline the ILP system to curb the influx of "illegal migration" to Nagaland has been welcomed by civil society, public opinion is still divided on compiling RIIN without a consensus on the cut-off date.

As the Nagaland government has begun a consultation process on RIIN, it will be under pressure to de-link the work of streamlining the ILP mechanism from the proposed register and put it on hold till the ongoing peace process concludes and the final solution is worked out.

Besides this, the complexities that may arise in streamlining the ILP mechanism due to non-issuance of domicile certificates or permanent residence certificates to a large number of non-Naga, non-indigenous inhabitants could also make the task even more difficult for the Neiphiu Rio-led Nagaland government.

Making the water-guzzling thermal plants accountable

An improved monitoring mechanism can play a key role

PARUL KUMAR
BHARATH JAIRAJ

The advancing monsoon has brought relief to many parts of India, but its progress has been slower than average and the country is still in the midst of a rainfall deficit, with millions facing an acute water shortage. Water is essential for human survival, and for agriculture and industry. It is important that India – which has only 4% of the world's renewable water resources but about 18% of the world's population – consumes water more sensibly.

In India's pursuit of 100% electrification goal, the country's installed power capacity will need to be doubled. Even with the growth of renewable energy (RE), coal has been projected to be the backbone of the electricity sector till 2030 and beyond. Managing the electricity needs of a country that's already dealing with water scarcity will be a challenge.

Located in water-scarce areas

Thermal power plants (TPPs) consume significant amounts of water during the electricity generation process. Most of India's TPPs are located in water-stressed areas, and water shortages have led to electricity-generation disruptions and significant revenue losses to the economy.

In December 2015, the Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change issued a notification setting limits for water consumption by TPPs. However, the amended Environment Protection (EP) Rules codified in June 2018 ended up permitting TPPs to use more water than what was initially specified. There are certain mechanisms that need to be strengthened to make these regulations more effective.

The Central Electricity Authority (CEA) recently released the format for TPPs to report on their annual water consumption. The power plants were asked to specify both metered and un-metered usage, report on the source (like river, canal or sea), and state the percentage of deviation from the water norms, along with the reasons and the corrective measures undertaken.

These guidelines can be strengthened by including other relevant inputs. First, TPPs should disclose the amount of water consumed by them in previous years, so that a baseline for water consumption per TPP can be established, and subsequent changes in water consumption can be quantified. Second, these reporting requirements – currently in the form of an Excel sheet on the CEA website – must be added to the EP Rules, to accord the disclosure process greater transparency and enforceability. Third, TPPs should also be required to submit verifiable evidence (for example, water bills) to support and substantiate the disclosures. Without these, the self-reporting guidelines will remain weak.

Finally, the data supplied by TPPs should be placed in the public domain, so that the parameters disclosed can be studied in the context of region-specific water shortages, outages in the plants, and future research and analysis in this field.

Specifying penalties

Section 15 of the EP Act provides for a blanket penalty for contravention of any provisions of the Environment Protection Act or EP Rules: up to five years of imprisonment and/or up to ₹1 lakh fine along with additional daily fines for continuing offences. However, the Act does not stipulate specific penalties for specific offences. Perhaps this is an area for review by the government, so that we have a more nuanced framework for enforcement and penalties.

Further, the relevant officials in charge of enforcement, across the Ministry and the CEA, should be identified, and their roles clearly defined. The implementation of these norms should include milestones and time-based targets, and periodic monitoring of the progress of TPPs in making improvements.

In addition to reducing the stress caused by TPPs, shifting to a more aggressive RE pathway will help India achieve its global climate targets. However, this will need further work – particularly to regulate water consumption by specific RE technologies. The Ministry of New and Renewable Energy has taken a first step by issuing a notice to State governments on reducing water use for cleaning solar panels and to explore alternative mechanisms to ensure that solar panels remain efficient.

India will need to balance the needs of its growing economy with its heightening water stress. Stringent implementation of standards for judicious water use by TPPs, combined with the promotion of RE and energy efficiency, will offer pathways for achieving these goals.

Giving ties with Seoul a facelift

India-South Korea relations are yet to reach their full potential despite making significant strides

LAKHVINDEER SINGH

Prime Minister Narendra Modi met South Korean President Moon Jae-in on the sidelines of the G20 summit last month in Osaka. Both agreed to find common ground between Seoul's 'New Southern Policy' and New Delhi's 'Act East Policy'.

Today, India and South Korea have the shared values of open society, democracy and liberal international economic order and their mutual engagement is at a historically unprecedented level. Significant strides have been made in several areas of science and technology.

The Indo-Korea Science and Technology Centre, established in Bengaluru in 2010 as a collaboration between the Indian Institute of Science and the Korean Institute of Science and Technology, is a shining example in this regard.

The emerging balance of power in the region has also started influencing the trajectory of defence ties. Co-production of the K9 Thunder howitzer is a prime example of the ongoing defence collaboration. With technology transfer from South Korea, India's Larsen and Toubro plans to achieve over 50% localisation by manufacturing the key components of these weapon systems domestically as part of 'Make in India'. Further, both countries have regularised education exchanges. Additionally, there is regular security dialogue between India's National Security Adviser and the intelligence agencies of Korea.

domestic market, its cheap labour costs and a stable legal system.

At the Osaka meeting, both leaders emphasised the need to create a new "synergy" to meet new challenges. Since India opened up its economy in the early 1990s, India-South Korea trade ties have grown from few hundred million dollars to $22 billion at the end of 2018. Today the major items that India exports to South Korea include mineral fuels, oil distillates (mainly naphtha), cereals and, iron and steel. South Korea's main exports to India include automobile parts and telecommunication equipment, among others.

Trade target likely to be missed

However, despite the robust ties, not everything is going as planned. The trade target of $50 billion by 2030 is most likely to be missed due to lack of adequate efforts. The Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement, originally the core mechanism for economic ties, requires immediate upgrading. An early harvest agreed to last year, under which India agreed to reduce tariff on 11 commodities and South Korea on 17, failed to see completion.

More than eight years into its existence, the Indian Chamber of Commerce in Korea (ICCK), is struggling to find its due space in promoting economic and business ties and spends most of its time organising social and cultural events. A new, empowered commerce body is the urgent need of the hour. The Indian Cultural Centre, established more than ten years ago, has failed to reach out to common South Koreans, who still fail to differentiate between India and Indonesia. While it teaches regional dance forms to children, the bigger picture of introducing India to the general South Korean population has been lost. Further, social and economic discrimination against Indians working and living in South Korea is still a regular occurrence.

The fallout of trade war

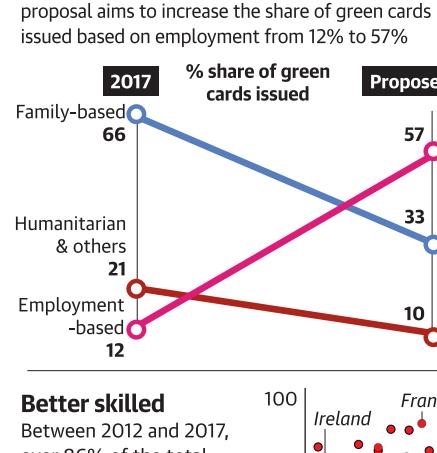

The ongoing trade war between U.S. and China has also started playing into India-South Korea bilateral ties as South Korean companies are now finding it more difficult to sell their products in the U.S., whenever they are produced in their Chinese branches. Growing trade tensions have forced South Korean companies to contemplate moving their production facilities to locations outside China. India is emerging as a prime beneficiary here, not least because of the considerable size of the Indian

The U.S. is mulling a reduction in the number of green cards issued based on family ties and an increase in the share of skills-based immigrants. As the total number of green cards issued is proposed to remain the same, the idea may benefit highly-skilled Indians who wish to settle in the U.S. By Suman Sen & Niharika Pandya

Better skilled

Between 2012 and 2017, over 86% of the total Indian immigrants in the U.S. had at least a bachelor's degree. This is the largest proportion of highly-skilled immigrants among all nations. Space workshop to be put in orbit

The United States plans to put a space workshop into orbit in 1972, the Space Agency announced here [Houston] yesterday [July 22]. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said the third stage of the giant Saturn 5 rocket used to send Apollo spaceships to the moon would be used to house the orbiting laboratory and observatory. The project will study man's physiological and psychological responses in the space environment, and provide more detailed information on his capabilities for extended manned flight. The workshop is to be fitted out on the ground and will be launched into a 220 nautical mile circular earth orbit. It will be occupied by a crew of three astronauts who will follow in a smaller rocket about a day later. At first, the astronaut-scientists will spend about 28 days in the orbiting workshop, but later visits lasting up to 56 days are planned. The laboratory will be built into a modified S-IVB third stage of the Saturn 5 rocket. The S-IVB is used as the Saturn 1B's second stage.

Castor-oil prices.

Indian castor-oil has now been proved to be an excellent lubricant and the scarcity of mineral oils here has made people to resort to the vegetable lubricant so much so that its prices have soared very high in the past some months. In February 1918 the export of castor-oil was restricted to the United Kingdom but the restriction was removed on 22nd February 1919. Owing to the failure of the south-west monsoon in June and July, the 1918-1919 crop of castor-seed was about 25 per cent, smaller than the large crop of 1917-1918. There was a strong local demand for the oil which was extensively used as a lubricant in the absence of the usual mineral lubricating oil. Local prices helped by speculation, it is stated, rose considerably varying from Rs. 125 to Rs. 225 per candy of 500 lb. and reached figures at which the Ministry of Food was unwilling to buy and increase its large stocks in England. The total shipments amounted to 559,881 gallons in 1918-19 against 920,758 gallons during the previous year

In a tweet outgoing Congress president Rahul Gandhi said, "From its first day, the Cong-JD(S) alliance in Karnataka was a target for vested interests, both within & outside, who saw the alliance as a threat & an obstacle in their path to power. Their greed won today. Democracy, honesty & the people of Karnataka lost."

Mr. Kumaraswamy warned that the political instability, caused by engineered defections, would boomerang on the BJP.

'PM did not seek Trump mediation in Kashmir'

Amid uproar, senior BJP leader Mukhtar Abbas Naqvi, who is also the Minority Affairs Minister, rued that the Opposition parties did not trust their Prime Minister and government and said the Opposition could not dictate terms. He said Mr. Jaishankar's statement was a collective response of the government.

When the proceedings resumed at 2 p.m., Congress member P. Chidambaram expressed anguish over the debate amid protests and said that while a "large section of the Opposition is agitated" the Chair must adjourn the House and try to find a solution instead of allowing the business to go on.

When the House met again at 3.00 p.m., the scenes of disarray continued. BJP member Bhupendra Yadav pointed out that if the Lok Sabha could be satisfied with the External Affairs Minister's statement, why not the House of Elders. To this, Leader of the Opposition Ghulam Nabi Azad said the Rajya Sabha should not be needlessly compared to the Lok Sabha all the time. There is a reason why there are two Houses and not one. "If this government wants to run Parliament like a department we shall not let it happen. Parliament is not a department of any Ministry that you can run on your whims and fancies. It can be run only as per the established principles and rules," Mr. Azad said.

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta for Assam said the proposed sample reverification would only take the extended time the court had given till August 31. "It will not harm anybody and will give everybody satisfaction," he submitted.

But the court refused the plea, banking on a July 18 report of the court-appointed NRC Coordinator, Prateek Hajela, that reverification had been done on a district-wise basis during the adjudication of claims.

"Mr. Hajela, the Centre and Assam have made vehement, fervent pleas for a sample reverification. You tell us, as an officer of the court, if this is necessary?" Chief Justice Gogoi asked him. "No, I do not see the necessity," he replied.

The CJI said the court was "more than satisfied" from Mr. Hajela's conclusion that a reverification is not necessary. When Mr. Venugopal repeated that the matter affected lives in the State, the CJI said, "everything we do affects lives."

The Centre and Assam had urged the court for a 20% sample reverification of names included in the draft in the districts bordering Bangladesh and a 10% sample reverification in the remaining districts. Even in the last hearing, the court orally voiced its scepticism, pointing out that "Mr. Haj-

A jubilant Mr. Yeddyurappa termed the fall of the government as a "victory of democracy." He said, "A new era of development will begin in the State from tomorrow. My priority has always been farmers and I assure them that I will work towards their welfare."

No easy passage for the proposed amendments in the Rajya Sabha

SOBHANA K. NAIR
NEW DELHI

The Right to Information (Amendment) Bill, 2019 is going to be the next flash point in the Rajya Sabha with the Opposition members moving a resolution to send the legislation to a select committee.

The resolution was signed by the Biju Janata Dal, a party that maintains a neutral stance in Parliament keeping its distance from the Opposition and the ruling party.

The resolution has been moved by Derek O'Brien of the Trinamool and signed by the Congress, the RJD, the BJD, the CPI, the CPI(M), the DMK and others. The Bill was passed by the Lok Sabha on Monday.

"It is an important Bill which has far-reaching implications. We are not against it in toto but we do feel that it needs a detailed scrutiny and since there is no standing committee as of now, it should be sent to a select committee for further study," BJD's floor leader in the Rajya Sabha Prasanna Acharya told The Hindu.

Opposing the Bill in the Lok Sabha, B. Mahtab of the BJD said it sought to bring in changes involving the salaries and tenures of the Information Commissioners at the States and the Centre. This would end up reducing the Information Commission to the level of a government department and weaken its authority, he said.

Under the amendments, the Information Commissioners, who now have five-year tenures, will have "terms as may be prescribed by the Central government" and salaries, instead of being on a par with those of the Election Commissioners, will be decided by the Central government.

"Parliament has so far cleared 13 Bills without a single one sent to a standing committee. The Trinamool Congress has decided to demand that every Bill that is introduced from now on be sent to a select committee. It's not to say that we oppose all Bills, but we want to improve them," Mr. O'Brien said. The RTI Bill, he said, will curtail the statutory powers of the Information Commissioners.

RJD leader Manoj K. Jha said that while the government cannot take away the Right to Information Act, it wants to make it dysfunctional.

"The Act provided right to information without any caveats. The proposed amendments kill the very spirit of the Act and gives a tool for the government to control the Central Information Commission," she said in a statement.

On Monday, the Lok Sabha amended the RTI Act that allowed the Centre to prescribe the term of office, salaries, allowances and other terms and conditions. It also changed the status of the Information Commissioners, who were on a par with the Election Commissioners under the original RTI Act.

Currently, Section 13 (5) of the Act provides that salaries, allowances and other terms and conditions of the service of the Chief Information Commissioner shall be the same as that of the Chief Election Commissioner, while that of an Information Commissioner shall be the same as that of an Election Commissioner.

"The functions being carried out by the Election Commission of India and the Central and State Information Commissions are totally different. The Election Commission of India is a Constitutional body ... On the other hand, the Central Information Commission and State Information Commission are statutory bodies established under the Right to Information Act, 2005," the amended RTI Bill says.

The government on Tuesday introduced the Code on Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Bill, 2019 and the Code on Wages Bill, 2019 in the Lok Sabha amid protests from the Opposition that the move was being made at the behest of employers and not trade unions.

Opposing the introduction of the Bill, Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury, Leader of the Congress in the Lok Sabha, said that the Bills should be sent to a Standing Committee for scrutiny. He said it would be a "grave injustice" if the Bill was not sent to a parliamentary panel for scrutiny. The Bills also needed more time to be allocated for discussion, Mr. Chowdhury said.

N.K. Premachandran of the Revolutionary Socialist Party and Saugata Roy of the Trinamool demanded that the Bills be sent to parliamentary panels for scrutiny, saying their passage will have large-scale ramifications.

Mr. Roy said the government was referring to scrutiny reports on the Bill dating back to 2002, but held no consultations lately, adding that the Bills were being pushed at the behest of employers and not trade unions.

Consultations held

Mr. Gangwar said the Occupational Safety, Health and Working Conditions Code was sent to the Standing Committee during the previous Lok Sabha, adding that the legislation had been drafted after consulting 13 workers' organisations and that he would try to assuage concerns raised by the members.

On opposition to the introduction of the Bill, especially the Occupational Safety and Health (OSH) Code, Mr. Gangwar asked the House to allow the introduction of the Bills, for the House to take a call later. The introduction of the Bills then took place.

The government said it sought to bring in the next wave of labour reforms through these Bills that would subsume 17 Bills and improve the ease of doing business.

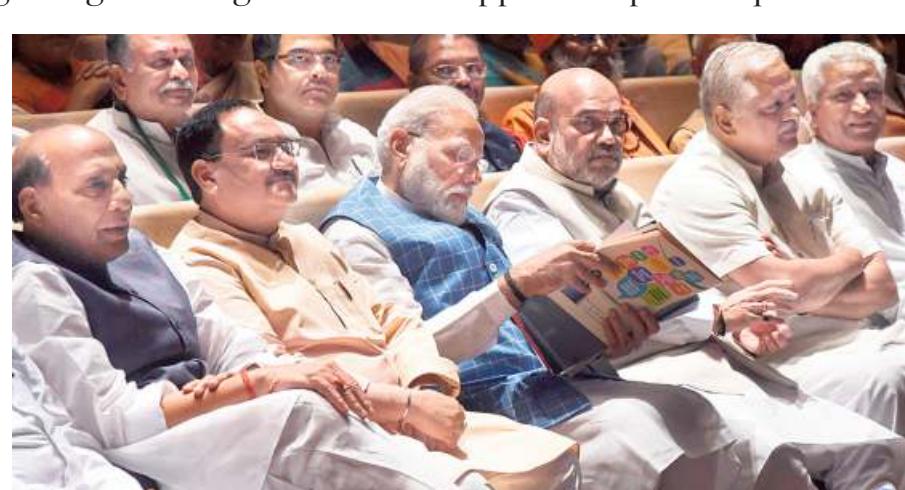

The OSH Code simplifies, amalgamates and rationalises the provisions of 13 Central labour laws into a concise volume with certain important changes.

It would apply to all establishments having 10 or more workers, other than those relating to mines and docks.

It provides the concept of one registration for all establishments having 10 or more employees and constitution of the National Occupational Safety and Health Advisory Board to give recommendations at the Central and State levels.

The Union government plans to extend the ongoing Parliament session by 10 days as it is keen on clearing its legislative agenda, and party MPs should gird themselves for it, BJP president Amit Shah said at a meeting of the parliamentary party on Tuesday.

Sources present at the meeting said Mr. Shah indicated that the extension could be as long as 10 days, pending a final decision. Under the original schedule, the session is to end on July 26.

Briefing reporters after the meeting, Parliamentary Affairs Minister Pralhad Joshi said there was a "possibility of this [extension] of session]", but that it had not been officially conveyed yet.

However, Opposition parties said they were not in agreement with the extension after Prime Minister Narendra Modi first hinted at it last week.

The Opposition camp has called a joint meeting on Wednesday afternoon after Congress reached out to all the Opposition and like-minded parties in the Lok Sabha for the first time in this Lok Sabha session to ensure a unified strategy to oppose the issue.

Pakistan Prime Minister Imran Khan on Tuesday said he was "surprised" over India's reaction to U.S. President Donald Trump's offer of mediation for resolving the Kashmir issue which, according to him, has held the subcontinent hostage for 70 years.

India has not been engaging with Pakistan since the attack on the Air Force base at Pathankot in January 2016 by Pakistan-based terrorists, maintaining that talks and terror cannot go together.

"Surprised by reaction of India to President Trump's offer of mediation to bring Pak and India to dialogue table for resolving Kashmir conflict which has held subcontinent hostage for 70 years," Mr. Khan, who is here on a three-day working visit, tweeted at the end of his maiden trip.

However, former Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs Nicholas Burns, who played a key role in the India-U.S. civil nuclear deal during the Bush Administration, said, "This is embarrassing, to say the least, for President Trump. His claim that PM Modi asked him to mediate the Kashmir conflict was denied categorically by Delhi. This is what happens in diplomacy when you make things up."

Mr. Trump offered to be the "mediator" between India and Pakistan on the Kashmir issue during a press meet with Prime Minister Imran Khan at the White House. Mr. Trump, who is known to make inaccurate statements, said Prime Minister Modi had asked him to mediate on Kashmir when

Initiatives by India discussed

The United Nations Special Envoy on Climate Change, Luis Alfonso de Alba, met Union Environment and Forests Minister Prakash Javadekar and discussed India's initiatives to meet its climate commitments.

"India had created 80,000 MW of renewable power and set a target of achieving 175,000 MW by 2022; reduced energy intensity by 21% was increasing forest cover and that the distribution of 70 million gas cylinders under the Ujjwala scheme had helped save trees, reduce pollution and improve health," the Minister tweeted.

Ahead of the United Nations Climate Summit in New York in September, Mr. de Alba, appointed by UN Secretary-General Antonio Gutierrez as his climate envoy, is visiting several countries and urging leaders and businessmen to do more to ensure that global warming does not exceed 1.5 degrees Celsius.

"The Secretary-General is exhorting countries and leaders to come with concrete plans at the meeting and not mere policy statements. We need to be getting into a trajectory to achieve emission cuts to cap warming at 1.5°C," Mr. de Alba said in a press briefing here on Tuesday.

"The climate crisis and the air pollution crisis are driven by the same factors and must be tackled by joint action. Governments at all levels must have both an urgent need and huge opportunity to address it," the UN envoy said in a statement.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi is expected to attend the summit though this has not been officially confirmed.

The Congress leader's attack on the Prime Minister came on a day when the Opposition launched an offensive in Parliament. Slogans of "Pradhan Mantri jawab do" (Prime Minister, give an

On Monday evening, soon after the controversy broke out, Congress Member of Parliament Shashi Tharoor tweeted to question Mr. Trump's statement.

"I honestly don't think Trump has the slightest idea of what he is talking about. He has either not been briefed or not understood what Modi was saying or what India's position is on third party mediation. NEW DELHI

The Enforcement Directorate (ED) is examining cases of alleged land grab against Samajwadi Party MP Azam Khan in Uttar Pradesh's Rampur district to determine whether money laundering investigations can be initiated in the matter.

"We are looking into details to decide if a probe under the Prevention of Money Laundering Act can be conducted," said a senior ED official, on condition of anonymity. "The agency is empowered to take up all the FIRs registered under scheduled offences as listed in the Act," the official added.

The U.P. police have regis-

tered more than a dozen cases allegedly involving the then circle official and Mr. Khan, following complaints lodged by 26 villagers. His name is also on the State's anti-land mafia website launched in June 2017, to help identify and initiate action against land grabbers.

Thumbs up for new NRC deadline

Re-verification would have caused a lot of misery, says AAMSU

GUWAHATI

Various organisations in Assam welcomed the Supreme Court's order extending the deadline for publishing the final NRC to August 31 and turning down the request of the Centre and Assam government to conduct 20% sample re-verification of listed names in the districts bordering Bangladesh and 10% in the other districts on Tuesday.

In a joint statement, the Assam State Jamiat and All-Assam Minority Students' Union (AAMSU) said that the SC foiled a conspiracy of the BJP to delay the publication of the NRC.

"People have undergone a lot of misery in proving their citizenship by being forced to visit NRC service centres in faraway places. Re-verification would have made these people suffer again," AAMSU president Rezaul Karim Sarkar said.

"The extension is appreciated since people in flood-affected areas could not go to the NRC centres to settle claims and verify documents. Besides, NRC State Coordinator Prateek Hajela had said he would publish the final list in two phases if time was not extended. It is good that with a month's time, the final NRC will be published at one go," State Jamiat president Maujana Mustaq Anfar said.

Dipankar Kumar Nath, president of All-Assam Students' Union, said they trusted the Supreme Court, which has been monitoring the NRC exercise, to take steps for ensuring an error-free NRC.

The Assam Public Works, an NGO that had filed a petition seeking 100% re-verification said what mattered was the satisfaction of the court about the NRC groundwork.

NIA likely to take over ₹2,700 crore Punjab drug smuggling case

Agency suspects it could be related to another operation it is investigating

NEW DELHI/ CHANDIGARH

Days before the prime suspect in a ₹2,700-crore drug haul case in Punjab died under mysterious circumstances at the Amritsar Central Jail, the National Investigation Agency (NIA) had written to the Centre seeking to take over the investigation.

The agency suspects that the case is linked to another terror case pertaining to trade across the Line of Control (LoC) in the Kashmir Valley that it is investigating.

Linked to cross-LoC trade
The Home Ministry on April 18 suspended the cross-LoC trade in J&K, citing "funnelling of illegal weapons, narcotics and fake currency" as reasons.

Gurpinder Singh, a rock salt trader, and Tariq Ahmad Lone, a trader from Handwara in J&K, were arrested on June 29 by Customs officials for allegedly smuggling narcotics in a truck through the integrated check post on the Attari border from Pakistan. The drugs were found during a raid by the Amritsar-based Customs Preventive Commissionerate, which then seized 532 kg of suspected heroin. The consignment, hidden under bags of salt in the truck from Pakistan, was seized in the import section at the check post.

Singh and Lone were lodged in the same ward in the jail. However, Singh, a diabetic, was rushed to Guru Nanak Dev Hospital in the city on Sunday but was declared brought dead. He was a crucial link to establish the drug

Johnson the Brexiteer vows to seal divorce deal

'We are going to deliver it on October 31, take advantage of all the opportunities it will bring, and defeat Jeremy Corbyn'

REUTERS

LONDON

Boris Johnson, the Brexiteer who has promised to lead Britain out of the EU with or without a deal by the end of October, will replace Theresa May as Prime Minister after winning the leadership of the Conservative Party on Tuesday.

His convincing victory catapults the United Kingdom towards a showdown with the European Union and towards a constitutional crisis at home, as British lawmakers have vowed to bring down any government that tries to leave the bloc without a divorce deal.

"We are going to get Brexit done on October 31, and we are going to take advantage of all the opportunities it will bring in a new spirit of 'can do,'" Mr. Johnson, 55, said after the result was announced. "Like some slumbering giant, we are going to rise and ping off the guy-ropes of self-doubt and negativity."

Mr. Johnson said the mantra of his leadership campaign had been to "deliver Brexit, unite the country and defeat (Opposition Labour leader) Jeremy Corbyn – and that is what we are going to do".

The victory for one of Britain's most flamboyant politicians places an avowed Brexit supporter in charge of the government for the first time since the U.K. voted to leave the EU in the shock 2016 referendum. The Brexit referendum showed a UK edified about much more than the EU, and has fuelled soul-searching about everything from regional secession and immigration to capitalism, the legacy of empire, and modern Britishness.

Brexit, which has already toppled two Conservative Prime Ministers, will dominate. Mr. Johnson has pledged to negotiate a new Brexit divorce deal with the EU to secure a smooth transition out of the EU before October 31. But if the bloc refuses, as it insists it will, he has promised to leave anyway – "do or die" – on the current agreed date. It is a step that many investors and economists say would send shock waves through world markets and tip the world's fifth largest economy into recession or even chaos.

Ready to work with him? The EU said a no-deal Brexit would be a tragedy for both parties but again said the withdrawal deal was not up for negotiation.

"We look forward to working constructively with PM Johnson when he takes office, to facilitate the ratification of the withdrawal agreement and achieve an orderly Brexit," tweeted the bloc's negotiator, Michel Barnier.

A Brexit without a divorce deal would also weaken London's position as the pre-eminent international financial centre while jolting the northern European economy.

Mr. Johnson's Conservatives have no majority in Parliament and need the support of 10 lawmakers from Northern Ireland's Brexit-backing Democratic Unionist Party to govern.

Even then, the majority is wafer-thin – and some lawmakers have threatened to bring down the government, a step that would probably deepen Britain's political crisis and lead to an election.

A legacy dominated by Brexit failure

May had promised stable leadership

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
LONDON

Theresa May had a mission to fight Britain's "burning injustices" through strong and stable leadership – but her legacy as Prime Minister will be anything but.

The Conservative premier's turbulent time in office was swamped and ultimately sunk by her legacy-defining battle to secure a Brexit divorce deal.

It eroded her authority and led her to step down as leader, with the keys to Downing Street set to be handed to Boris Johnson.

Ms. May won praise for her determination and ability to survive a rolling three-year political crisis since the referendum vote to leave the EU.

But her approach to the Brexit endgame, refusing to accept MPs' trenchant opposition to her deal before belatedly opening ultimately futile negotiations with Opposition Labour, left Ms. May politically adrift.

She became Prime Minister in the aftermath of the 2016 Brexit referendum which swept away her predecessor David Cameron. She took office pledging to fight the "burning injustices" in British society, but made little headway as her entire premiership became dominated by the Brexit drama.

COLUMNIST Matthew Parfis – a former Conservative MP – called her the "zombie Prime Minister" for her ability to stagger on despite multiple attacks.

She survived a no-confidence vote and the resignations of a string of high-profile Brexit supporters. But ultimately her closed style of leadership and Brexit gridlock in Parliament doomed her premiership.

U.S. should clarify Trump's remarks: Ghani

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
KABUL

Afghan President Ashraf Ghani said on Tuesday the U.S. should clarify remarks President Donald Trump made about Afghanistan, including a claim that he could win the war in 10 days but didn't "want to kill millions".

Mr. Trump made the statements on Monday while meeting with Pakistani PM Imran Khan, whose help he seeks in negotiating a peace deal with the Taliban. Mr. Ghani's office called for clarification on the statements "via diplomatic means and channels." It also said that "foreign heads of state cannot determine Afghanistan's fate in absence of the Afghan leadership."

Former Chinese premier Li Peng passes away at 90

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
BEIJING

Former Chinese premier Li Peng – known for his role in the Tiananmen Square crackdown – has died at the age of 90, state media said on Tuesday.

Mr. Li died of an unspecified illness in Beijing after he failed to respond to medical treatment late on Monday, the official Xinhua news agency said. The ex-premier had previously battled bladder cancer.

Mr. Li gained notoriety worldwide as one of the key architects of the brutal breakup of mass pro-democracy demonstrations in the capital on June 4, 1989, and stayed at the top of the Communist regime for more than a decade, while remaining a hated symbol of the repression until his death.

After vast crowds of students, workers and others had been encamped for weeks in Tiananmen Square to demand change, Mr. Li proclaimed martial law on May 20, 1989. Two weeks later, on the night of June 3-4, the military put a bloody end to the protests, killing hundreds of civilians – by some estimates more than 1,000. Though the decision to send in the troops was a collective one, Mr. Li was widely held responsible for the bloody crackdown.

Its taint trailed him through to the end of his official political career in 2003, with his trips abroad generating widespread protests.

Nevertheless, he remained a member of the elite Politburo Standing Committee for 15 years and for most of the 1990s ranked number two behind then Chinese President Jiang Zemin.

He held the premiership for 11 years until 1998, and was Chairman of China's Communist-controlled Parliament until 2003.

ISI led CIA to Osama, says Imran Khan

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE
WASHINGTON

Pakistan's spy agency, the Inter Services Intelligence agency, provided the U.S. with a lead that helped them find and kill al-Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden, Prime Minister Imran Khan said on Monday.

This is a significant revelation as Islamabad had so far denied having any knowledge of the dreaded al-Qaeda chief in the country until he was shot dead by U.S. Navy SEALs in 2011.

Mr. Khan made his claim in an interview with Fox News. "It was ISI that gave the information which led to the location of Osama bin Laden. If you ask CIA it was ISI which gave the initial location through the phone connection."

How to keep anxiety out of the cubicle

The process begins when an organisation creates an environment that would encourage employees to seek help

LIFFY THOMAS

Waking up in the middle of the night, with the sleep having been cut short by anxiety over what lies ahead – the day's schedule packed with four back-to-back meetings and a project deadline that can't be pushed to another day.

Can you relate to that? The odds are high that a huge number of those reading this, can.

According to a World Health Organisation study, 264 million people live with anxiety disorder. "This figure for 2015 reflects a 14.9% increase since 2005," says the study.

In a study conducted by ItoHelp.net, a professional counselling company, in 2016, one out of every two employees in corporate India showed signs of anxiety.

Workplace anxiety can be dealt with better, if it is identified right. Sometimes, anxiety can be mistaken for stress. Stress and anxiety are related. As Tanya Percy Vasunia, psychologist and outreach associate, Mpowers - The Centre, puts it: "Prolonged stress can lead to anxiety."

However, stress and anxiety have their point of divergence. Anxiety over something cuts deeper, and alters one's personality.

"Anxiety can affect your ability to work, relax and enjoy life," says Tanya.

Career-related anxiety is more common than we realise. FILE PHOTO

In the workplace context, chronic anxiety can be triggered by uncertainty about the future, and one's place in it.

New reports about companies laying off employees can have an effect on someone, causing them to ask, "Will I be next?"

Anxiety can take various forms, and sometimes it is overcompensation.

Mpower - The Centre, a mental health organisation, has dealt with a case that is pertinent to the point, says Tanya.

Here, a female employee with a legal services firm needed help because she was extremely anxious about not being good enough in the role assigned to her. The trigger seemed mild, but the state of anxiety it led to, didn't.

She had missed an email and her colleague was nasty to her about it. She started feeling like she wasn't good enough for the role, and this made her anxious, which caused her to be extremely hard on herself. She felt the need to answer emails even at odd hours in the night. All of this was affecting her personal life and she ended up feeling constantly exhausted.

Ashwini N.V., director of Muktha Foundation, says there are various theories explaining workplace anxiety and detailing how it can be dealt with.

Job Demand Control Theory suggests that anxiety can result from an inability to make decisions at work, and one's skillset being seen as inadequate, which could be real or perceived.

'Effort and Reward Imbalance Theory', the lack of balance between the efforts put in by employees and the rewards and opportunities for growth received by them creates distress and anxiety.

According to 'Demand Control Support Theory', having a social support system can help tackle anxiety and distress.

No matter what theory one subscribes to, there is no gainsaying the fact that intervention has to take place exactly where the problem started – which is the workplace.

Organisations have to first create an environment that would encourage employees to seek help for their anxiety. Employee assistance programmes (EAP) can do that for them.

According to the India Health and Well-Being Study 2018, released by Willis Towers Watson, 66% of the employers in India have already developed or are developing a stress or mental health strategy for their employees. And an additional 17% are considering it for 2021.

The study has also noted that one in every four organisations now engage the employees' family, while dealing with workplace anxiety.

Line manager's role

The line manager must be trained. "They must be approachable, should protect confidential information and know when to empathise with an employee," says Tanya. Ashwini says companies must promote flexi-work schedules, have zero tolerance for harassment and create an environment where employees have clarity about their roles and responsibilities.

If your anxiety spikes when you are unclear about your goals, seek feedback. Face-to-face meeting can help keep unnecessary anxiety at bay.

"Promoting peer support groups is another way of helping employees cope with workplace anxiety," says Ashwini.

Find volunteers

Companies can carry out internal surveys to gauge the emotional and mental well-being of employees and set benchmarks on how to improve it. Companies can identify mental-health volunteers who will take up the responsibility of facilitating a system where help is on offer for those employees who may need it.

In 2017, National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences (NIMHANS) instituted awards for Best Mental Health Practices in the workplace, which is one of the indications from the larger world that companies are now expected to keep the workplace anxiety-proof.

SAT asks SEBI to probe Cairn India 'violations'

Cairn U.K. plea is for 340 cr. dividend

The Securities Appellate Tribunal (SAT) has directed markets regulator SEBI to look into the alleged violation of market norms by Cairn India, a subsidiary of Vedanta, with regard to withholding of dividends payable to Cairn UK Holdings.

The order came after Cairn UK Holdings Ltd. filed an appeal with the tribunal against an order passed by SEBI. In 2017, the U.K.-based firm had approached the regulator over non-payment of dividend amounting to over ₹340 crore by Cairn India and had appealed to SEBI to direct Vedanta's subsidiary to pay the dividend along with an interest of 18% per annum.

In the appeal, Cairn UK

Holdings had asked to "initiate proceedings under ... Companies Act against every director of Cairn India who were knowingly a party to the non-payment of the said dividend." However, SEBI disposed of the complaint on the grounds that the unpaid dividend of over ₹660.63 crore was handed over by the firm to the income tax authorities and it would not be appropriate for SEBI to take any further action.

Actor Vidya Balan discusses working with Ajith Kumar in Nerkonda Paarvai, her first straight Tamil film, which is scheduled for release on August 8

Kollywood in sight

SRIVATSAN S

Vidya Balan isn't a fan of remakes. She, in fact, despises the remake culture, for she believes that it's a convenient way of making money – arguably the reason why she stayed away from doing remakes – unless there's an exception like Pink, remade in Tamil as Nerkonda Paarvai, directed by H Vinoth. When producer Boney Kapoor shared the idea of remaking Pink in Tamil, her instinctive reaction was: "Why would you remake it?" But now, she is convinced that Nerkonda Paarvai is a relevant subject that deserves to be told in Tamil, too.

"If there is a section of audiences who hadn't seen the Hindi original because of the language barrier, they deserve a chance," says Vidya Balan over phone from Kolkata. Though Vidya agreed to act in Nerkonda Paarvai for Boney Kapoor and the late Sridevi, who, by the way, she "worships", it so happened that she was paired opposite one of the biggest stars in Tamil cinema: Ajith Kumar. "When I learned that Boney ji brought in Ajith on board, it was just icing on the cake for me," she laughs. "I'm just glad that everything fell in place; my first film in Tamil starring Ajith and produced by Boney ji."

Given her impressive track record in Bollywood, Vidya comes across as a daring actor who headlines projects that have considerable meat for the character

she plays. By her own admission, her character in the Tamil remake is "small yet special". However, Vidya was unperturbed by the screen time when Boney Kapoor offered the part. "When Boney ji came home, he gave me a sheet of paper and asked me to read. And I said, 'I won't... I'm doing this movie anyway,'" she says, adding, "You do movies for different reasons. This role may not be meaty, but it was something special." Though Vidya agreed to act in Nerkonda Paarvai for Boney Kapoor and the late Sridevi, who, by the way, she "worships", it so happened that she was paired opposite one of the biggest stars in Tamil cinema: Ajith Kumar. ings, and she's quick to admit that. But where Nerkonda Paarvai differs from the original is in its treatment of her character. "My portion is different from Pink. There's a song too and anything more would take away the fun," she adds.

No means no

Long before the #MeToo movement, which took shape last year in India, Amitabh Bachchan delivered a powerful statement about consent – one that roughly translated to: "No means no" in Pink. Three years after its release, Vidya feels that the movie is "going to be pertinent for years to come". "Women have been conditioned to believe that they don't have the right to say 'no'. Likewise, men believe that they cannot take 'no' for an answer. But that's changing now," drives people mad, was standing in front of me with utmost simplicity," she exclaims, "To be honest, I felt as though I was acting with his lookalike. He was that humble. When I spoke to him about the 'Thala' image and how different he was in person, he was shy."

Winds of change

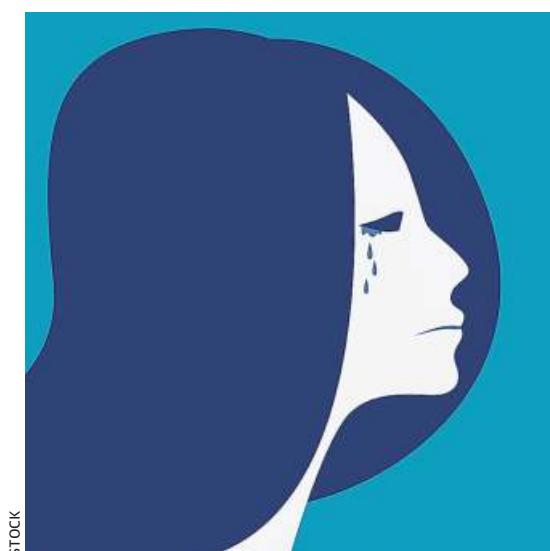

There's a significant change in the kind of roles being written for women, and one can't help wonder how much Vidya Balan has contributed to this movement. If anything, women are challenging the status quo in the industry, which, explains why we have a better representation of women on screen today.

"Status quo has been upturned in society as well as in movies. These days, women are putting up a strong fight and realising their dreams and desires. I don't think it's a trend because it's soon going to be a reality," she says. At the same time, Vidya is dismissive of "female-centric" movies, even though she's more than happy that they exist. She ends on a positive note: "There will be a day when we stop the distinction and watch movies for what they are."

A young colleague told me that a senior of ours is harassing her (passing remarks about her clothes, appearance), but we have no complaints committee in our organisation. What can we do?

If your organization has more than 10 employees, including consultants, temporary staff, and interns, amongst others, the Sexual Harassment at Workplace (Prevention, Prohibition and Redressal) Act, 2013 mandates that it ought to set up an Internal Complaints Committee ('ICC') to address complaints of sexual harassment. If an employer does not constitute an ICC, it's a punishable offence, and the employer is liable to pay a fine of Rs 50,000/-.

If your organization does not have an ICC, please write to your employer about their legal obligation to set up an ICC. If there is still no action, you can write to the District Officer in your area or write to the Department of Women and Child Development of your State. The information can be found on the website of the Ministry of Women and Child Development, Government of India or the websites of the State Governments.

In the case of your colleague, if she wants, she can file a police complaint of sexual harassment against the senior under Section 354A of the Indian Penal Code, 1860. The complaint basically needs to state the details of the harassment faced by her at the hands of her senior, which warranted necessary legal action. She can file the complaint online too, and then take a copy of the complaint along with any documents to prove her case to the police station, and get a receipt on her online complaint.

My daughter is not happy in her marriage, and my husband and I would like her to come and live with us. However, my son-in-law says she has no right to take the child (male, 10). Is this true?

In India, the custody and guardianship of children is governed by the principle of 'best interests of the child'. If the child is under 5 years of age, then the mother is 'ordinarily' granted the custody of the child. If the child is older, then the Court only considers the best interest of the child in determining the questions of custody. In your case, where the child is 10 years old, the Court may even ask the child for his wish. Thus, it is not true that the mother has no right of custody over a 10-year-old male child. If there is a dispute between the parents over the child's custody, the mother can file a petition under the Guardian and Wards Act, 1890, and seek custody of the child and the Court will determine in accordance with the best interest of the child.

SERGIUS BARETTO

With the recent push towards electrification, we're all set to see a slew of new all-electric models arrive on our shores, which will include the Nissan Leaf – one of the pioneer EVs of modern times. Nissan had planned to launch the first-gen Leaf in our market but were deferred. Now, however, the carmaker is set to launch the second-gen model (pictured here) in India by the end of the year. The model will arrive as a CBU import with prices expected to be about ₹40 lakh (ex-showroom).

A lot has been done to make the Leaf stand out from a conventional car. The wedge shape is alluring, especially in red. The headlights flow neatly into a faux-grille area – a black translucent panel that has neat pyramid-like structures beneath. Around the side, the Leaf gets a floating roof and a blacked-out rear section.

If your expectation of EVs is based on what was on sale in India so far, be prepared to be very surprised. While trims and equipment are yet to be finalised, we can expect it to get a fair bit of kit like six airbags, ABS, a Bose sound system, electronic climate control, electric seat adjustment and a 7.0-inch touchscreen with Android Auto and Apple CarPlay. Given that the connected car experience has already started in India, Nissan could offer its full connectivity suite, which includes remote diagnosis and pre-cooling the car via a smartphone; as well as Amazon Alexa and Google Assistant control.

On the inside, the dash is quite functional and fairly conventional. The only giveaway to the car's alternate propulsion system is the gear selector, which is a small knob with a joystick-like movement; the pattern isn't intuitive, but there is a small legend printed just ahead, along with a position indicator.

The quality of the switches, door pads and dashboard are all quite acceptable if you think of mid-size sedans; but you'll be disappointed to not find the finish and luxury you'd normally expect from a car that costs ₹40 lakh. The premium paid is not for a luxury car but for the extra attention it will get you – and for the alternate propulsion system that's billed to be the future of automobiles.

three people in reasonable comfort, although the middle passenger will have to contend with a centre tunnel.

Having tested a wide variety of EVs, we know range anxiety is real, and so we made sure we were near available charging points. The infrastructure is sparse today, but a few companies have started offering space for public chargers – like DLF, which let us use the facility at DLF Cyber City for our test.

We used about 70% of our charge in 87km, and this included a lot of hard acceleration runs (timing), a lot of stationary time with the AC on (cameramen need time to shoot the insides) and very little use of the car's Eco mode.

As for motive power, there are two powertrains on offer – one with a 40kWh battery system (the one we drove), with an EPA-cycle range of 241km, and the other with a 62kWh battery and a promised range of 364km. The 40kWh system is the version that's likely to launch here. It has a 150hp motor that puts out 320Nm of torque right from the start. Electric motors develop max torque right from the word go. Thus, from behind the wheel, the Leaf feels like every other electric car – very quick off the line, followed by linear acceleration. While the initial burst is very strong, it's not really dramatic. And while the claimed 0-100kph time stands at a quick 7.9sec, it doesn't really feel all that fast due to the lack of any aural drama.

Lift off the pedal and the motor acts like a generator, sending charge back to the batteries; this helps with range and also slows the car down. It's calibrated to feel close to the slowdown of a conventional car during engine braking. Move to B mode and the effect is stronger. However, it is in e-Pedal mode that it's at its max, where the car also uses the regular friction brakes to come to a full stop. The effect in this mode is dramatic enough for you to drive around ignoring the brake pedal and using just the accelerator most of the time. However, I found it to be a little too much in certain start-stop traffic conditions. Ironically, the brakes – which feel unservoed otherwise – are at their best in e-Pedal mode.

The Leaf's ride is good despite the stiff suspension necessitated by the car's heavy 1.5-tonne weight; and apart from some up-down clunkiness, ride on our roads was good. The light steering is great in traffic, and because of the lower centre of gravity (thanks to the weight of the batteries placed low down), you can fling the car around with some level of confidence; just don't expect hot-hatch levels of grip from the new Leaf's 'efficient' tyres.

At the end of the day, the Leaf feels pretty much like a conventional car. The ride is good, it's got all the creature comforts you'd expect, and the space is more than adequate. Of course, being an import, it isn't going to be cheap; but the real issue will be range. It isn't bad on its own, but for now, charging points are few and there isn't a standardised fast-charging plug that can be used by all cars. A home charger would be a must then, but Nissan should consider the 62kWh battery – a potential range of 360km would be far more practical in our environment.

Renault Triber to launch in August

Renault will launch the Triber in India in early August. The car is a crucial part of the model offensive Renault has planned for India to double its sales by 2022. Built on the CMF-A+ platform, the Triber is the only other offering in the Indian market (besides the Datsun Go+) with an overall length just shy of the 4m mark and the capacity to seat seven. The flexibility it gets by being able to remove the third row altogether gives the Renault an added dose of practicality. Upon launch, the Renault Triber is expected to carry a starting price tag of about ₹5.30 lakh (ex-showroom).

Ather 450 bookings open in Chennai

Ather has opened bookings for the 450 in Chennai. The booking amount is set at ₹5,000 with the e-scooter priced at ₹1.31 lakh (on-road, Chennai). Deliveries for the first batch of 450s are set to begin in September, followed by the second batch between November and December.

After that, deliveries will take place from February 2020 onwards. Just like with its scooters in Bengaluru, Ather has also listed a lease programme in Chennai, with rentals starting at ₹2,517 per month. Earlier, Ather revealed an ambitious target of selling one lakh units by June 2021.

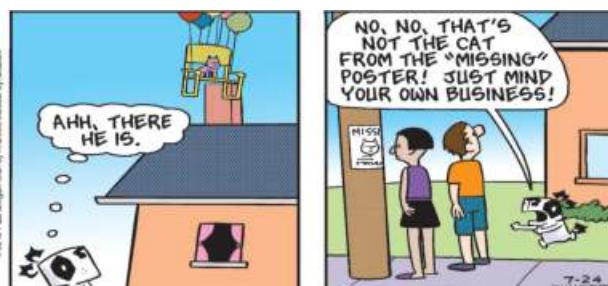

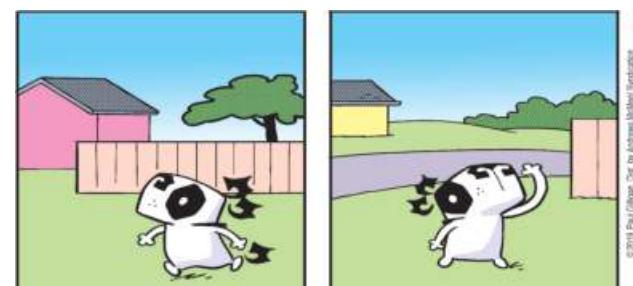

Honda updates WR-V with more kit, new trim level

Honda has updated the WR-V with added kit and also introduced a new mid-level V trim. Prices now start at ₹8.15 lakh (ex-showroom, Delhi).

The new V trim, priced at ₹9.95 lakh, is available with the 1.5 diesel engine and sits between the base S and top-spec VX variants. In terms of kit, it packs in most of the features available on the VX, including the 7.0-inch touchscreen infotainment system, reverse camera, cruise control and power-folding ORVMs among others. Interestingly, the only addition is a leather-wrapped steering wheel. However, an electric sunroof is missing.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
NORTH SOUND (ANTIGUA)

Wriddhiman Saha will begin his reintegration after a major shoulder injury with his first First Class game in 18 months when India-A takes on West Indies-A in an unofficial Test starting here on Wednesday.

Saha and Hanuma Vihari are the two Test specialists who have been included in the A squad to prepare for the two-Test series starting late August.

Saha, who is only three months shy of his 35th birthday, is returning after a career-threatening injury. Having stayed under M.S. Dhoni's shadow, Saha's injury during the last IPL was a massive blow.

With Rishabh Pant proving his credentials, it's again that phase in his career where he could be seen carrying drinks.

The squad: Shreyas Iyer (Capt.), P.K. Panchal, Abhimanyu Easwaran, Shubman Gill, Hanuma Vihari, Shivam Dube, Wriddhiman Saha (wk), K.S. Bharat (wk), K. Gowtham, S. Nadeem, Mayank Markande, Navdeep Saini, Mohammed Siraj, Shardul Thakur and Avesh Khan.

Board announces squad for first two T20Is; Bramble only new face

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
ST. JOHN'S (ANTIGUA)

The veteran duo of Sunil Narine and Kieron Pollard were on Tuesday recalled to a 14-member West Indies squad for the first two games of the three-match T20 International series against India in the United States.

Wicketkeeper-batsman Anthony Bramble is the only uncapped player in the squad selected for the T20Is to be played on August 3 and 4 at the Broward County Stadium, Lauderhill, Florida.

August 6 at the Guyana National Stadium, the West Indies Cricket Board said.

The squad, to be led by Carlos Brathwaite, also includes allrounder Andre Russell subject to passing a fitness assessment.

Russell injured

Russell had made an early exit from the World Cup to undergo an operation on his troublesome left knee.

Interim selection panel chairman Robert Haynes said veteran opener Chris Gayle had notified that he was unavailable for the series due to commitments in Canada. This has given John Campbell an opportunity.

Left-handed opener Campbell and left-arm spinner Khary Pierre have also been included alongside a number of regulars, as the panel seeks to explore options with the ICC T20 World Cup next year in Australia.

Haynes said he expected the T20I series to be a keenly contested one.

India plays three ODIs and two Tests against the West Indies after the T20Is.

Ashes jerseys to have players' names, numbers

ANI
NEW DELHI

Test cricket is all set to undergo a major change as Australia and England will line-up with names and jersey numbers on their Test whites in the upcoming Ashes series.

ODI and T20I jerseys have had personalisation on their backs since a long time, but Test matches had to wait for this change.

Confirmation

England Cricket official Twitter handle confirmed the jersey number of team's Test match skipper Joe Root and wrote "Names and numbers on the back of Test shirts," as the caption.

Earlier this year, there were reports that the Ashes series between England and Australia would bring in modernisation of cricketing kits.

Novelty: Cricket fans are set to witness a spectacle like this, come the Ashes series. ■ RYAN PIERCE/GETTY IMAGES

Cricketing fans on Twitter seemed divided on this development in Test cricket and made their voices heard on the social-networking platform. "Absolutely no problem with numbers 1 to 11 etc., but can't see the benefit of names or random high numbers on shirts. I guess it's all to do with increasing merchandise sales, hoping a name will sell more. @YorkshireCCC," wrote one fan.

"Names r okay bt never got the idea about these random numbers in cricket... could still live with it in ODIs n T20s bt spare tests... names r fine bt w/o numbers @ICC," another fan tweeted.

"A good addition. Improves both the supporter and media experience of seeing who it is."

On July 14, England scripted history as they managed to win its maiden 50-over World Cup and the side will look to continue its winning momentum going.

England will take on Ireland in a one-off four-day Test from Wednesday and then the team will face Australia in the Ashes, beginning on August 1.

Caleb Ewan wins Stage 16

TOUR DE FRANCE

NIMES

Caleb Ewan beat his sprinting rivals in suffocating heat to win Stage 16 of the Tour de France on Tuesday, with Frenchman Julian Alaphilippe keeping the race leader's yellow jersey.

With temperatures soaring as high as 40 degrees Celsius, Alaphilippe and his main rivals did not attack each other over the 177km mainly flat stage in the Nimes rural hinterland.

Defending champion Geraint Thomas crashed about 40km after the race started from the Roman city but escaped largely unscathed, with a few scratches on his left elbow.

Ewan, a Tour debutant, edged Elia Viviani and Dylan Groenewegen to post his second stage win.

Chawla (7/4), Rahul Sharma (2/3), Karn Sharma (1/1) and Sachin Tendulkar (1/1).

Together they have accounted for 106 wickets at 18.34 and an economy rate of a little over seven.

Former India seamer and MI talent scout Abey Kuruvita feels the ideal situation would be to perform in First Class cricket and impress the selectors. He cited Anil Kumble as an example.

And now, Chahar, after 13 matches for Mumbai Indians in IPL Season-12, has won a call-up for the three-match T20 series against the West Indies. Chahar was MI's main spinner, taking 13 wickets at an economy rate well-under seven.

Mumbai Indians can take credit for spotting talent in both Markande and Chahar and bring them onto the T20 stage where batsmen rule the roost.

After Yuzvendra Chahal (31 matches/46 wkts) and Kuldeep Yadav's (18/35) success, Indian cricket is looking more at wrist-spin options. India's previous leg-spinners for T20 Internationals were Amit Mishra (10 matches/16 wkts), Piyush missioner, as the election officer. "Many States were doing the wrong things. They have been told to rectify," divulged an official who has been in touch with the CoA.

Objection
An official of a State Association countered the CoA move by saying: "Who are they to set deadlines for elections? They are not the Supreme Court. During our meeting with the Amicus [Curiae], certain issues were taken up and the understanding was that the Supreme Court would give its opinion. The CoA is not the Supreme Court."

About 13 members, including Assam and six new members from the North-East, and Vidarbha, have accepted the New BCCI Constitution and hence are receiving their annual subventions.

The CoA has been constantly monitoring the process of Constitutional amendments made by the members in terms with the New BCCI Constitution.

Jurisdiction issue
An official of the Mumbai Cricket Association said: "We have been told to revert with our positions on the territorial jurisdiction for giving voting rights to retired international cricketers, to reveal if any of the clubs are social clubs and also on the appointment of the election officer. The CoA has said that the State should be the territorial jurisdiction for international cricketers, but we feel the jurisdiction is Mumbai city. All our clubs are cricket clubs and we have been searching for a retired Chief Election Commissioner of the State who can be appointed as the Election Officer."

The CoA believes that once the Election Officer is appointed, the election process can start so that the BCCI AGM and Elections can be held on October 22.

No thanks, says Stokes

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
LONDON

England's World Cup hero Ben Stokes, who was nominated for the New Zealander of the Year Award, has graciously turned it down, saying Black Caps skipper Kane Williamson is the "worthy recipient" of the accolade.

The 28-year-old Stokes was born in Christchurch but moved to England at the age of 12, going on to establish himself in the England set-up.

"I am flattered to be nominated for New Zealander of the Year," he posted on his social media accounts.

"I feel the whole country should align their support to New Zealand captain Kane Williamson. He should be revered as a kiwi legend."

The new Indian fan and why he was angry after the final

This is a welcome change and holds out hope that the aggressive follower of the game is beginning to learn to take defeat

BETWEEN WICKETS

SURESH MENON

The World Cup is done and dusted, the caravan has moved on, the pundits have spoken, the analyses are over. Yet a couple of questions continue to nag. Why, for instance, would umpire Kumar Dharmasena admit to making an error while granting England the extra run in the tied final, and then follow that up with "I will never regret that decision"? The decision was taken in consultation with the other umpire, he tells us, it was a difficult one to make, he assures us, and then ruins that with what comes across as either arrogance or stupidity.

The second question is the more interesting. Why were Indian fans so angry with the final result? Not merely disappointed or upset, but angry? Can you imagine television debates in England or Australia had India missed out in the manner that New Zealand did?

England skipper Eoin Morgan has spoken to his New Zealand counterpart Kane Williamson "on numerous occasions" since the final, he has said, and neither has been able to get his head around everything that happened. He was quoted as saying, "I'm not sure winning makes it any easier," adding later, "It would be more difficult to lose, of course."

Waves

In New Zealand, Kane Williamson told a radio station, "It will take a little bit of time...you get waves. You just forget about it for 10 minutes then it hits you again..." And importantly, "The rules were there from the start, we have to swallow that and accept it."

One Indian fan told me, "I didn't mind that India lost in the semifinal. It gave us a chance to watch the greatest one-day international ever." He was the exception, as the majority wanted to do something about that final – from a signature campaign asking the International Cricket Council to alter its playing conditions and letting the teams share the trophy by sacking various officials.

Everybody had an opinion, expressed more forcefully and with greater concern than anything articulated on issues such as the country's water shortage, or fudging in the national budget, which should affect us deeply. An umpiring decision made under pressure in a far away land got even the silent majority raising fists in anger.

Love for the underdog

It would have been hilarious if it didn't say something interesting about us. Age and gender were no barrier to dissatisfaction; my uncle in his 80s was as cheeze off as nieces in their teens and twenties. Social media, the arbiter of a country's innermost thoughts, could not tear itself away from the subject. Is everybody angry because New Zealand didn't make it or because England did?

Perhaps it is more of the former, which rules out any colonial hangover. Perhaps it is a genuine love for the underdog, although Indian cricket fans are not renowned for this.

Perhaps Williamson came as a breath of fresh air and we wanted to show our appreciation by fighting his team's battles.

New Zealanders weren't nearly as angry, and Williamson didn't once say anything about luck going against them – an easy enough line to take, particularly since it's true – and handled it all with dignity.

Perhaps once India lost in the semifinals, their fans transferred their considerable energies to New Zealand, and thus found a reason to retain their interest in the World Cup. Traditionally, teams in South Asia, from the schools level to the international, have tended to support the opponents of the team that beat them. Not so this time.

Springs of sorrow

The poet Gerard Manley Hopkins has said that the springs of sorrow are the same. Perhaps it is the same with the springs of anger too. For the course of one match, New Zealand were the India that made it to the final, didn't lose the match but lost the Cup. Blaming the players was out of the question. Burning effigies didn't make sense. Part of the anger might have risen from the frustration of not being able to do these things. And part from a feeling of 'We wuz robbed'.

The normally demanding Indian fan didn't explode when India lost; didn't question the money the players make outside the field, didn't blame the IPL or the quality of Indian wickets or the standard of domestic matches.

The ones who wanted a change in captaincy were few, and no one called for major changes in the team or asked questions of the Board of Control for Cricket in India. If any players' houses were stoned or effigies burnt, these didn't get any publicity.

All this is new. And welcome. And a sign – let us hope – that the aggressive Indian fan is beginning to learn to take defeat.

Ireland set for landmark Lord's Test

Chance for the Irish to pull a fast one on England

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE

London Ireland's march to becoming a full-fledged member of cricket's elite will reach another important staging post when it plays its first Test against England at Lord's on Wednesday.

The Irishmen made their Test debut last year, suffering a final-day defeat by Pakistan in Dublin. However, they were well beaten by fellow newcomer Afghanistan in their second Test in March this year.

Since the turn of the century, Ireland has become known for their one-day exploits, beating Pakistan (2007) and England (2011) at World Cups.

Highlight

The Lord's match is set to be the highlight of Ireland's year given it did not qualify for the World Cup.

The sport has a long history in Ireland and cricket was hugely popular there in the 19th century. But a rising tide of Irish nationalism and the growth of the Gaelic Athletic Association led to cricket being declared a "garrison" or "foreign" game.

Irish cricket went into something of a retreat although memorable occasions such as a televised win over the touring West Indies in 1969 helped to change attitudes.

Several of the present side have played county cricket, including Tim Murtagh, a stalwart for Middlesex, who recently took his 800th First Class wicket.

Fast bowler Boyd Rankin was briefly an England player when that was the only way Irishmen could play Test cricket before switching back. "It is a dream come true, and it is something I never thought would happen in my playing career," said Rankin, who played just the one Test for England on the ill-fated 2013-14 Ashes tour of Australia.

England will be resting several of its World Cup stars, including fast bowler Jofra Archer, Ben Stokes and batsman Jos Buttler.

Eoin Morgan, the victorious Dublin-born captain, no longer plays Test cricket with Joe Root, a fellow World Cup winner, in charge.

Anderson out

But England could still field Test new-ball bowler Stuart Broad, with all-time leading wicket-taker James Anderson ruled out with a calf injury. Somerset's Lewis Gregory and Warwickshire's Ollie Stone could come into the attack. As for the batting, England could give a Test debut to World Cup-winning opener Jason Roy.

The match will only last a maximum of four days rather than the standard five, a consequence both of being shoe-horned into the narrow gap between the end of the World Cup and the start of England's five-Test Ashes series against Australia next month and a desire by officials to experiment with "spectator-friendly" playing hours. Certainly an Ireland win would be a huge upset.

"In my generation I don't think any of us expected to be playing a Test at Lord's, so to have the opportunity is great," said Ireland wicket-keeper Gary Wilson. "But we mustn't lose sight of the fact that we have to come here and perform as well. I mean that's what it is about, it's not just turning up and having all the fanfare around Lord's."

'Pick your best batsmen'

Border tells Australia not to be averse to having top-three left-handers

Former captain Allan Border feels Australia should pick its best six batsmen for the upcoming Ashes series against England beginning on August 1 in Birmingham.

Border revealed his first choice team to foxsports.com.au, naming southpaws David Warner, Marcus Harris and Usman Khawaja as his preferred top three.

"The top three batsmen are left-handers, which is not necessarily the wrong thing," Border said.

"A lot of people jump up and down about picking too many left-handers but if they are your best players then go with them."

"If they were right-handers, no one would say anything," he added.

The former Australia skipper also stated that wicket-keeper-batsman Matthew Wade should come into the side considering his good domestic form.

Nod for Wade

"I'd be very tempted to go with Wade. You talk about picking the guys in form, and he's in great form. (Marnus) Labuschagne might get that guernseys in that he can bowl some pretty handy leg-spin and he's good in the field too," Border said.

CA lot of people jump up and down about picking too many left-handers but if they are your best players then go with them

"Wade can bowl some medium-pace. He can get it through allright, you could sling him half a dozen overs if you had to here and there."

The 63-year-old also advised the Australian team to resist from temptation of playing an all-rounder at No. 6 and instead play a proper batsman.

"I wouldn't go the allrounder at No. 6. I'd pick a straight out-and-out batsman."

"England's conditions are a bit softer underfoot and temperature wise. There's not as much physicality and stress on the bowlers," he said.

Bring back Asian style: Thakur

'Utilise former players' services to help the National team'

At his peak, Deepak Thakur was a feared forward. Using lightning speed and deft stick work, Thakur gave defenders a horrid time. In general, his Indian team of the noughties played a free-flowing style of hockey. This is in contrast with the 'European style' used now, where the emphasis is on possession and precision technique.

Thakur believes that the 'Asian style' of his era still has its place in modern hockey, and that the Indian team should utilise the services of his former teammates like Prabhjot Singh, Gagan Ajit Singh and Dhanraj Pillay to refine these skills.

Second pattern'

"Today, all international sides employ the European style of play. When all teams are playing like this, you need a second pattern to break their game-play. This is where you need to be adept at Asian-style skills like dodging, return-passes, and stick work."

"If you can develop these aspects of your game, you will be able to break open the defence."

Former players like Prabhjot Singh, Dhanraj Pillay and Gagan Ajit Singh were masters of Asian style hockey. They should be brought in to coach the National team in some capacity. This will be hugely beneficial, as we can get the best of both worlds," Thakur added.

Professional approach
The Arjuna awardee is happy that a more professional approach has entered the sport.

"Money is being invested now. Though top facilities are not available at the grassroots level, it is good that it has come to the elite level."

"Everything is a lot more professional now – players earn good money, and we also have video analysts, physiotherapists and so on,"

The three of us came up through the junior ranks at the same time.

"And during our senior India days, we spent a lot of time together. In those days, we did not have much entertainment."

"So we played cards together, chatted, and kept each other company."

"This sort of team bonding is missing now, with most players busy with their smartphones."

No loan move for Bale, says agent

LONDON

Gareth Bale will not be leaving Real Madrid on loan during the transfer window despite falling out of favour under Zinedine Zidane, his agent said on Tuesday.

The Real boss said at the weekend the La Liga giant was poised to offload the 30-year-old Wales star.

But his representative, Jonathan Barnett, told Sky Sports News any deal would have to be a permanent one.

"There will be no makeshift deals to get him out of the club," said Barnett, who said previously that Zidane has shown "no respect" for Bale's achievements at Real.

"Gareth is one of the best players on the planet. I can guarantee you he will not be going on loan to any club."

Bale has been deemed surplus to requirements at Real despite helping his side to a Spanish title and four Champions League crowns since arriving from Tottenham Hotspur six years ago.

His brace, including a brilliant bicycle kick, sank Liverpool in the 2018 final but he was not used as a regular starter by Zidane after the Frenchman returned to the Real bench in early March.

"Gareth is a Real Madrid player and for now he's staying as a Real Madrid player," said Barnett.

"If something comes along that suits us, then things could change and he could be gone in a day or a week. Or he could still be a Real player in three years, when his contract ends."

Goals from Tammy Abraham and Ross Barkley saw Chelsea grab a 2-1 victory over Barcelona on Tuesday in an exhibition match.

A few minutes later, he dashed deep into the left side to feed a high-speed cross to striker Malcom, but Arrizabalaga again denied them.

Chelsea made it 2-0 with less than 10 minutes left as midfielder Barkley picked up a cross in front of the box and curled it into the net, with substitute keeper Neto getting a touch but unable to block it.

Four minutes later, Chelsea striker Abraham opened the scoring in the 34th minute, pouncing on a botched clearance by Barcelona midfielder Sergio Busquets.

Busquets fumbled under pressure from Jorginho and the ball rolled towards Abraham who only had to step past onrushing goalkeeper Marc Andre ter Stegen and gently send it into the net.

Barcelona went on the offensive in the second half, with substitute striker Carles Perez leading the way.

HYDERABAD

It is never easy, even for a lead performer, to brush aside emotions when up against a team for which he played for six seasons. The story was no different for Rahul Chaudari when he debuted for Tamil Thalaivas against former team Telugu Titans in the Vivo PKL Season-7 the other night.

"There were a lot of emotions. I was a bit nervous. I was not sure how things would turn out to. Fortunately, we were off to a winning start against Titans," said Chaudari in a chat with The Hindu on Tuesday.

"It was a great feeling to be back in Hyderabad and in front of such a vociferous crowd supporting me. I loved the atmosphere and enjoyed every moment on the court against Titans."

"Honestly, I am just following the guiding principle of my coach – just do well, don't look back. I must say here that there is lot of experience and depth in Thalaivas which was not the case with Titans, where I was the only big player looked up to by teammates," said the 26-year-old.

"This in a way should be of great help to me as it is a joy to play alongside such a brilliant raider like Ajay Thakur. He is a huge motivator always telling – tujhe kohi nahi rokh sakega (no one can stop you). And, he encourages everyone in the team in a similar way," ad-

"I am glad that the PKL is no more about only one Rahul or Ajay Thakur. There are so many brilliant players who are now household names. This is good for the sport itself," Rahul said.

"I was never a member of a winning team. So, I am just praying to give me the opportunity of having my hand on the winner's trophy this time around," he added.

ded the star raider.

Depth and balance

"I sincerely hope that we will reach the final as we have the depth, balance and all-round superiority. We are determined to give more than 100 per cent and pay back to the amazing way the management is taking care of players. We were never found wanting for anything," said the Bijor (Uttar Pradesh) native.

"I am glad that the PKL is no more about only one Rahul or Ajay Thakur. There are so many brilliant players who are now household names. This is good for the sport itself," Rahul said.

AITA Trust to announce scholarship

NEW DELHI

After four days of matches in tough conditions, as rain had increased the humidity percentage in the atmosphere, the young tennis players had fruitful sessions apart from undergoing physical fitness assessment on Tuesday at the DLTCA Complex here.

"We had a very nice awareness session with the expert Dr. Ankush Gupta from National Anti Doping Agency. We had the parents also attending the session, as it is an important subject. It was a very interesting session that went on for an hour," said Prashant Menon, who was coordinating the scholarship scheme for the AITA Trust.

Apart from the anti doping awareness session, the players also had the benefit of listening to a diet and nutrition expert from the Sports Authority of India (SAI).

It was indeed a struggle for some of the under-14 kids on Monday to play two matches, in high humidity, and after three days of matches. However, there was an assurance that the results would not count

GWANGJU (KOREA)

Sun Yang was in the middle of controversy at the World swimming championships again. Only this time, it wasn't his doing. The Chinese star still got shunned on the medals podium again.

Sun retained the 200m freestyle crown on Tuesday after Danas Rapsys of Lithuania, who finished first, got disqualified for an apparent false start. Sun touched second, but got elevated after Rapsys had already celebrated in the pool.

Sun appeared surprised, clasping his hands to his face, but quickly sat on the lane rope and raised both arms in the air as a mix of cheers and boos rang out.

Katsuhiro Matsumoto of Japan took silver. Martin Malyutin of Russia and Duncan Scott of Britain tied for bronze.

On the podium, Scott wanted no part of sharing the moment with Sun. Scott kept his hands clasped behind his back and refused to shake Sun's hand, standing off on his own while the other medalists joined Sun to pose for photographers.

This action prompted a furious Sun to get in Scott's face and bark "You lose, I
